SMITH FAVORS DISCUSSION OF RUM SITUATION

Democratic Candidate at Last Election Talks of Policies.

MAY ATTEND SESSION OF EXECUTIVE GROUP

Other Leaders See Economic Rehabilitation as Chief Issue for Party.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, his party's nominee for President in 1928, is in favor of a frank discussion of prohibition at tomorrow's meeting of the Democratic national committee.

The "Happy Warrior" said as much not long after his arrival here yesterday. In the course of a press conference, he was asked whether a discussion of national issues at tomorrow's meeting would be good politics. His answer was prompt and vigorous.

"Whenever," he said, "the Democratic party gets into a position where it is afraid to discuss anything that affects the lives, morals and well-being of the people, then it becomes Republican. And I mean that in a party sense."

To Discuss Policies, Finance.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, issued a statement saying that tomorrow's meeting had been called to discuss "future policies and finances."

Meanwhile, Democratic senators at the Capitol were demanding that economic rehabilitation and not prohibition be put forward as the dominant issue of the party. One of those joining in the demand was a wet—Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts.

Former Gov. Smith reiterated a statement he had made in Raleigh, N. C., the day before. The Democratic national committee, he said, has no power to fix the policies that the party will adopt at its next national convention.

Favors Talking Over Issues.

But that, he pointed out, is no reason why a man attending tomorrow's meeting should not talk about national issues.

"I am so much of a Democrat," he said, "that I think the ashman in this hotel ought to be able to speak his mind at a Democratic gathering."

Asked whether he was in favor of the committee making any recommendations, Mr. Smith said that he was not a member of the committee, and that the question was one for the committee to decide.

Raskob Issues Statement.

Chairman Raskob, who has been credited with a plan to have the committee urge repeal of the eighteenth amendment, conferred with Mr. Smith at the Mayflower Hotel, and then issued this statement:

"I have been importuned on all sides to make some statement regarding matters to be discussed at our national committee meeting.

"Manifestly it would be very unfair and most discourteous to our committee members to discuss the business of the meeting with the press and public before discussing it with the meeting itself. Therefore I can only reiterate what the call for the

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Among the other deflations that have taken place in the past months there appears to have been a very wholesome deflation of a spirit of too much arrogance. Individuals and nations are not so self-satisfied as they were. They are more tolerant, more humane and more charitable one toward the other.

In the reaction the world has gone through the period when nearly everybody was engaged in helping themselves with little regard for anybody else. An excessive nationalism and excessive individualism were apparent. They continued into the first phase of the business decline. If they are not yet entirely dissipated, they have been modified by the more reasonable attitude of concession and cooperation. Friendly individual interest has furnished credit. Charity has given relief. Diplomatic negotiation has solved problems of armament and colonial relationship which were insolvable under the reign of arrogance.

In the midst of deflation the world has made a moral progress. It is probable that this arrival of reason marks the turning point. We are entering the second phase, where men and nations realize that they need the help of each other and that salvation must be sought in helping each other. When people work together nothing is impossible.

Noose-Slain Woman's Daughter Dies of Gas

BENITA BISCHOFF,
16-year-old daughter of Vivian Gordon, slain in New York, and John C. Bischoff, died of gas poisoning in Audubon, N. J., yesterday.

Benita Bischoff Found in Fume-Filled Room; Suicide Suspected.

Audubon, N. J., March 3 (A.P.)—Benita Bischoff, 16-year-old daughter of Vivian Gordon, who was slain in New York last week, died in a Camden hospital today an hour after she had been found unconscious in a gas-filled room in her home here by her stepmother, Mrs. Eunice Bischoff.

Her father, John E. C. Bischoff, a deputy United States marshal, was not at home at the time. Miss Gordon was Bischoff's first wife.

Police said tonight they had not determined whether Miss Bischoff's death from asphyxiation was accidental or planned. They expressed the opinion that she had ended her life because of the notoriety that attended the noose-murder of her mother, who police believe was strangled to death because of testimony she had threatened to give in a vice and graft investigation in New York. The attractive high school girl left no note that she contemplated suicide.

Friends recalled, however, that Benita had been "indifferent" since her mother's death. News that her mother had been killed reached Benita Thursday at school, and yesterday and today she remained away. She seemed reluctant, friends said, to face the other students.

Mrs. Bischoff found her step-

3 STEAL AUTO, FLEE PRISON AT OCCOQUAN

Howard Carson and 2 Other Washington Men Are Being Hunted.

Three trusted prisoners escaped from the District workhouse at Occoquan, Va., last night in an automobile stolen from one of the keepers. Among the escapes was Howard L. Carson, who was serving time for threatening to kill Miss Annie D. Jennings, a Sibley Hospital nurse, last September.

Carson, Raymond Ball, 32 years old, and Henry F. Sweeney, all of this city, were missed by the guards about 7:30 o'clock last night. An automobile owned by one of the keepers was stolen at the same time.

The prison alarms summoned all keepers who were off duty and searching parties set out from the workhouse to scour adjacent highways. An alarm was sent to Washington to have all police cars on the alert for the three convicts, who are believed to be heading in this direction.

Sweeney was under sentence of one year for housebreaking. His relatives live on Taylor street near Seventeenth street northwest. Raymond Bell, was serving a year for petty larceny. His address is on Girard street near Fourteenth street northwest.

Carson kept a score of police at bay on September 9, when he held Miss Jennings as his captive in a room in his parents home on S street near First street northwest, and threatened, in a drunken frenzy, to kill her unless she consented to marry him.

Patrolman Earl Baker, of the Second Precinct, rescued the girl and disarmed Carson after he had crossed on an ironing board that bridged an alley between the second floor of the Carson home and an adjoining house, and broke into the room.

U.S. LIFTS EMBARGO ON ARMS TO BRAZIL

Action Is Taken on Formal Request of South American Republic.

(Associated Press.)

At the request of the Brazilian government, the United States yesterday lifted its embargo on shipment of arms to Brazil.

The embargo was imposed last October on the plea of the tottering regime of former President Washington Luis.

The Luis government collapsed the day after President Hoover, on the recommendation of Secretary Stimson, proclaimed a ban on arms shipments to its opponents.

It was the first time the United States had imposed such an embargo on shipments to a South American nation.

Similar embargoes were and still are in force as to Honduras, Nicaragua and China.

The Brazilian government, which grew out of the rebellion, claimed

W. R. Austin Defeats Partridge for Senate

Montpelier, Vt., March 3 (A.P.)—Warren R. Austin, of Burlington, defeated Senator Frank C. Partridge, of Proctor, by 4,000 votes today for the Republican nomination to the United States Senate.

Nomination is tantamount to election in this overwhelmingly Republican State. With only two towns missing out of 248 cities and towns in the State the vote was:

Note Offering Forgiveness Lures Bridegroom to Death

Young Man Shot Six Times on Entering Home; Father-in-Law Is Held in Murder Following Alleged Confession.

Hawkinsville, Ga., March 3 (A.P.).—Delmar Cannon and Miss Maude Barbee were married February 23 in the face of her father's opposition, and because of the parental objections he returned to his home in Macon and she remained here.

As days passed, however, the father, J. T. Barbee, appeared to have relented and finally he wrote Cannon a letter inviting him to come for a visit.

Today young Cannon asked his employers for a day from work and came to Hawkinsville. Barbee's letter said "everything is all right," and the bridegroom hurried to the Barbee home in great anticipation of meeting his wife.

As he entered the door, six revolver shots rang out and he fell dead with six bullets in his chest.

Barbee surrendered to Chief of Police E. N. Cobb soon afterward. The police chief quoted him as confessing he wrote the letter merely to lure Cannon here and then shot him in the doorway.

NIGHT SESSION HELD TO SPEED CONGRESS' END

House and Senate Strive to Dispose of All Major Bills.

FEDERAL JOB AID ACT ALONE LEFT IN DOUBT

Hoover Is Expected to Sign Measures in Visit to Capitol Today.

Tired and nervous, members of the expiring Seventy-first Congress struggled through long sessions yesterday, and planned to sit all night, in an effort to clear the calendars of important measures.

With the Norris Government-operation Muscle Shoals bill vetoed late yesterday, the only major item of completed legislation with fate left in doubt was the Wagner bill providing for $4,000,000 yearly for a Federal aid system of employment agencies. President Hoover could kill this by a pocket veto, neither signing it nor returning it to Congress.

The second deficiency appropriation bill and the Parker-Jones maternity aid bill were the major bills still enmeshed in the legislative machinery. Bills passed at the last minute can be put before Mr. Hoover for signature this morning, when he participates in the time-honored presidential custom of visiting the Capitol just before a session ends.

Walsh Attacks Monopoly.

House action on a few minor bills and notable Senate speeches featured the last full day. Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), Montana, made a two-hour speech after the maternity bill came before the Senate. His subject was the alleged partnership between big business corporations and the Government.

He read a letter written by Senator W. E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, saying that breaking the hold of monopoly might nearly bring revolution, but it "ought to be done and some time will be done."

Walsh, who has been suffering with a cold, shouted hoarsely above the constant murmur of Senate conversations.

Schall Charges "Intimidation."

Senator Thomas D. Schall (Republican), Minnesota, fired a final shot in his warfare with Attorney General Mitchell over a Minnesota judgeship appointment. He charged that the Attorney General has tried to "intimidate" him. The blind senator's fight has held up the nomination of the man preferred by Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mitchell and it appeared certain to result in the judgeship continuing vacant.

Then Senator Borah made his annual speech advocating recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States. This step, he said, would not involve approval by this country of the principles of Communism.

Thereupon the Senate heard the Muscle Shoals veto message, regarded as the weightiest pronouncement of the administration, to date, on the power question.

Earlier, the final step in the Pennsylvania senatorial campaign of last year was taken, with submission by

FOUR-HOUR DAY ON SATURDAYS NOW IN EFFECT

Hoover Signs Measure Affecting Federal Workers.

U. S. EMPLOYES HAIL LAW AS BENEFICIAL

Sponsors Claim Expenses of Government Will Not Be Increased.

The four-hour Saturday work day became law for Government employes yesterday when President Hoover signed the bill passed by Congress by unanimous vote the day before.

Effective immediately, the new law means Saturday half holidays for Government workers in the District, and many outside the District will be inaugurated Saturday and continue thereafter.

President Hoover was represented as signing the measure after receiving another report from the Bureau of the Budget, which repeated the estimate that the Saturday half holiday will cost the Government something like $27,000,000 a year.

44-Hour Work Week.

Actually, the bureau report said, the cost of the measure, signed yesterday, would only be about $13,000,000, inasmuch as Congress had enacted and the President signed a law previously making the 44-hour work week the standard for employes in the postal service. The difference represented the increase in cost of employe hire due to the postal service bill.

Estimates of the Budget Bureau, however, were given no respect by representatives of the employes.

Operation of the law will mean no loss to the Government nor any necessary increase in the Government pay roll, Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal employes, said.

"Experience has shown," Mr. Steward said, "that shortening of the working hours of employes in such a manner has been more than recompensed by a speeding up in their work production so that the same amount of work, or more, is done in the shorter work week than under the old and longer work week.

Budget Bureau Figure.

"If one simply computed the cost of Government employes' hire in a week and then by mathematical process sought to discover how many more employes would have to be added to the total on a proportionate basis, one might arrive at some figure. Possibly the Budget Bureau figure might be the right one on that basis. But any such computation fails to take into consideration the human element. It is our conviction, borne out by experiences of others, that the new law will not necessitate any increased expenditure for clerk hire."

But Mr. Steward's principal thought was not one of criticism of any one. To the contrary it was that the entire country and workers throughout the world should approve the action of Congress and of President Hoover. The new law, Mr. Steward believes, will mean much to workers throughout the country and

Peace Comes to India By Pact With Ghandi

Native Chieftain and Lord Irwin Reach Agreement on Salt-Making and Other Disputes, Ending Year's Strife of Civil Resistance.

New Delhi, India, March 4 (A.P.)—Peace dawned for distracted India early this morning after a year of civil disobedience activities had torn Great Britain's Asiatic domain by strife.

Viceroy Lord Irwin, representing the British government, and Mahatma Gandhi, half-naked little chieftain of the Indian Nationalists, reached an agreement at 1:30 o'clock this morning after Gandhi yesterday had won from Lord Irwin tacit agreement that Indians along the coast had the right to make their own salt from sea water instead of buying it from the government monopoly.

This was one of the principal points for which the Nationalists had fought in a year of civil resistance, and with the accord on this matter it was felt that one of the most serious obstacles to the restoration of peace in India had been overcome. Other points were settled later.

Mahatma Gandhi has led a long series of boycotts and civil resistance campaigns against the British crown, but his latest, now apparently brought to settlement, began in 1929 when Great Britain failed to name a native on the Simon commission appointed to determine the degree of self-government which could safely be extended to India.

The master showman centered his campaign about the British salt monopoly, urging his followers to make their own salt by evaporation from the sea, and there ensued bitter months in which police laid about with staves dispersing Indians marching to the sea.

The crown carefully avoided molesting Gandhi himself until the Mahatma, marching 150 miles from Allahabad to Dandhi, made salt in defiance of the law. He was arrested. The demand for his release swept all India and the round-table conference at London was called to consider conciliatory measures.

Gandhi boycotted the meetings, contending the delegation was "packed" with proven loyalists, but out of the conference came the closest approach to dominion status India has yet been offered.

It was protected by safeguards upon important departments of the proposed dominion government, and most of the safeguards were unsatisfactory to Gandhi's All-India Congress party, but he and other important party leaders were released from prison to agree upon their plans.

At length Gandhi was ready for his personal conferences with the viceroy, bringing demands for the right to make salt, to boycott British goods,

HOOVER SHOALS VETO SUSTAINED BY VOTE OF SENATE, 34 TO 49

Text of Hoover's Veto Of Muscle Shoals Bill

To the Senate:

I return herewith, without my approval, Senate joint resolution 49, "To provide for the national defense by the creation of a corporation for the operation of the Government properties at and near Muscle Shoals, in the State of Alabama; to authorize the letting of the Muscle Shoals properties under certain conditions; and for other purposes."

This bill proposes the transformation of the war plant at Muscle Shoals, together with important expansions, into a permanently operated Government institution for the production and distribution of power and the manufacture of fertilizers.

Disregarding for the moment the question of whether the Federal Government should or can manage a power and fertilizer manufacturing business, we should examine this proposal from the point of view of the probabilities of success as a business, even if efficiently managed. Such an analysis involves a consideration of the capital invested, the available commercial power, the operating costs, the revenue to be expected, and the profit and loss involved from this set-up. The figures and estimates given herein are furnished by the War Department upon the authority of the chief of engineers.

The following properties and proposed extensions are embraced in the proposed project:

(a) Wilson Dam and its hydroelectric equipment, valued at $37,000,000, being the original cost of $47,000,000 less $10,000,000 applicable to navigation.

(b) The steam power plant at Muscle Shoals, valued at $5,000,000, being a reduction for depreciation of $7,000,000 from the original cost of $12,000,000.

(c) Proposed further additions to the electrical plant at Muscle Shoals costing $9,000,000.

(d) Proposed construction of Cove Creek Dam with hydroelectric plant with transmission line to Wilson Dam, $41,000,000, of which $5,000,000 may be attributed to flood control and improvement of navigation, or, say, $37,000,000.

(e) Proposed construction of transmission lines for wholesale distribution of power within the transmission area—$40,000,000.

(f) Nitrate plants, quarries, &c., at Muscle Shoals which originally Democrats Aid Republicans in Backing Hoover Norris Bill Fight.

LEASING BY STATES SUGGESTED IN NOTE

Executive Message Objects to Putting Government in Power Business.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's veto of the Muscle Shoals bill was sustained last night by the Senate. The vote was 34 to 49 for sustaining the veto.

Sixteen Republicans voted to pass the bill over the veto, while 3 Democrats joined with 31 Republicans to sustain it. Two-thirds were necessary to pass the bill over the veto.

The bill, which the President said in his veto message squarely presented the issue of Government operation in competition with private interests, was killed when its friends failed to obtain the two-thirds vote necessary to pass it over a veto.

The vote came after several hours of debate, in which Senators Norris (Republican), Nebraska, and Black (Democrat), Alabama, led an attack on President Hoover for not signing the measure.

Norris Hurls Charge.

Senator Norris charged the President was "with the Power Trust" and Senator Black asserted he violated his campaign promises by vetoing the bill.

Administration senators forced the vote when Senator Norris and other advocates of the bill attempted to lay it aside, declaring a vote was useless in view of the impossibility of passing the measure in the House over the veto.

In vetoing the measure proposing Federal control over the war-time properties the President proposed, instead, that States of Alabama and Tennessee set up a commission with representatives from the national farm organizations and the Army engineers to lease the plants "in the interest of the local community and agriculture generally."

The President's veto message was dumped into the Senate on top of a confused mass of legislation which weary leaders were attempting to straighten out before the clock reaches 12 today when the session automatically comes to an end.

Declaring the leasing provisions of the bill which Congress sent to him were of "no genuine importance," because inquiry had revealed no responsible concerns would offer bids under its provisions, President Hoover said the bill proposed Government manufacture of fertilizer as well as power production.

"I am firmly opposed to the Government entering into any business the major purpose of which is competition with out citizens," the President said.

Important Issues Raised.

"This bill raises one of the important issues confronting our people. That is squarely the issue of Federal Government ownership and operation of power and manufacturing business, not as a minor by-product, but as a major purpose."

"Involved in this question is the agitation against the conduct of the power industry. The power problem is not to be solved by the Federal Government going into the power business, nor is it to be solved by the project in this bill.

"The remedy for abuses in the conduct of that industry lies in regulation and not by the Federal Government entering upon the business itself."

Hoover Makes Suggestion.

Asserting he was "loath to leave a subject of this character without a suggestion for solution," the President said:

"I would therefore suggest that the States of Alabama and Tennessee, who are the ones primarily concerned, should set up a commission of their own representatives, together with a representative from the na-

UTILITY BODY ISSUES 3-CENT FARE ORDER

Traction Companies Indicate Fight for Higher Adult Rates in Letters.

The long-awaited order governing the operation of the 3-cent fare for school children was issued by the Public Utilities Commission late yesterday, following a day of denials of previous announcements, conferences with transportation-line officials and settlement of most of the pending detail problems.

Tuesday, March 10, is set as the day when street cars and buses will be compelled to accept the reduced fare from all children who come within the limits of the law.

The order, which is exactly opposite of decisions of two members of the commission, reached Monday, in two respects contains virtually the same provisions that Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, announced as being under consideration following the first conference with transportation representatives a week ago.

Cash fares, either as an alternative or straight charge, will not be acceptable, under the commission's regulations, unless the street car and bus companies fail to have the proper tickets available on the day that the reduced rate becomes effective.

Free transfers are to be issued school children wherever transfers of any sort are available now to adults and at one additional point, viz, between the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. at Colorado avenue and Fourteenth street. No transfers will be available to the Eastern High School pupils who use both the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Bus Line and the Capital Traction Co.

Earlier yesterday afternoon the Washington Railway & Electric Co., the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. were denied requests for another hearing on school fares. The transportation lines, however, made it clear in letters to the commission that they would make a fight for increased adult fares to offset losses they expect from the 3-cent fare for school children.

Richmond B. Keech, the people's counsel, expressed surprise on see-

CHICAGO CORRUPTION PAINTED IN DRY DATA

Wickersham Group Files Reports on Five States With Senate.

(Associated Press.)

The Wickersham Commission yesterday lifted the lid upon prohibition conditions in five States, only one of which escaped the charge of widespread and flagrant liquor law violations within its borders.

One survey—of Illinois—laid with the others before the Senate, spoke frankly of widespread corruption among public officials. It listed the names of 330 reputed Chicago gangsters together with their sources of revenue, and reported such details as the discovery of "large quantities of poison-dipped bullets" in rooms said to have been occupied by Al Capone's followers.

Other surveys covered the States of New York, New Jersey, Louisiana and Colorado. In only the latter was prohibition declared satisfactorily enforced.

All five were transmitted piecemeal during the day in response to a Senate resolution calling for data upon sixteen States.

Chairman Wickersham in a letter of transmittal, said three of the surveys were the only ones available.

Senate Is Notified Of Schall Contest

Democrat Plans to Submit Formal Charges; Claims Illegal Acts.

(Associated Press.)

Notice of a contest against the election of Senator Schall (Republican), Minnesota, was filed last night in the Senate.

The communication was signed by Einar Holdale, Democratic senatorial nominee in the November election. It said a petition would follow, which would charge illegal use of the mails; violation of the Minnesota corrupt practices act, and illegal and fraudulent voting in some polling places.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, presented the contest without comment.

'George Washington' Letter Scouted by Historical Body

Massachusetts Society States Missive in 1782, Expressing Admiration for Bassett's Daughter, Was Written by Younger Member of Family.

Uxbridge, Mass., March 3 (A.P.).—A letter signed "George Washington" and written to Col. Burwell Bassett, of Richmond, Va., has been made public here by Mrs. Milton P. Fish, whose father acquired it during the Civil War.

The missive, which discussed the writer's effort to regain his health, was inscribed "Mount Vernon, May 20, '82." Whether the last two numerals were intended to represent "1782" was not clear, but historians scouted the possibility that it was written by Gen. George Washington at that time.

It was pointed out that Washington made his trip to the West Indies, which was mentioned in the letter as being contemplated, some 30 years before that date, or in 1751.

The letter, addressed to Col. Burwell Bassett, at Richmond, Va., was given Mrs. Fish's father, James H. D. Earle, while he was serving with the Union Army in Virginia during the tional farm organizations and the Corps of Army Engineers; that there be vested in that commission full authority to lease the plants at Muscle Shoals in the interest of the local community and agriculture generally.

"It could lease the nitrate plant to the advantage of agriculture. The power plant is today earning a margin over operating expenses."

"Such a commission could increase this margin without further capital outlay and should be required to use all such margins for the benefit of agriculture.

"The Federal Government should, as in the case of Boulder Canyon, construct Cove Creek Dam as a regulatory measure for the flood protection of the Tennessee Valley and the development of its water resources, but on the same basis of those imposed at Boulder Canyon—that is, that construction should be undertaken at such time as the proposed commission is able to secure contracts for use of the increased water supply to power users, or the lease of the power produced by a by-product from such a dam on terms that will return to the Government interest upon its outlay with amortization.

"On this basis the Federal Government will have cooperated to place the question into the hands of the people primarily concerned. They can lease as their wisdom dictates and for the industries that they deem best in their own interest.

"It would get a war relic out of politics and into the realm of service."

Exceptions Are Cited.

Discussing Government ownership, the President said there are emergencies which require the Government to enter temporarily the field of business. There are also localities in which the Government is justified in building great dams and reservoirs for navigation or flood control purposes, he added, but in such cases the power should be disposed of by contract or lease.

"But for the Federal Government deliberately to go out to build up and expand such an occasion to the major purpose of a power and manufacturing business is to break down the initiative enterprise of the American people," he said. "It is destruction of equality of opportunity among our people: It is the negation of the ideals upon which our civilization has been based.

"This bill would launch the Federal Government upon a policy of ownership and operation of power utilities upon a basis of competition instead of by the proper Government function of regulation for the protection of all the people.

"I hesitate to contemplate a future of our institutions, of our Government and of our country if the preoccupation of its officials is to be no longer the promotion of justice and equal opportunity but is to be devoted to barter in the market."

the Nye committee of a report holding that expenditures of Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, and his ticket were "excessive" and "inimical to the public welfare." Four of the five committee members signed the report.

The House heard the swan song of one of its three retiring women members, Mrs. Pearl Oldfield (Democrat), Arkansas. She prefers home life to the arduous life of legislating, although her nomination and reelection were practically assured.

The House also heard from Representative Melvin Maas (Republican), Minnesota, a charge that a grand jury investigation of a St. Paul postal lease was called off as a result of collusion and conspiracy between the Postoffice and Justice Departments. Maas blamed Postmaster General Brown and Postmaster Charles J. Moss, of St. Paul, for what he said were abuses of public trust.

Grant to Take On 50 More Workers

$309,000 Appropuriations Permits Construction in Parks at Once.

The Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks will hire 50 additional men to carry on the construction work of the 1932 program, for which funds have been made immediately available, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director, announced yesterday.

Had the item of $309,000 in the District appropriation bill not been made available now, he said, 150 of his per diem workers would have had to be dropped until July 1. All of the 300 day laborers are now to work on a six-day weekly basis instead of five days as they have been during the winter.

The construction men will be placed chiefly on the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway project, it was said. Only applicants with civil service status will be considered for the new openings.

Fatal Fall Called Accident by Jury

Witnesses Testify Before Coroner That Victim Was Intoxicated.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury that investigated the death of Charles Nauck, 5, who died in Emergency Hospital on Monday after a fall from the third-floor window of a roming house at 620 D street northwest.

The jury decided that Nauck was intoxicated at the time of the fall. Two witnesses said they saw the man fall from the window. Dr. Thomas Bradley, who examined Nauck, said the man was intoxicated.

Deputy Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald testified that the man died from fractured bones and internal injuries.

cost $68,555,000 but upon which no valuation is placed at present.

The total valuation of the old property to be taken over for the power portion of the project is therefore $42,000,000 after the above deductions from original cost. The new expenditures from the Treasury applicable to the power business are estimated at $90,000,000, less $5,000,000 which might be attributable to flood control, or a total of $127,000,000 of capital in the electrical project. This sum would be further increased by accumulated interest charge during construction. As shown later on, several millions further would be required for modernizing the nitrate plants. The total requirement of new money from the Federal Treasury for the project is probably $100,000,000 even if no further extensions were undertaken.

Power Available From Project.

Assuming the additional power given by the construction of the Cove Creek Dam and the use of steam power for five months in the dry season each year, and taking the average load factor from experience in that region, about 1,300,000,000 kilowatt-hours of continuous power could be produced annually. Considered as a general power business, a portion of this must be held in reserve to protect customers, leaving a net of about 1,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours annually of salable power. This amount would be somewhat increased if a large proportion of 24-hour load were applied to fertilizer manufacture.

The secondary power for a period of less than seven months in the year is not regarded as of any present commercial value.

The following is the estimated annual overhead and operating cost of the electrical end of the project including the steam plant necessary to convert seven-month secondary power into primary power as stated above:

Interest at 4 per cent per annum on capital of $127,000,000	$5,080,000
Amortization	1,890,000
Operating and maintenance cost of hydroelectric plant	775,000
Operating and maintenance cost of steam plant	850,000
Operating and maintenance cost of transmission lines	550,000
Total	$9,145,000

The estimated cost of production and distribution is, therefore, about 9.1 mills per kilowatt-hour. If only part of the transmission lines were constructed it would decrease capital and operating charges but would not comply with the requirement of equitable distribution throughout the transmission area.

Estimated Gross Income.

The purpose of the bill is to provide production and wholesale distribution of surplus power and to give preference to States, municipalities, and cooperative organizations. It further provides that the policy of the Government must be to distribute the surplus power equitably amongst States, counties, and municipalities within transmission distance of Muscle Shoals and provides for the construction of transmission lines to effect this purpose. Such a transmission system for wholesale purposes only is estimated to cost $40,000,000. If it is proposed to sell power at retail to householders, then there would need be a great increase in the estimates of capital outlay and operation costs for such distribution.

The average gross income of the power companies in that territory, including retail as well as wholesale power, is about 12 mills per kilowatt-hour. This includes retail residential power averaging something over 50 mills per kilowatt-hour. Miscellaneous industrial power realizes about 10 mills per kilowatt-hour. The power sold wholesale to other companies and those engaged in municipal distribution averages about 7.2 mills per kilowatt-hour.

Can Not Be Computed.

It is impossible to compute Muscle Shoals income under this project upon a basis which includes retail power sales, as this is a project for wholesale distribution only. It is impossible to compute it upon the basis of miscellaneous industrial rates as sales for industrial purposes from Muscle Shoals would presumably be mainly for manufacture of fertilizers and it would not be possible to average 10 mills per kilowatt-hour. A rate of not over 2 mills would be a large charge for such power. While the load factor would be improved by large use for this purpose, the net result, however, would be to diminish the gross income below the above rates from municipal and miscellaneous industrial service.

Assuming that the whole 1,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours should be sold to municipalities or other power distributors, it would, on the basis of the realizations of the private companies of 7.2 mills, yield a gross annual income to this project of about $7,200,000, or a loss upon this basis of nearly $2,000,000 annually. This territory is now supplied with power and to obtain such an income it would be necessary to take the customers of the present power companies. To secure these customers it would be necessary to undercut the rates now made by them. It is difficult to estimate the extent to which it would be necessary to go in such rate cutting in order to secure the business. In any event it would, of course, diminish estimated income and increase the losses.

It is obvious that any estimate of income contains a large element of conjecture, as the proportions of industrial and municipal load can not be foretold. But any estimate of the income of the project as set up by this legislation will show a loss.

Fertilizer Manufacture.

The plants at Muscle Shoals were originally built for a production of nitrates for use in war explosives. I am advised by the War Department that the very large development in the United States by private enterprise in the manufacture of synthetic nitrogen now affords an ample supply covering any possible requirements of war. It is therefore unnecessary to maintain this plant for any such purposes.

This bill provides that the President for a period of twelve months may negotiate a lease of the nitrate plants for fertilizer manufacture under detailed limitations, but in failure to make such a lease the bill makes it mandatory upon the Government to manufacture nitrogen fertilizers at Muscle Shoals by the employment of existing facilities or by modernizing existing plants or by any other process. I may state at once that the limitation put upon lessees in the bill are such that this provision is of no genuine importance. Inquiries have been made of the most responsible and experienced concerns that might possibly undertake such lease, and they have replied that under the conditions set out in the bill it is entirely impractical for them to make any bid. The leasing provision is therefore of no utility; it may at once be dismissed. In consequence the project we have to consider under this bill is the manufacture of fertilizers by the Federal Government.

The Department of Agriculture reports that these plants are now more or less obsolete and that with power at even 2 mills per kilowatt-hour, with proper charges included, could not produce the products for which they are constructed as cheaply as these products are now being sold in the wholesale markets. Therefore, it would be necessary to modernize the equipment at an unknown cost in millions. There is no evidence as to the costs of nitrogen fertilizers by the newer equipment, and there is therefore no basis upon which to estimate the results to the Government from entering upon such a competitive business. It can, however, be stated with assurance that no chemical industry with its constantly changing technology and equipment, its intricate problems of sales and distribution, can be successfully conducted by the Government.

Proposed Administration.

The first essential of all business is competent management. Although the bill provides for the management by three directors, the Congress must from the nature of our institutions be the real board of directors and with all the disadvantages to a technical business that arise from a multitude of other duties, changing personnel, changing policies and regional interests. These three directors are to have political qualifications, as it is stipulated that not more than two shall be of one political party. They are to receive $50 per diem, but are limited to $7,500 each for the first year and $5,000 annually thereafter. The act provides that:

"All members of the board shall be persons that profess a belief in the feasibility and wisdom, having in view the national defense and the encouragement of interstate commerce, of producing fixed nitrogen under this act of such kinds and at such prices as to induce the reasonable expectation that the farmers will buy said products, and that by reason thereof the corporation may be a self-sustaining and continuing success."

In other words, they are to say that they believe in Government manufacture of fertilizers, and that it can be made a success on this set-up. We are thus supposed to appoint business administrators on the basis of their beliefs rather than their experience and competency. These directors are manifestly to have a political complexion and apparently the entire working force is likewise to have such a basis of selection, as the usual provision for the merit service required by law in most other Federal activities is omitted. Three men able to conduct a one hundred and fifty million dollar business can not be found to meet these specifications.

General Considerations.

I am firmly opposed to the Government entering into any business the major purpose of which is competition with our citizens. There are national emergencies which require that the Government should temporarily enter the field of business, but they must be emergency actions and in matters where the cost of the project is secondary to much higher considerations. There are many localities where the Federal Government is justified in the construction of great dams and reservoirs, where navigation, flood control, reclamation or stream regulation are of dominant importance, and where they are beyond the capacity or purpose of private or local government capital to construct. In these cases power is often a by-product and should be disposed of by contract or lease. But for the Federal Government deliberately to go out and build up and expand such an occasion to the major purpose of a power and manufacturing business is to break down the initiative and enterprise of the American people; it is destruction of equality and opportunity amongst our people; it is the negation of the ideals upon which our civilization has been based.

This bill raises one of the important issues confronting our people. That is squarely the issue of Federal Government ownership and operation of power and manufacturing business not as a minor by-product, but as a major purpose. Involved in this question is the agitation against the conduct of the power industry. The power problem is not to be solved by the Federal Government going into the power business, nor is it to be solved by the project in this bill. The remedy for abuses in the conduct of that industry lies in regulation and not by the Federal Government entering upon the business itself. I have recommended to the Congress on various occasions that action should be taken to establish Federal regulation of interstate power in cooperation with State authorities.

This bill would launch the Federal Government upon a policy of ownership and operation of power utilities upon a basis of competition instead of by the proper Government function of regulation for the protection of all the people. I hesitate to contemplate the future of our institutions, of our Government, and of our country if the preoccupation of its officials is to be no longer the promotion of justice and equal opportunity but is to be devoted to barter in the markets. That is not liberalism, it is degeneration.

Subject to Politics.

This proposal can be effectively opposed upon other and perhaps narrower grounds. The establishment of a Federal-operated power business and fertilizer factory in the Tennessee Valley means Federal control from Washington with all the vicissitudes of national politics and the tyrannies of remote bureaucracy imposed upon the people of that valley without voice by them in their own resources, the overriding of State and local government, the undermining of State and local responsibility. The very history of this project over the past ten years should be a complete demonstration of the ineptness of the Federal Government to administer such enterprise and of the penalties which the local community suffers under it.

This bill distinctly proposes to enter the field of powers reserved to the States. It would deprive the adjacent States of the right to control rates for this power and would deprive them of taxes on property within their borders and would invade and weaken the authority of local government.

Aside from the wider issues involved the immediate effect of this legislation would be that no other development of power could take place on the Tennessee River with the Government in that field. That river contains two or three millions of potential horsepower, but the threat of the subjection of that area to a competition which under this bill carries no responsibility to earn interest on the investment or taxes will either destroy the possibility of private development of the great resources of the river or alternately impose the extension of this development upon the Federal Government. It would appear that this latter is the course desired by many proponents of this bill. There are many other objections which can be raised to this bill, of lesser importance but in themselves a warranty for its disapproval.

It must be understood that these criticisms are directed to the project as set up in this bill; they are not directed to the possibilities of a project denuded of uneconomic and unsound provisions nor is it a reflection upon the value of these resources.

I sympathize greatly with the desire of the people of Tennessee and Alabama to see this great asset turned to practical use. It can be so turned and to their benefit. I am loath to leave a subject of this character without a suggestion for solution. Congress has been thwarted for ten years in finding solution, by rivalry of private interests and by the determination of certain groups to commit the Federal Government to Government ownership and operation of power.

The real development of the resources and the industries of the Tennessee Valley can only be accomplished by the people in that valley themselves. Muscle Shoals can only be administered by the people upon the ground, responsible to their own communities, directing them solely for the benefit of their communities and not for purposes of pursuit of social theories or national politics. Any other course deprives them of liberty.

I would therefore suggest that the States of Alabama and Tennessee who are the ones primarily concerned should set up a commission of their own representatives together with a representative from the national farm organizations and the Corps of Army Engineers; that there be vested in that commission full authority to lease the plants at Muscle Shoals in the interest of the local community and agriculture generally. It could lease the nitrate plants to the advantage of agriculture. The power plant is today earning a margin over operating expenses. Such a commission could increase this margin without further capital outlay and should be required to use all such margins for the benefit of agriculture.

The Federal Government should, as in the case of Boulder Canyon, construct Cove Creek Dam as a regulatory measure for the flood protection of the Tennessee Valley and the development of its water resources, but on the same bases as those imposed at Boulder Canyon—that is, that construction should be undertaken at such time as the proposed commission is able to secure contracts for use of the increased water supply to power users or the lease of the power produced as a by-product from such a dam on terms that will return to the Government interest upon its outlay with amortization. On this basis the Federal Government will have cooperated to place the question into the hands of the people primarily concerned. They can lease as their wisdom dictates and for the industries that they deem best in their own interest. It would get a war relic out of politics and into the realm of service.

DAVIS BLAMELESS, COMMITTEE HOLDS

Expenditure of Huge Sum, However, Held Inimical to Public Interest.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate campaign funds committee yesterday absolved Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, of dishonorable conduct in his election campaign, but said the expenditures in behalf of his ticket were "excessive and inical to the public interest."

A report filed with the Senate by Chairman Nye listed the expenditures in behalf of the Davis-Brown ticket in the Pennsylvania primary of last year at $622,928. Francis Shunk Brown was the unsuccessful candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

The committee listed the total primary and election campaign expenditures of the Davis ticket at $1,117,649.

Holds Expenditure Inimical.

While making no recommendations to the Senate, the report said:

"Your committee is impressed by the size of these aggregate expenditures even when due regard is given to the area and population of the State of Pennsylvania. It regards the expenditure of $622,000 as excessive and inimical to the public interest, whether such sum is expended on behalf of one candidate or a group of candidates in any primary election."

The report concluded, however, that "unless the expenditure of more than $600,000 in the primary on behalf of the ticket headed by Davis can be construed as in itself constituting corruption, in fairness to Senator Davis, as well as the other candidates in the Pennsylvania senatorial election, your committee desires to state that the evidence heard by it does not disclose any corruption for which he may be held personally responsible, nor has anything been revealed in the testimony before this committee relating to the conduct of the Pennsylvania senatorial campaign reflecting upon the honor and integrity of Senator Davis or any other senatorial candidate."

Davis Issues Statement.

Senator Davis immediately issued a statement declaring:

"I am very glad to find that the Nye report states that nothing has been revealed in the testimony before this committee relating to the conduct of the Pennsylvania senatorial campaign reflecting upon my honor and integrity.

"That nails one lie. It was charged that I received $10,000 as a campaign contribution not reported by me from the President of the Celotex Co. This charge was investigated by the Nye committee and found to be utterly false.

"The lobby story contained in a metropolitan newspaper came from the same source, it is of the same character with the same lack of foundation, and investigation will disclose that it has been instigated by the same malicious political enemies."

Report Signed by Four Members.

The report was signed by four of the five committee members—Senators Nye and Dale, Vermont, Republicans; and Dill, Washington, and Wagner, New York, Democrats.

Senator Patterson (Republican), Missouri, the fifth member, filed a minority report in which he said the record established that Senator Davis was lawfully chosen and that there was none which would in any manner adversely affect his qualifications.

Cutter Goes to Aid Of Helpless Ship

Seminole's Fuel Pumps Fail 65 Miles Southeast of Cape Henry.

Norfolk, Va., March 3 (A.P.).—Coast Guard headquarters received a message today saying the United States Shipping Board steamship Seminole was helpless about 65 miles southeast of Cape Henry because of trouble with her fuel pump.

The Coast Guard cutter Mascoutin, dispacthed to her aid, was expected to get in touch with the disabled ship this morning.

The Seminole is an oil burner, 402 feet over all, 74 feet beam and 31 feet deep. Tampa is given as her home port. She is said to be out of New York bound for Australian ports, but due to make a call at Port Arthur, Tex., before sailing for the Antipodes.

ACT EXTENDS RIGHTS OF MARRIED WOMEN

Hoover Gets Legislation to Assure Their Citizenship, Despite Alien Mates.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to assure American women they would not forfeit their citizenship in marriage regardless of the race or nationality of their husbands was laid yesterday on President Hoover's desk.

It was approved by Congress after advocates said it would remove "the last remaining discriminations against women" in United States nationality laws.

A delegation was dispatched to the White House by the National Woman's Party to bring the bill to President Hoover's attention, as soon as the House adopted a Senate-approved conference report on the measure by Representative Cable (Republican), Ohio.

The action ended a nine-year campaign for the legislation. Women's organizations united in support of it. Muna Lee, secretary of the Woman's Party, said "It will be greatly helpful in our campaign for removal of discriminations in international law."

The bill provides specifically that "a woman citizen of the United States shall not cease to be a citizen by reason of her marriage, unless she makes a formal renunciation."

It permits women who have lost citizenship by marriage to an alien ineligible for citizenship to be naturalized. It declares that any woman who was a citizen at birth shall not be denied naturalization on account of her race.

The Woman's Party cabled Alice Paul, in Geneva, of the bill's approval. Miss Paul is now preparing, with a committee appointed by the League of Nations, recommendations on the subject of women's nationality, to be considered at the September session of the league.

New Mart Opens For Wheat Trade

Spirited Interest Marks Opening of System in New York.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Spirited trading marked the inauguration of a bonded wheat futures market today by the New York Produce Exchange and at the close of the market it was estimated nearly 1,000,000 bushels had changed hands. The opening of the new market was preceded by a formal ceremony presided over by H. L. Bodman, president of the Produce Exchange. Charles Kerrigan, assistant to Mayor James J. Walker who was unable to attend, also spoke.

The trading floor was crowded with guests representing practically all of the financial and commodity exchanges in New York. A luncheon followed the opening and congratulatory telegrams were received from many stock and commodity exchanges in both the United States and Canada.

For the present trading will be confined to contracts for future delivery on the basis of delivery at Buffalo of bonded Canadian wheat.

MILK PRICES FACE GOVERNMENT PROBE

Action Ordered as Result of Senate's Inquiry Into Food Costs.

(Associated Press.)

An investigation of the price of milk throughout the United States is planned by the Justice Department. This action has been determined upon as a result of the Senate inquiry into food prices which resulted in a finding that in some cases the lower cost of producing milk had not been extended to the consumer.

The department announced yesterday the investigation would be begun immediately, but detailed plans were not made public. It said an investigation of bread started last summer had resulted in lower prices in Washington and other cities.

An inquiry into the retail prices of meat products also has been made. Much of the information obtained was turned over to the Senate food committee.

Wheat and Bread Prices.

Meanwhile economists of the Agriculture Department announced that in general there was a marked tendency for wheat and bread prices to "go up and down together."

Bread prices were found by the department to lag somewhat behind the price of wheat, reaching a peak later, "and declining longer and somewhat more slowly than wheat prices."

The economists found that the widening of the spread between wheat and flour prices and between flour and bread prices during the war was associated with increases in wages, rents and other costs, and that there still was a relationship to the higher price level maintained since the war. Factors contributing to the wider spread, the department said, include increased freight rates on flour.

Effect of Competition.

"Presumably," the report continued, "higher wage rates are largely responsible. But the possibility of increased costs due to the development of 'service competition' should not be lost sight of."

The statement added that "changes in prices in the individual cities certainly suggest that in any given city the price of bread is likely to be quite as dependent upon wars and other factors pertaining to the status of competition in the individual cities, as it is dependent upon the price of wheat or of flour."

It was pointed out that if a baker followed the general practice of making 62 loaves of bread from flour obtained from one bushel of wheat, and if the entire reduction in wheat prices was reflected in bread prices, wheat would have to drop 62 cents a bushel to effect a 1-cent reduction per pound loaf of bread.

"There are, of course," the report added, "other costs involved, and changes in those may justify greater or less declines than would result from declining wheat and flour prices."

New Regulations For Signs Planned

Committee to e Named by Commissioners to Draft Billboard Set.

A committee will be named by the District Commissioners as soon as the billboard measure becomes a law to study the act and to draft an entirely new set of sign regulations as a basis for a public hearing.

Upon the recommendations of Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the engineering department, Maj. John C. Gotwals yesterday approved the appointment of such a committee to be composed of Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner; John W. Oehmann, inspector of buildings; Mr. Brennan, and a representative from both the corporation counsel's office and the Metropolitan Police Department.

Other recommendations given approval are the licensing of all persons or firms engaged in outdoor display advertising, distribution of pamphlets carrying the new regulations to all police precincts, the making of each building inspector a sign inspector as well, and the elevation of the present sign inspector to the title of "general inspector of signs," whose duties shall be to represent the building inspector's office in court cases, to direct the sign inspectors, and to cooperate with the police in enforcement.

Civil War. The letter has been in his possession since then, but trace of it became lost. Mrs. Fish, who remembered seeing the letter when she was a small girl, rediscovered it a short time ago when she was going through letters and papers after her mother's death.

The letter reads:

"Mount Vernon, May 20th, '82.

"The situation of my health, my dear sir, being yet in such a state as renders father efforts absolutely necessary to reestablish it, have by the advice of many physicians, and the strenuous interposition of those of my friends who have my future happiness at heart, concluded to leave this part of the world, and try the effects of the sea air and climates of the West Indies, and expect to imbark from this tomorrow, in a vessel from Alexandria.

"The attachment which formed for Your amiable Daughter has been the only insurmountable difficulty why I have not before made the experiment, everything that impedes so desirable a union can not be lamented, and as the situation of my health is, I hope, the only interruption to it nothing in my power shall be left unessayed to effect it and on a reliance that kind Providence will crown my efforts with success, shall be induced to persevere with a daily hope of seeing or hearing from You declined until the last moment, writing.

"I beg you to offer my most affectionately to Your amiable sons who will pardon my not writing the family of Study, Mrs. and Miss Stith and all friends and I beg to be kindly remembered to with the sincerest good wishes for your health and happiness. I subscribe myself

"Very Sincerely
"Yours
"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Mr. Earle expressed a wish before his death that the letter be given to the War Relic Society of Amherst College if it was found.

Richmond, Va., March 3 (A.P.).—A letter written from Mount Vernon in 1782 to Col. Burwell Bassett, of Richmond, and signed "George Washington," could not have been written by Gen. Washington, the Virginia Historical Society said today when informed that such a letter had been found among family papers by Mrs. Milton Fish, of Uxbridge, Mass.

The letter found in Massachusetts spoke of affection for Col. Bassett's daughter, and this, the Virginia Historical Society said, indicates that it may have been written by one of the younger Washingtons.

"It is impossible that the letter discovered in Massachusetts could have been written by Gen. Washington," said W. G. Stanard, secretary of the Virginia society. "Washington and Col. Bassett were brothers-in-law and Washington frequently stopped with him in Richmond.

"Gen. Washington married the widow Custis in 1759, and Col. Bassett married her sister, a Miss Dandridge. Gen. Washington's wife was living at the time the letter was written.

"From its tone, speaking in terms of affection for Col. Bassett's daughter, it apparently was written by one of the younger Washingtons."

First Europe to U. S. Plane Is Brought to Smithsonian

Machine Which Carried Baron Von Huenefeld and Col. Fitzmaurice Across Atlantic Ocean Will Be Displayed Here for Three Years.

The airplane, Bremen, first to make an East-to-West crossing of the Atlantic Ocean, arrived here last night from New York City, where it has been on exhibition in the Grand Central Terminal. The famous craft will be placed in the Smithsonian Institution where Col. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis now rests.

The Bremen, piloted on its epoch-making flight by the late Baron Guenther von Huenefeld and Col. James H. Fitzmaurice, was dismanteled early yesterday in New York and placed aboard motor trucks arriving here shortly before midnight. Packed in large cases, the plane was stored in one of the Smithsonian buildings to await the completion of improvements now being made in the Aircraft Building.

C. W. Mitman, head curator of mechanical and mineral technology at the institution, said yesterday that the craft would be placed on exhibition in the Aircraft Building about the 1st of May, when a new sprinkler system now being installed in the strucure, is completed.

The airplane is the property of the New York Museum of Science and Industry and the New York City Museum, having been presented to them by Baron von Huenefeld following the cross-Atlantic flight.

Lack of adequate space for displaying the ship, made it necessary to place it in the Grand Central Terminal. The plane will remain on exhibition here for a period of three years, until available space is made in the New York Museum.

NEW NAVAL ACCORD LAUDED BY BRIAND

French-Italian Agreement Is Termed Devoid of Any Bitterness.

Paris, March 3 (U.P.).—Aristide Briand, foreign minister, in an exclusive statement to the United Press today, paid high tribute to the terms of the new tripower naval accord arranged by the urgent mediation of Great Britain.

"The finest tribute that I can pay to the naval agreement is that it did not leave bitterness in the hearts of any of the signers," Briand said. "When the terms are known, it will be seen that France passed no opportunity to realize an accord with Italy conforming to the sentiments of the two peoples.

"The successful termination of our naval differences had created an atmosphere which permits of the hope for a rapid and favorable solution of other Franco-Italian problems which never were gravely oppdsed by our peoples."

Premier Pierre Laval also paid tribute to the efforts of the foreign minister, and the other diplomats, and said:

"I am perfectly satisfied with the accord and believe that the French people and parliament will happily approve when they know the terms."

During debate in the chamber of deputies on the foreign affairs budget, Briand said: "The naval accord represents another step in the general direction of total world disarmament. Italy must be praised for its unselfish role.

"The conclusion of naval agreement is merely a prelude to the rapid conclusion of all Franco-Italian naval problems, including the 30-year discussion of the status of Italians in Tunisia and on the African frontiers."

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS AT PARLEY

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Alfred E. Smith, the party's presidential candidate in 1928, before a meeting yesterday of committeemen and party leaders to talk over finances and policies.

FULL DISCUSSION OF DRY LAW IN COMMITTEE URGED BY SMITH

meeting stated, namely, that it is called for the purpose of reporting our accomplishments since the last meeting, discussing future policies and finances."

Meeting Will Be Open.

Chairman Raskob announced that the committee's meeting would be an open one, with newspaper reporters present. In view of this, the country is going to know how the Democratic chieftains stand on prohibition and other questions regardless of whether any definite recommendations are adopted. To use a word that is a favorite with Smith, the committee will leave behind it a "record," and this will be for all to see, including those who will attend the next national convention.

That there is no love between Chairman Raskob and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, is an open secret. The resolution adopted by the New York Democratic State committee late Monday was an evidence of the feud.

Hearkening to the rumors that Raskob planned to have a showdown on prohibition at tomorrow's meeting here, Roosevelt's friends on the State committee adopted a resolution urging that no such action be taken.

Would Avoid Prohibition.

Roosevelt's friends would rather that prohibition be soft-pedaled and that other issues—water power, for example—be stressed so that the governor might line up the drys who will be delegates to the next national convention.

If former Gov. Smith took sides between Raskob and Roosevelt in his press conference yesterday, it must be conceded that he went to the side of Raskob.

Commenting on the resolution adopted by the New York State committee, Smith said that, while he was not out of harmony with the committee, it looked to him as though "the members started to talk before they knew what they were talking about."

Calls Power Issue Secondary.

Some detected an anti-Roosevelt note in Mr. Smith's statement that he regarded the water power issue as of only "secondary importance." But in view of the way Mr. Smith said this, that would hardly be a fair interpretation. The 1928 nominee explained that the power issue is of such a technical nature that it is difficult to arouse people with it. On one occasion, he said, he had to tell an audience what was meant by horsepower.

Asked whether he thought prohibition would be the dominant issue, Mr. Smith said it was now too early to answer such a question. He added, however, that in his opinion the number of wets has grown considerably since 1928.

Rumors have it that Chairman Raskob favors one of two men for the nomination next year—Owen D. Young or Mr. Smith.

Whether the latter would take it is a question the answer to which lies in the future. Certainly no satisfactory answer came from Smith yesterday.

Smith Is Noncommittal.

All that he would say was what he had said before, something to the effect that he couldn't cross a bridge when he still was 17 miles away from it.

"But you are not out of politics, are you governor?" he was asked.

"Well, not all the way out," he replied with a grin.

He said that he thought the Democratic prospects for 1932 were very bright, adding that he had noticed a general dissatisfaction among the rank and file of voters.

Former Gov. Smith arrived in Washington around noontime on Mr. Raskob's private car, and went directly to the Mayflower. There he talked not only to Mr. Raskob, but to Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee, and, to Norman Mack, Democratic national committeeman from New York. The latter, by the way, was not present at Albany when the State committee adopted its resolution Monday. Moreover, it is understood that he was not in favor of such a resolution.

Not Sure of Remaining.

Mr. Smith said that he was not sure whether he would remain here for the meeting of the national committee tomorrow, but he gave the impression that he would. When he agreed to attend, he said, he thought that two other former nominees—John W. Davis and James Cox—would be here. Cox is coming, he said, but Davis has said that illness will prevent his attendance.

While Smith was holding forth at the Mayflower, various Democratic senators at the Capitol were demanding that economic rehabilitation of the country be made the dominant issue of 1932.

"This is no time to be setting up straw men relating to the wet and dry issue, to religious or to racial issues, when men and women are starving," said Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, a wet.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, former Gov. Smith's running mate in 1928, said that the Republican leaders still were trying to make it appear that the country is prosperous.

Edward P. Costigan, senator-elect from Colorado, warned against allowing prohibition to be made a partisan issue by the Democratic national committee. Senator Morrison, of North Carolina, issued the same warning.

SOVIET RECOGNITION IS ASKED BY BORAH

Senator Urges Action in Interest of Peace and Economic Restoration.

(Associated Press.)

Recognition of the Russian Government was called for in the Senate yesterday by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee in the interest of world peace and economic restoration.

In an analysis of the Russian problem, the Idaho senator conceded faults in the soviet form of government and mistakes by her rulers, but said the Russian people would not return to the old regime and deserved to take their place in the family of nations.

Borah made no attempt to bring up his resolution proposing recognition, and his speech drew a reply from Senator Robinson, of Indiana, a Republican member of the foreign relations committee, denouncing the Soviet government.

"I am opposed," said Senator Robinson, "to entering into any partnership with a government that seeks to destroy my Government—this Government that has done more for the average man than all the other governments put together."

After reviewing the twelve years of Russia since the revolution, Borah frankly discussed the differences of view between the Soviets and Americans on family life, religion and property.

"The three great instincts of mankind," said Borah, "are religion, the family and property. Let us admit that those who govern and dominate Russia are against all of these. The government may be, but not the people. We stand for all of these. Let us admit an irreconcilable conflict. Let us concede that government would exile all of these and that we would foster all, as we have.

"But how deep is our faith? Are we afraid capitalism will break down if we come in contact with Communism? Have we lost faith in our civilization? Have we lost confidence in our institutions? Are we afraid that the family institution will break to pieces? Is our religion of that feeble sort that we dare not bring it in contact with those who say there is no God?

Holds No Fear.

"With reference to these things I have no fear. In the French revolution religion, the family and property were trampled over. The French people came back, and the Russian people will come back. As a people they are a home-loving, deeply religious people.

"I would establish normal relations with the Russian government. In doing so I would not indorse that government or the communistic theory, but I would have no fear of contact with it."

Borah argued that it must be assumed that the Russian people are going to succeed in their new form of government, although he believed "radical changes" were necessary and must eventually come.

Calls Present System Unfair.

He argued that the present system was unfair to American business men of moderate means who have no governmental representatives to assist them in Russian trade. He conceded there might be some convict labor and some enforced labor in Russia, but that it was a small proportion of the total and no more than in any other country.

Borah criticized the Treasury Department for excluding Russian lumber importations but permitting importations of manganese.

WICKERSHAM DATA IN SENATE CITES GANG GRAFT IN CHICAGO

Several hours later the report upon Colorado was submitted, and late in the evening the Illinois survey reached the Capitol.

Apparently fearing reprisal by Chicago gunmen, the author of the Illinois report, an employe of the Prohibition Bureau, signed the assumed name of "Guy L. Nichols." His information has now been in the hands of the Federal authorities for nearly a year.

The report characterized Capone as "Alphonso Capone, alias Al Brown, alias Scarface, vice, gambling, booze and beer."

Little was said of his personal activities, most of the details being those of "the Capone outfit."

Many Gangsters Now Dead.

The list of alleged gangsters, many of them now dead, was obtained from the secret files of the Chicago Crime Commission. Each name bore such entry is "dynamiter and bomb thrower," "slugger and gunman," or "booze and beer."

More than a score of pictures of reputed gangsters and their hangouts, many of them taken by "Nichols," were included. One of these was a snapshot of a hotel in Chicago.

"The entire second floor, of some 50 rooms, is occupied by the Capone outfit," the investigators said. "Guards are stationed on this floor and no one has access thereto unless his identity is satisfactory.

Conference Chairs Armored.

"Lieut. Biahl, of the State attorney's office, in April, 1930, your investigator is reliably informed, made a raid and discovered on the second floor a large conference room, No. 230, with a long table, chairs reinforced with armor-plated backs.

"Large quantities of poison-dipped bullets, but no guns nor records, were found. Neither were any of the Capone outfit about. There was strong indication of a 'tip-off.'"

Disregard of prohibition was declared so flagrant in and around New York City that 99 per cent of all criminal cases instituted there arose from this law, the report said.

Bootlegging a Piker Racket.

Throughout large parts of Louisiana, the report asserted, little effort was made to enforce the law, while in New Orleans gambling was said to be so active as to make bootlegging a "piker racket."

In New Jersey liquor interests were described as so powerful as to "partly enslave" the political forces. The report estimated it would take ten years to rid the State of this power so that prohibition could be "given a chance."

The report upon conditions in Louisiana was prepared during 1930 by Frank Buckley, former counsel for the Prohibition Bureau.

"New Orleans stands as a powerful magnet to those who seek and those who supply extraordinary pleasures," he said. "Race tracks, gambling resorts, fight clubs—all manner of 'rackets' that catch the fancy of the sporting gentry and easy spenders flourish there."

He described visiting three gambling places in which he said there were "two ominous steel plated inclosures, fitted with machine gun slits and actually manned by keen-eyed gentry who serve such weapons" from lofty perches on the walls.

"Liquor is not handled in any manner by gambling resorts of the type described," he said. "Fear of disaster in the form of a Federal padlock is the deterrent. Then, too, gaming revenues that run from ten to forty thousand dollars nightly make the rum racket of the piker variety—by comparison."

The New York report, prepared by Palmer Canfield, former legal supervisor for the Prohibition Bureau, dealt principally with statistics pertaining to prohibition. He asserted, however, there was a "significant and hopeful factor" in the cooperation furnished by some State officials.

Canfield described the near-swamping of the Federal judicial machinery in New York City by "bartenders in speakeasies, waiters in night clubs, cabarets and so-called restaurants." He said over 90 per cent were permitted to plead guilty and pay a small fine.

Hits "Cafeteria Cook."

"This 'cafeteria court,'" he said, "has been held once a week, at which time about 200 defendants plead guilty."

He added that if all had to plead guilty and demanded a jury trial "all of the Federal judges in the district would not be sufficient to handle all the cases."

Canfield also wrote the New Jersey report.

The Colorado report, written by Frank C. Dezendorf, former prohibition attorney, quoted the prohibition administrator there as saying Denver was the "driest place in the country." Conditions in Pueblo were described in many ways as unsatisfactory, but there was little criticism of enforcement in other sections.

"The prohibition administrator," he added, "said that he does not get any cooperation from the State enforcement forces, and the enforcement office said the administrator does not request help."

New Dry Measure Urged.

Simultaneously a measure to amend the Volstead act, making the possession of liquor in the home unlawful and placing "the burden of proof" upon the possessor was introduced by Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas.

Senator Sheppard said in a statement his bill would strike out language "being interpreted in some quarters to permit the possession of liquor in the home for use exclusively in the home."

The measure would provide that "the possession of liquor by any person not legally permitted under this title to possess liquor shall be prima facie evidence that such liquor is kept for the purpose of being sold, bartered, exchanged * * *."

He said liquor acquired before prohibition would not be included.

Stafford County Bar Honors Judge

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., March 3.—An impressive tribute to the memory of the late Judge R. H. L. Chichester, who for fifteen years served as judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, and was later elevated to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, will be made at Stafford Courthouse March 12, when a portrait of him, the gift of lawyers who practiced at the Stafford County bar while the jurist was on the bench, will be unveiled.

Members of the State Supreme Court of Appeals, prominent attorneys and friends of the late Judge Chichester are expected to attend the unveiling. William W. Butzner, Fredericksburg lawyer, will present the portrait, which will be received by Judge Frederick W. Coleman, Judge Chichester's successor, and present circuit court judge.

Judge Chichester, a native of Stafford County, died February 3, 1930, after he had held every judicial position in the Virginia system of jurisprudence, beginning as Commonwealth's attorney and rising to a place on the highest Virginia tribunal.

BORLAND REFUNDS WILL HAVE TO WAIT

Several Thousand Claimants Informed Congress Must Act First.

The several thousand claimants for refunds under the new Borland law will have to wait until the next session of Congress for their checks.

This was revealed yesterday when Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, showed copies of letters which are to be sent to each property holder who contends that he was assessed unfairly under the old Borland law.

The letters, which will be sent out as soon as the Commissioners formally adopt an order instructing Tax Assessor William P. Richards to make new assessments, state that it will probably be months before these assessments will be available.

"If the amounts paid on assessments to which you refer exceed the amounts of the new assessments, the excess will be refunded when appropriation therefor is made by Congress," the form letter states. "It is hoped that these necessary appropriations for refunds may be presented to Congress at its session beginning in December."

Mr. Garges explained that the District has no funds which can be applied to the payment of these repayments.

Between $300,000 and $500,000 will probably be repaid as a result of the new assessments, Mr. Richards estimated recently. New assessments will have to be made on about 12,000 pieces of property.

Hagerstown, Md., March 3.—Chester A. G. Smith, 42, was convicted of murder in the first degree without recommendation tonight by a jury which was out slightly over an hour. Smith was charged with shooting to death Mrs. Annie Smith, 33, his former housekeeper at Boonsboro, near here, last November 21.

Either the death penalty or life imprisonment may be imposed after discretion of the two judges who presided.

HALF-HOLIDAY BILL SIGNED BY HOOVER

Congratulatory Messages Are Sent to Sponsors of Movement.

help forward the movement to improve working conditions in private industry.

N. P. Alifas, president of District No. 44, of the International Association of Machinists, and the legislative agent for the international association, joined with Mr. Steward in praising Congress and President Hoover for enactment of the law.

Generosity of Congress.

"The kindness and generosity of Congress and the President, displayed in this new law," Mr. Alifas said, "will have far-reaching and strong appeal to all labor throughout the country and particularly to organized labor.

"The move by the Government is particularly pleasing because it affects workers who are in private business and industry. We have worked hard for this law and members of Congress and the President have approved of the reasons advanced in support of the measure."

Some 2,000 workers in the Washington Navy Yard will be affected by the law and many hundreds of other workers in other navy yards throughout the country also will be benefited. In Washington employes in the Government Printing Office and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who are members of the union represented by Mr. Alifas, also will be benefited.

Fire Department Schedule.

There was some talk yesterday that the new law might upset the operation of the Police and Fire Departments of the District, inasmuch as the half-day Saturday was made to apply to employes of the District as well as to Federal employes.

This point may be raised, but it will not find a sympathetic ear among District officials. Both the Police and Fire Departments, officials point out, have been, at their own will, considered as separate entities, distinct from the usual Government employe in legislation in the past. Obviously it was not the intent of Congress, in enacting the half-holiday on Saturday law, they believe, to include the policemen and firemen of the District.

Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, who has immediate supervision of the Police and Fire Departments, said he had not thought of the new law applying to these two departments and did not expect it would be applied, although he had not considered the question with any of his legal advisers.

To Study Question.

William W. Bride, corporation counsel, refused to say anything for publication on the question, declaring that he had not been consulted by the Commissioners nor had time to study the question, but, he, too, made it plain that privately he believed the new law would not upset the present personnel arrangements of the two departments.

Whatever jubilation there may have been among Government employes over the victory for the Saturday half-holiday given by President Hoover's signature, that was added to by formal statements of their representatives. Not only Messrs. Steward and Alifas, but other groups joined in formally thanking the President and Congress for the new law.

The League of American Civil Service, headed by Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, was one of these. The league sent a basket of flowers to President Hoover and other bouquets of flowers to Representative Frederick Dallinger (Republican), Massachusetts, and to Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, and to Senator Wesley Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, who brought the bill up for consideration and passage on the floor of the Senate after it had been passed by the House when Speaker Longworth recognized Representative Lehlbach (Republican), New Jersey, to bring the measure up for consideration under suspension of the rules.

Gratitude Is Expressed.

Appreciation of the efforts made by Luther C. Steward and Miss Gertrude M. McNally, as president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, toward passage of the half-holiday bill was expressed by a delegation from the Federal employes' unions.

Both were presented with many baskets of flowers in recognition of their successful work. The delegation which called on them was headed by John W. Ginder, president of the District Federation of Federal Employes' Unions, among others.

Submarine Plane To Be Given Tests

New Type of Aircrafe Designed for Use on Submersibles in Navy Forces.

Pilots at the Anacostia Naval Air Station yesterday began a series of tests to last two weeks, on the Navy-Loening midget collapsible plane designed for use from a submarine.

The tiny plane, fitted with a 110-horsepower motor, was give nits first tests in speed over the measured course extending from the Air Station down the oPtomac River to determine its effectiveness at various speeds and its climbing ability. Various other tests will provide for storage in an 8-foot tube in a submarine. Three minutes is allowed for dismantlement.

Considerable interest has been shown in service circles in the new craft, which its advocates claim will increase the effectiveness of submarine infinitely. While observation will be the principal use of the planes, if they are added to the undersea fighting units, it is planned to mount a gun on the aircraft for defensive use.

Defense of Pitts In Suit Attacked

Answer Asserts That District Jail May Not Be Used to Evade Court.

Alleging that the District Jail is not a sanctuary in which a man may hide and evade court process, Attorney R. H. McNeill yesterday filed with Justice Wendell P. Stafford his objections to the motion of G. Bryan Pitts to quash service in a civil suit.

Pitts, under sentence of fourteen years and now in the District Jail awaiting an appeal, claimed that he could not be served with any court process since he was a subject of the court.

The reply was made in a number of civil actions. Attorney McNeill appeared for Alma Morton, of 600 Twentieth street northwest, who claimed she had been sold notes of the F. former president, under false pre-H. Smith Co., of which Pitts was tenses.

FATAL BRIDGE GAME TESTIMONY HALTED

Prosecution Is Attempting to Impeach Witnesses of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett.

Kansas City, Mo., March 3 (A.P.). Presentation of defense evidence at the trial of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, accused of the bridge game slaying of her husband, was halted today to permit the prosecution's attempt to impeach defense witnesses.

The witnesses were Mrs. Alice Adkins, 67, mother of the defendant, who collapsed during the noon recess, and Mrs. Mayme Hofman, participant in the Bennett's last bridge game.

James R. Page, prosecutor, who contended Mrs. Adkins and Mrs. Hofman had repudiated by their testimony statements made to officers following the slaying of John G. Bennett in his fashionable apartment, called his former stenographer, Mrs. Sam Wiener, to the stand.

Signatures Are Identified.

The witness identified signatures of Mrs. Hofman and Mrs. Adkins affixed to statements she said were taken from them by George Charno, former assistant prosecutor. Mrs. Wiener said Mrs. Hofman had inserted penned corrections in the statement before signing it. Recalled for cross-examination, Mrs. Hofman denied altering the statement as originally written.

During cross-examination, which was followed by her sudden illness, Mrs. Adkins told the prosecutor she was in such mental confusion the morning after Bennett's death she did not remember what she said, or the circumstances under which she signed the paper.

Page was attempting to show that Mrs. Hofman and the defendant's mother had changed their stories to fit in with the accidental shooting version of the defense, by testifying they did not witness the shooting and leaving Mrs. Bennett the only person able to recount the actual details when she takes the stand.

Along with his attack on the credibility of defense witnesses Page sought to overthrow the defense theory that Bennett was slain accidentally while grappling with his wife.

Distance of Shots.

James A. Reed, defense counsel previously said powder burns on the shirt Bennett wore at his death, showed the shots had been fired at not more than 12 inches distance.

The prosecution alleges the defendant chased Bennett through the apartment and shot him from a distance as he attempted to reach the front door, two shots going wild before Mrs. Bennett got the range.

At the direction of Page two police officers and Edward Hickman, gunsmith, tested the former senator's theory in the gallows room Hickman then took the stand, explaining shots had been fired into broadcloth at ranges from 3 inches to 25 feet.

Under Page's questioning he described the burn about the bullet hole made by a shot fired at 24 inches as similar to the burn about a bullet hole in Bennett's shirt. This discoloration has been described by Reed as a "powder burn" and by the prosecution as a "bullet burn."

Progress of the trial was interrupted frequently by arguments of counsel.

Scientists Study Speedy Increase in Cancer Cells

Public Health Service May Determine Factors Causing Death.

(Associated Press.)

An experiment which may furnish a clew to why cancer cells multiply so much more rapidly than normal body cells has just been completed by two scientists of the Public Health Service.

This abnormal speed of increase is essentially the reason why cancer is fatal.

The experiment showed that an amoeba, which is one type of single living cell, multiplies much more readily when stimulated by a chemically allied glutathione. Dr. H. W. Chalkley explained yesterday cancer tissues contain a great deal of glutathione, possibly more than any other type of tissue.

The test was performed by Dr. Chalkley and Dr. Carl Voegtlin, both on the staff of the National Institute of Health, a branch of the Public Health Service. So far as known they are the first to use glutathione in such an experiment in its pure form, Dr. Chalkley said.

They have not yet discovered whether glutathione is what stimulates cancer cells to multiply at such high speed.

The amoeba, although a single cell, is actually an individual animal capable of taking care of itself. Cells of the human body and cancer cells are more specialized, each performing a specific job and depending on the cooperation of other cells for their well-being. All three multiply in the same way, by splitting into complete new cells.

Prof. Voegtlin and Dr. Chalkley found they could keep specimens of the amoeba alive without food for several days in a salt solution. By starving the amoebae, they knew that glutathione alone would be the cause of increase in division that might occur when it was added to the solution.

When they added a very small amount of glutathione to the solution, 200 per cent more amoeba specimens divided.

DR. CARL VOEGTLIN.

Use of English Losing Ground in Porto Rico

The use of the English language is diminishing rather than increasing in Porto Rico, according to a statement made by Lewis H. Fisher, of the Civil Service Commission, who has just returned from an inspection trip to the island.

"A few years ago," Mr. Fisher said, "English was taught in all grade schools in Porto Rico, beginning with the first grade and continuing throughout, but now it is not taught to children below the fifth grade, and language seems slowly to be disappearing both in social and governmental circles." He praised the work which Theodore Roosevelt is doing in the country, and said that tht natives believe that he has the interest of the country at heart.

STEEL IS "ALIVE" FOR ONE MOMENT

Has Many Properties of Living Things When at White Heat.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—There is a fraction of a second in its white-hot making when steel has many properties of living things.

In this instant it is so sensitive that it can be made to cool at the rate of 20,000 degrees a second.

It "breathes" after a queer fashion. It develops a skin. Faster than thought it swells or contracts as all of its atoms do a military about-face maneuver.

These rapid-fire transformations and the heat treatments to control them are brought out in a new code compiled by Dr. Herbert J. French, metallurgist of the International Nickel Co. and formerly of the Bureau of Standards.

His code has received the Henry M. Howe gold medal of the American Society for Steel Treating.

The ancient lore which required a fine sword blade to be tempered in the blood of a slave was based on scientific fact, Dr. French says.

Blood is salty, and certain brine solutions today are standard practice for tempering. Water spray gives the fastest cooling, still air the slowest, and between, in the order named, rank caustic soda, brine, plain water and oil. Control rather than speed is all important, according to the metallurgist.

One form of control is necessary for "breathing," which is an absorption of oxygen by the sizzling iron atoms. Another gets rid of gases which are given off in cooling and tend to form a skin to interfere with further proper cooling.

In the about-face dance of atoms the make-up of the iron crystals is altered and the size of the steel changes.

Of all the volume alterations, this one, says Dr. French, is the most important to control. The controls are temperature, time, cooling materials and the manner in which they are directed against the hot steel.

SLAIN WOMAN'S DAUGHTER IS FOUND DEAD FROM GAS

daughter lying unconscious in the kitchen shortly after 4 o'clock today when she returned to the family home on White Horse pike. The jets of a gas stove were open.

Mrs. Bischoff summed police. First aid measures failed to revive the girl and she was taken to the hospital where she died a short time after being admitted.

Because of his official duties Mr. Bischoff is stationed at Lorton, Va., where he is in charge of the business administration of the District of Columbia Reformatory. He had been at the family home Sunday, where a New York detective had conferred with him in connection with the slaying of his former wife. In a letter sent here, Miss Gordon had accused Bischoff of "framing" her several years ago and causing her to be "railroaded" on a vice charge. A few days after the letter was written, Vivian Gordon was found dead in a thicket in a New York City park with a knotted cord around her neck.

Mr. Bischoff denied any knowledge of his former wife's death, and the New York investigator said that "Bischoff is out of this case."

Benita Bischoff was nine years old when Mr. Bischoff was granted a divorce from Miss Gordon here, in 1924, on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. A court order gave him custody of his daughter, but subsequently, he said, his former wife had tried to obtain possession of her.

Things began to "break" today in the Vivian Gordon murder mystery, but the significance of developments was screened from public view.

District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin, "sure-fire prosecutor" of the Bronx, dashed into the secret grand jury room, his hat askew.

"Things are beginning to break, fellows," he called to reporters. "We can see a little bit ahead now."

A short time later he dashed out and away on being informed a small coupe, for which the city was combed, had been found near Central Park.

He failed to reveal what the coupe had to do with Miss Gordon, racketeer and alleged blackmail artist, whose garroted body was tossed last week from a speeding automobile into a Bronx thicket.

Soon after the coupe was found its owner, Harold Doman, was asked to McLaughlin's office to be questioned about his relations with Miss Gordon. Doman, a partly bald, stocky man in his middle thirties, formerly lived at an upper West Side apartment hotel, where an attendant said he had many men callers. The attendant remembered no woman resembling Miss Gordon.

A long list of witnesses, many of them with conflicting stories, were summoned today before the grand jury. Among them was Leonore Halsey, Cuban dancer, with Harlem "hot spot" associations, who said she rode in a limousine with two stiff-shirted men and Miss Gordon on the night of the murder.

American Couple Visit Titled Sire in England

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Wallop, of Sheridan, Wyo., returned on the liner Mauretania today after a visit in England with Mr. Wallop's parents, the Earl and Countess of Portsmouth.

The Earl of Portsmouth spent the greater part of his life as a Wyoming cattleman. Four years ago he succeeded to the title of his brother and moved to Devonshire, England, taking his eldest son along. The younger was left to manage the Wyoming ranch.

Attitude of New York Delegation Approved

Albany, N. Y., March 3 (A.P.).—The action of the New York Democratic State committee in formally opposing any consideration of national issues at the forthcoming meeting of the national organization, Gov. Roosevelt said today, has brought favorable comment from Democrats throughout the country.

Mr. Roosevelt had no comment to offer on the statement of former Gov. Smith in Washington.

Do the Fat Love Fat?

If not, there is small excuse for excess in these scientific days

Science has determined that excess fat is largely due to a weakened thyroid gland. That gland secretion is a premier factor in nutrition. It helps turn food into fuel and energy which otherwise goes to fat.

After countless experiments on animals and human beings, the consensus of opinion is that this lacking factor must be fed. Physicians the world over now accept that doctrine and employ it. As a result, excess fat has disappeared by tons in late years. And without starvation, over-exercise or harmful drugs.

Marmola prescription tablets appeared on the verge of this discovery. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to accord with modern science. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. And nobody needs be told that excess fat has largely disappeared.

Ask your friends who know what Marmola does. You cannot do that by starvation. Look about you and see the revolution it has wrought. Why double a help which, for 24 years, has done what Marmola has done?

Go get a box. Read the book in it, containing the formula and all reasons for results. When your weight comes down and new vim appears, you will know why the results are good.

Don't wait longer. Marmola costs only $1 a box at your drug store. The purpose is to correct an abnormal condition. Learn what it means to you in new beauty, new health and vim. Then please tell others.

MONKEY SHINES FILL HUNTERS WITH GRIEF

Policemen Trail Man With Bananas, but He Stays Just in Front.

ODD EQUIPMENT FOUND

Chicago, March 2.—Maybe it's legitimate monkey business, but so far as Sergt. Edward Nealon and Patrolman Ed Barrow are concerned it's just monkey business—plain monkey business.

The perspiring and weary policemen parked themselves on a curb at noon and laid down an odd assortment of equipment that included two tear bombs, a coiled piece of rope and a sack of bananas.

"Well," said Sergt. Nealon, with a tired look at the nicked branches of the trees aloft, "it ain't here, either."

"What ain't here?" asked a passerby, who had stopped to inspect the funny outlay of weapons.

"The monkey," said Sergt. Nealon wearily.

"What monkey?"

"That's just it—what monkey?" said the sergeant. "This morning we come to work and sit down to read the paper for a minute in quiet and peace. And what happens? The phone rings and somebody says there is a monkey on the loose in the trees over in Seventy-ninth street and that it's screeching and disturbing everybody and why don't we come over and catch it because it's probably cold.

"So Sergt. Maher sends us after him. Knowing monkeys a bit offhand, we take the rope and the bombs and the bananas—monkeys like bananas. So we go over there. There's no monkey. We call back to the station and says, 'There's no monkey here.' 'I know it,' says Sergt. Maher. 'We just got a call. He's over in Rhode Island avenue now.'

"So we hotfoot it over there. No monk. We call again. 'I know it's not there now,' says the sarge. 'We just got another call. He's three blocks west in front of 222 East Seventy-eighth now.' So we tail it over there. No monk.

"And here we are and the bum's gone again. I——"

"Listen," spoke up Policeman Barrow. "I gotta swell idea. He's going further west all the time. If we don't call again till late this afternoon maybe he'll be out in California somewhere and——"

"I hope it's the middle of the Pacific," said the sergeant, reaching for one of the bananas.

District to Pay $7,500 For Lot at New School

The District Commissioners yesterday approved a recommendation of the engineering department to purchase a tract of land adjoining the Lafayette School, now under construction at Broad Branch road and Oliver street northwest. The price is $7,500.

The lot has a house with colored occupants upon it, it was explained, and the price was consequently somewhat higher than that paid for other property for the school, which is to be for white pupils.

Couple Wedded 65 Years; Man Sorry

Would Not Marry Again, Says Grandfather, Aged 92.

Stanley, Wis., March 3.—Grandma and Grandpa Wilcox celebrated their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary here recently. Grandpa, who is Charles Wilcox, was 92 last November, and Angeline, his wife, was 85 in December. Grandpa fought with Company D, Twenty-sixth New York Regiment, in the Civil War.

"No grandpa and I never had a fight all the time we've been married," grandma replied to a question.

"Would I get married again if I had it to do over again? Well, sir—I don't know. That's hard to tell. Grandpa! Grandpa! The man wants to know if you would get married again if you had it to do over again!"

"Hey!" said grandpa, who is hard of hearing. "Get married again? I should say not!" And his cane thumped emphatically on the floor.

Guilty Conscience Tears Up Tickets

Woman Regrets Paying Only Half Fares for Two Grown Boys.

Manchester, N. H., March 3.—It was stated at the local office of the Boston & Maine Railroad that an elderly woman, quiet and unassuming, approached the ticket window and purchased from Guy E. Damag, ticket agent, a full fare ticket for Epping and two half-fare tickets for Raymond.

She put the Epping ticket in her pocketbook, then looking the agent straight in the eye, she tore up the half-fare tickets to Raymond. She explained that several years ago she rode on the train from Raymond to Manchester and had two little boys with her who were nearly 12 years of age but she did not pay fare for them. It was a case of setting a guilty conscience at rest.

A half-fare ticket to Raymond costs 32 cents.

3-CENT FARE ORDER IS ISSUED BY P. U. C.

ing a copy of the order. He had been present at the regular meeting of the commission Monday afternoon when the school fare problems were discussed, but he did not participate in yesterday's conferences.

"This order is certainly surprising in view of the action taken yesterday afternoon in favor of cash fares or tickets, at the option of the passenger," he said.

The announcement of alternative fares was made Monday afternoon by Herleigh H. Hartman, vice chairman, in the absence of Gen. Patrick. With the return of the chairman yesterday, however, the situation took on an entirely different aspect and Mr. Hartman forthwith declared that his announcement had been misunderstood.

Replies were dispatched yesterday afternoon to each of the three transportation lines that had written to ask for another hearing on school fares.

Ignore Traction Request.

While the commission declared that another hearing was not necessary, it ignored, both in its reply and in its order, the requests of the street car lines and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. that the adult fares be raised in order to make amends for anticipated losses.

In identic letters, signed by William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., and J. H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., the commission's attention was called to testimony introduced at the January 26 hearing to the effect that it cost the lines more than 6 cents to carry each passenger.

"We assume it is the purpose of the commission to consider, as a part of any order so fixing reduced fares for school children, that nature of and amount of increases in rates for adults made necessary thereby," the letters stated.

Thought 5 Cents Minimum.

The Washington Rapid Transit Co.'s letter, signed by E. D. Merrill, president, pointed out that at the time of the January hearing it was thought that the reduced fare legislation would provide a 5-cent rather than a 3-cent fare.

Consequently, it was stated, "the losses or increased expenses which will be incurred by this company by reason of such fare will be greatly accentuated." The bus line, it was added, expected the commission to provide some rule in its order preventing excessive losses to the company.

With a crop reported 32 per cent less than in 1929, California citrus growers received $135,000,000.

St. Paul, Minn.—"I used to be as tired when I got up in the morning as when I went to bed. I had fainting spells and palpitation. Of course it was my age. I read a Lydia E. UNPRECEDENTED SPENDING.

When Congress adjourns today it will leave an unprecedented record for peace time expenditures. During its three sessions the Seventy-first Congress has appropriated about $10,000,000,000 to finance the Government during the current and the next fiscal years. More than one-half of this vast sum was appropriated at the short session which closes today.

Economy has been sidetracked for relief legislation. Vast sums have been made available for construction of public buildings, improvement of rivers and harbors, flood control, and dozens of other projects. Congress has made a heroic effort to relieve the unemployed. It remains to be seen how much actual relief will be afforded by this acceleration of public works.

Drought relief required appropriations amounting to $65,000,000. The Farm Board was allowed an additional $150,000,000. Congress appropriated nothing to finance the billion dollar loan allowed to veterans of the World War. The cost of administering that piece of legislation must be borne by the Treasury through its current financing. In other words, it becomes an addition to the public debt. To obtain an accurate picture of the expenditures allowed by the expiring Congress the cost of veterans' loans should be added to the $10,000,000,000 total.

Were it not for the generous allowances for relief of the unemployed this orgy of spending would be harshly condemned. In the circumstances the public will probably postpone its criticism until the pinch of higher taxes is felt. A day of reckoning must come. While Congress has been spending more than it ever did before in peace time, the Federal revenue has been radically diminishing. A deficit of $500,000,000 is in prospect for the current year. Payments on the public debt have had to be suspended and it is probable that the debt will be increased this year.

A rapid increase in revenue can not be anticipated. The business depression has cut heavily into large incomes. It will take a long time to build Federal revenue up again to its former volume. An increase in taxes next winter appears to be certain.

Congress must devise ways of raising funds to meet an enormous deficit. The spree of spending is over, and the "morning-after" headache will soon begin to hurt.

THE INDIAN AGREEMENT.

Peace in India between the British administration and the Indian nationalists is in sight. A triumph is indicated for the human element in personal contact at historic Delhi. The viceroy, Lord Irwin, and Mahatma Gandhi met and talked, and the thing was done. Aside from the vexatious salt tax a very small percentage of India's millions know or care what all this trouble has been about. Taxing such a necessity as salt among a people as desperately poor as the masses of India has always seemed questionable policy, but, on the other hand, if the millions are to contribute at all to government support there are few channels through which, in their poverty, they can be reached.

Gandhi's first demand and victory was the abolition of this tax. The salt riots will cease, but picketing of foreign shops selling liquor and imported cloth, Gandhi insists, must go on. Likewise he demands the release of 50,000 followers who are in jail.

In return for these concessions the nationalists guarantee cooperation with the British in establishing constitutional government with the goal in sight of Premier MacDonald's promise of dominion status in qualified form for India.

Britain has a stupendous task in ruling India, with its population of one-fifth of the inhabitants of the earth, ignorant for the most part, divided among themselves by caste and religious prejudices that the western mind can not fathom, and speaking 220 vernaculars. The British rule is liberal in many particulars. Local revenues are by statute utilized only for government expenditures in India. Not a penny of Indian tax ever goes to England. The British navy is ready for the protection of India if necessary, but it costs India nothing. The government of India and the Indian Legislature settle India's tariffs. India is free to borrow money in England and buy railroad material in Germany, and does so. England claims no preferential rights for her nationals over other foreigners to enter and do business in India. Out of employes in the civil administration, high and low in India, comprising a million and a half, there are only 12,000 Europeans. Nearly three-fourths of the population is engaged in agriculture. Divided among hundreds of thousands of villages they live secluded lives, with little or no desire for learning, and bound to a routine of custom that is beyond the imagination of those who have not witnessed its deadening effect upon efforts to encourage better living conditions or begin the rudimentary training necessary for self-government.

The world will breathe easier if the understanding between England and the millions represented by Gandhi shall prove successful, and will voice the hope that India will move toward self-government as rapidly as the people can qualify for that destiny.

DEMOCRATIC STRATEGY.

If Mr. Raskob's call for a meeting of the Democratic national committee was primarily for the purpose of sounding out party feeling with reference to a declaration for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, he ought to be satisfied with the result. The opposition to a committee declaration on the subject has been prompt and emphatic. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith has helped to put a quietus upon the agitation by pointing out that the committee can not dictate policies to the party. Since it can not determine policies, it would be wise to forego the attempt, because the party in national convention might overrule the committee and make its manifesto ridiculous.

As the time draws nearer for a showdown on the prohibition question the Democratic party, like the Republican, begins to watch its step. The Jouett Shouses who would provoke a deadly feud between wet and dry Democrats are thrust into the background.

If the Democratic party is to cut a respectable figure in the presidential campaign of 1932 it must avoid a split between wet and dry members of the party. The wet majority can not have its way entirely. The shrewder leaders of the party recognize this fact, but the extremists on boths sides will probably be uncontrollable by the moderates. The wets will insist that the party can not win unless it comes out flatly for repeal; and the drys will block this move if they can.

The Democratic national committee can help this situation a little by remaining noncommittal. The problem can not be solved by silence, it is true, but indiscreet utterances at this time would merely inflame party differences and stir up quarrels which might develop into feuds before next summer.

It is to the best interest of the country that the Democratic party should be united in the campaign of 1932. The same observation applies to the Republican party. The country will suffer if the two big parties split into blocs on the prohibition question or any other question. Blocs in Congress are a curse to the country.

THE ATTACK ON SENATOR DAVIS.

After launching a move to deny a seat in the Senate to James J. Davis, former Secretary of Labor, and later threatening a drive to unseat him, the Nye committee has submitted a report absolving Senator Davis of any improper conduct. The evidence does not disclose any impropriety for which Senator Davis may be held personally responsible, the report says, nor has anything been revealed "reflecting upon the honor and integrity of Senator Davis or any other candidate."

The Nye committee by this report convicts itself. Senator Davis has been confronted with threats from Senator Nye ever since he took his seat at the beginning of the short session. Now Mr. Nye admits that his attacks were unjustified.

The Nye committee is "impressed" by the size of the expenditures in the Pennsylvania primary and election campaigns. The committee failed to find evidence that any great portion of the $622,000 spent was in behalf of Senator Davis. So it ignores the purpose of its inquiry and goes out of its jurisdiction to criticize Pennsylvania politics. It regards the expenditure of such an amount as "excessive and inimical to the public interest, whether such sum is expended on behalf of one candidate or a group of candidates." Apparently the committee needs to be reminded that the amount which Pennsylvania allows to be spent in State political campaigns is none of the Senate's business.

The Nye committee report is an attempt at face-saving. Apparently Mr. Nye had hoped to unseat Senator Davis without having investigated the facts in the case. When the committee was forced to the conclusion that Senator Davis had done nothing improper, a majority of the members decided to lecture the State officials of Pennsylvania on their campaign expenditures. The committee refused to "allocate" the expenditures of the Davis-Brown ticket to the individual candidates. This in itself is a good indication that the great bulk of the money went for the State ticket. But the Senate has no right to pass judgment on State campaigns.

The Nye committee makes no apology for wasting the public money. It gives no explanation of the reasons for its extravagance in traveling about the country. In this respect the committee's report is very disappointing.

A TARIFF OBJECT LESSON.

Congress has just given a demonstration of its inability to deal with a single tariff item that ought to be enlightening to the Democratic party. When the tariff was under revision last year the Democrats attempted to destroy the flexible provision under which the President may adjust rates on recommendations from the Tariff Commission. In its place they sponsored a scheme to have the Tariff Commission report its findings to Congress. Under that arrangement industries suffering from inadequate or excessive duties would have been unable to obtain relief except by legislative action.

The absurdity of that plan is illustrated by the fate of Representative Hawley's resolution to change the rate on sugar in solution. Raw sugar is dutiable at 2 cents per pound. To avoid this tariff importers are sending sugar into the United States in a water solution. Sugar is mixed with water on board ship just before it arrives at American ports and is brought in as sirup, which carries a duty of only ¼ cent per gallon.

Representative Hawley's resolution was not intended to increase the rate on sugar, but only to make it effective. If raw sugar in solution is declared by the courts to be sirup the sugar industry in the United States faces ruin. The fear of an adverse ruling has caused many sugar factories to suspend operations. Companies are refusing to contract with farmers for beets, and acreage that would have been devoted to that crop will probably be planted in wheat and other crops that are already produced in surplus. The Government faces a loss of $90,000,000 in revenue if the importation of liquid sugar at the low duty is found legal.

Yet Congress was helpless to stop this evasion of the sugar tariff. As soon as the ways and means committee began to consider Mr. Hawley's resolution notice was given that if it reached the Senate a drive would be made to substitute the 1922 tariff act for the 1930 revision and to place a tariff on oil. This would have opened the whole tariff question and Congress would have been thrown into a hopeless tangle at the end of the session. Under the circumstances the ways and means committee decided that there was no hope for removal of this menace to the sugar industry and the Treasury. The resolution was abandoned.

No more potent example of the inability of Congress to handle a single tariff item is needed. Congress can adjust the tariff fairly only as a whole when the demands of all interests are balanced against each other. The Democratic scheme to revise tariff items separately and independently, without opening the whole law to revision, is an iridescent dream.

SURTAX ON BONDS.

A few senators who pretend to be foes of the moneyed interests have imposed another useless expense upon the Government. A bill was passed by the House to expand the borrowing powers of the Treasury. At present the Treasury can issue no more than $20,000,000,000 in bonds. Refinancing operations during the next few years will require the issuance of bonds in excess of that amount. The bill in question will extend the bonding limit by $8,000,000,000.

On request of the Treasury this measure provided that the new bonds should be exempt from surtaxes. The Senate finance committee accepted it in this form, but objections were raised on the floor by certain senators. They insisted that the tax exemption feature be deleted and threatened to block the measure unless their whim was gratified. To save the Treasury from embarrassment it was necessary for the finance committee to recall the bill and eliminate the tax exemption section. It was then approved by the Senate.

The effect of this action is to increase the cost of financing to the Government. This political gesture against wealth becomes an additional expense to taxpayers. Bonds that are exempt from surtaxes can be disposed of at lower rates of interest than those on which the tax is charged. When billions of dollars worth of bonds are being marketed a slight decrease in interest makes a large saving to the Government. Experience has shown that this saving is considerably more than the Government could collect by placing surtaxes on the bonds. This is a case of senators making a gesture in favor of poor taxpayers as against the rich, when in reality they are adding to the taxes of everybody.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

From the London Times.

Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, commander in chief, presided at a meeting of the Portsmouth Post-War Brotherhood, February 15, at which Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey gave an address upon "The Prince of Wales' Empire Travels."

In the course of his speech Sir Roger Keyes said: "We live in a rather unhappy time at the moment. At our seaports there is the disturbing fact of hundreds of ships rusting at their moorings, and about one-third of the personnel of the mercantile marine is unemployed. There is a steady decline in our naval expenditure, and at the same time there is a rise in the naval expenditure of most other countries. I have most unbounded faith in the sea sense of the British people, and the utmost confidence that our empire prosperity, which has always followed in the wake of sea power, will be restored. Therefore my message to you today is, 'The empire and its speedy return to prosperity.'"

Sir Lionel Halsey, describing the Prince of Wales' various empire tours, said the opinion he (Sir Lionel) had formed from his experiences during these was that it was the monarchy that kept the empire together. Without that the empire would tumble into a number of little independent countries which in time would be swallowed up by stronger countries. The monarchy formed a binding link of the empire, because it was above all parties and politics and acceptable to all. The principle on which the prince had acted from the start in his empire tours was to meet as many people as he possibly could. On many occasions the prince had receive 20,000 or 30,000 people, and had stood for over two hours on end so that none might be disappointed.

Although spread over six years, the prince's tours had meant in the aggregate his absence from England for three years, during which he had traveled more than 250,000 miles. The prince always went into the interior of any country which he visited, and he learned something of the language that the people spoke. While in South Africa he learned enough Afrikaans to be able to carry on a conversation with the Boers. He also acquired a conversational knowledge of Swahili, and when in Quebec he always made his speeches to the French-Canadians in French. Before leaving for his present tour of South America, the prince had worked hard at learning Spanish. The prince had also seen every conceivable sort of manufacture and had visited every kind of mine.

Recounting a number of stories, Sir Lionel Halsey said that while the Prince was in Australia the people got into the habit of throwing not only flowers but all sorts of fruits, squashy and otherwise, into his carriage. As they tried not to hit the prince with these it was mostly himself (Sir Lionel) who got struck as he sat beside the prince, and for that he (Sir Lionel) became known to the Australians as "'Aunt Sally." Sir Lionel added that on one occasion in Africa an interpreter acting for a local potentate began his speech by saying: "The prince has this day descended from heaven at great personal [illegible]

REPORT ON THE PROFESSORS.

I'd always thought them learned men,
Their praises I've been glad to pen,
Although my admiration came
From viewing them afar.
But home from college comes the boy,
My dreams of greatness to destroy
By telling me what sort of men
His wise professors are.

On his reports I note a C,
Another study bears a D,
At which I sadly shake my head
And to the youngster say:
"It seems to me I've understood
That marks like these aren't very good,
That somewhere on this card of yours
There ought to be an A."

"Professors, dad," he says to me,
"Spell apple with the letter C,
And if a thing is beautiful
They speak of it as fair;
There's not a single prof today
Who knows the way to write an A,
And B exclusively is kept
To spell the word 'beware!'"

The Crippled Children Are Healed for an Hour When the Circus Comes to Town.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE difference between "divine healing" and "mental healing" matters only to those who delight in argument.

Men use different words to describe the same fact, but their words are important only to themselves and the fact remains unchanged.

Whether the healing is accomplished by divine power or by the power of man's mind, it is an established fact that many who have faith in these methods are made well.

Yet here again words conceal the fact, for those made well by faith may have been ill only for want of it.

No man knows or can know the exact truth, for not even the patient himself can tell how much of his ailment is a physical disorder and how much is a product of fear; and no man can know, except in his own conceit, whether the cure is effected by removing the fear or by making contact with a spiritual force that heals in ways unknown to men.

Let men believe or scoff, as they will; the fact is all that need concern us.

And this much is a fact, established beyond all doubting: From whatsoever source it may come, the state of a man's mind in large measure controls the state of his body.

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." That was spoken of man's character, but is equally true of his health.

Last year a number of paralytics in a South American hospital regained the use of their legs when a giant boa constrictor entered their ward and moved between the cots.

It is of record that a European peasant, free of bodily ills, took to his bed and died when told by a celebrated and heartless physician that he displayed the unmistakable symptoms of a certain fatal—and wholly imaginary—disease.

It is commonly said that disorders cured by suggestion or by faith are imaginary, but there are no imaginary disorders except in the sense that all are images in the mind.

If your hand is cut while you are so frightened that no image of the cut appears in your mind, you feel no pain or discomfort. The hurt isn't real until your mind recognizes it.

A child with a splinter in its hand is terrorized at sight of the knife that promises relief and begins to scream before the steel touches its flesh. Its mental picture of an expected pain makes the hurt real before it exists.

Fortunate is the realist who has learned to feel, as animals do, the simple physical pain unmagnified by a fearful mind.

And doubly fortunate is he who has learned to control his mind and fix it on cheerful images when doleful ones would oppress him.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Committee Can't Commit.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Why the hysteria of some dry Democrats at Washington over the rumor that the Democratic national committee at its meeting March 5 may discuss the question of some sort of resolution on prohibition? The committee might discuss, world without end, and it might pass resolutions ad litum, wet or dry, but it would have no more power to commit the Democratic party than would have the Three Tailors of Tooley Street.

There will be a fight to force the Democratic party to define its attitude on prohibition. It may be made among the rank and file of the party before the meeting of its national convention, and inevitably it will be made in the national convention. It can be settled nowhere else than in the national convention—certainly not in the national committee. Why tear passion to tatters about what, if anything, the latter body may do?

Trying to Rope Roosevelt.

New York Times.

Gov. Roosevelt's invitation by the Republican Progressive senators at Washington to join with them in drafting a program for the next Congress is one that he should carefully inspect his list of engagements before deciding that he can accept. The intent is only too obvious. What they really desire is to sound him out and discover whether, as Democratic candidate for the Presidency next year, he will be a man to whom they can offer their deadly support. The plain truth is that Gov. Roosevelt has no need of the insurgent senators, while they have great need of him, or of somebody like him. The name of Roosevelt would be in their hands a great mischief-making asset. It is quite incredible that the governor will even think of turning it over to them.

People of Minnesota Win.

Owatonna (Minn.) Journal-Chronicle.

The people of Minnesota scored a very distinct victory, aided by the calm and determined actions of the President, in the face of Schall blustering, fuming and threatening, for they have been assured that Schall will not place a man of the type he would select on the Federal bench in Minnesota. Even if Judge G. H. Nordbye, of Minneapolis, a capable and experienced judge, is not definitely awarded the new Federal place, it seems certain that public opinion will force it to be a Hoover choice, based on experience, ability and character, rather than a Schall choice, made to pay political debts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Racketeering Attributed to Division of Authority Between Federal and Local Governments Resulting From Eighteenth Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of March 1 is an earnest editorial entitled "Two Crime Cities," describing racketeering conditions in New York and Chicago, and calling on the officials of those cities to "grapple with this hideous new crime development or turn both cities over to the criminal elements."

Please permit me to point out that, in consequence of our national departure from the fundamental principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, the authorities of those cities no longer have the unrestricted power you ask them to exercise.

We declared our independence and fought the Revolution because Great Britain interfered, without our consent, in our local affairs.

We then adopted the Constitution, which, putting in practice the lesson we had so sadly learned, gave to the Federal Government authority over international and interstate matters, while carefully leaving with the States and municipalities the authority and the responsibility over local crime conditions.

That authority was definitely fixed, and consequently the responsibility was unmistakably placed. Under those conditions racketeering never prospered.

But now—in consequence of the passage of the eighteenth amendment—the police authority over crime is unhappily distributed between Federal and local officials. There is divided and uncertain authority, and no man can be certain where the responsibility rests. The Federal officers complain that they can not enforce the Volstead law because of lack of proper help from the States. Those States, in turn, dissatisfied with conditions, are one by one repealing their local enforcement acts and seeking to put the burden on the officials at Washington.

Experience has surely shown that in life's tangled affairs it is wise to fix squarely the seat of authority and responsibility. So long as we defy that fundamental principle and leave responsibility uncertainly hovering between two sets of officers, we shall fall between two stools, and racketeers and criminals will profit by our mishap.

Your editorial correctly states that "racketeering has spread far beyond liquor operations." Similarly, infections starting at one part of the human body may pass throughout the system, carrying danger and death. W. H. STAYTON.

Streams in Greater Washington Area Polluted—A Plea for Better Sewerage Disposal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A matter which, it seems to me, receives not enough attention from the citizens and citizens associations and newspapers of Washington is that of sewerage disposal. It seems strange that the women, who have very naturally complained about the smoke nuisance, do not protest against the continuance of our antiquated and filthy "dumping" sewage system.

"Clean, be clean!" is the finest health slogan, and it is a great shame that the sewage disposal of a modern Capital City of half a million inhabitants should recall the Middle Ages.

Recently the public health committee of the Chamber of Commerce submitted the opinion that "when the population of Washington is 800,000, resort to artificial purification methods will be imperative."

Regardless of cost, sanitation should go hand in hand with beautification. Right now, while the planning commission is studying how to enhance their beauty, practical steps should be taken to preserve the streams of the Greater Washington area from sewage pollution.

PARKER WILLIAMS.

Better Times Indicated by Stock Market Increases.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There has been so much discussion of business depression and unemployment that probably few persons not directly interested in watching the market have realized that the average increase in the price of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange has exceeded all recent records during the last two months. Within 60 days stocks have risen 25 per cent.

That this indicates a confident feeling that business and trade have passed the worst point and are on the up-grade can not be doubted. The return of stock market activity and higher prices was not brought about by the conservative cash buyers who have been picking up bargains. They have been doing that for months. It was not until the speculative element returned to Wall street that the upturn was registered.

It is a curious commentary upon the intrepidity of both investors and speculators that their demand is still strong for common shares rather than bonds and preferred issues. The hard bumps of the big crash have not daunted their fighting spirit nor quenched their belief in the fundamental soundness of American industry.

A comparison of the general condition of business, curiously, goes back to the second year of the war, activity today being about on a par with 1915, which was before this country got into its stride of supplying war material. The usual seasonal effect is expected to show a more marked improvement in the unemployment situation. OBSERVER.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Senate Chiefs Planning to Tarry Awhile

Tilson to Leave Today for New Haven; Garner Gone.

KEEPING an eye on each other's movements, whether in or out of Congress, the Republican floor leader of the Senate and the Democratic floor leader seem loath to depart from town, even with Congress passing into history this noon. For both Senator Watson and Senator Robinson will postpone their departure from Washington and stay on in town for about three weeks. With their families they then will go "out into the West."

Employing entirely different tactics the House floor leaders are quitting the Capital with amazing dispatch. The House Republican floor leader, Mr. John Q. Tilson, in line with his usual custom of nondetting the "grass grow under his feet" will depart forthwith, some time after noon today, for his home in New Haven. Mrs. Tilson is now in Florida where she went for the latter part of the season, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. George B. Norris, of New Haven and Ottawa. Representative and Mrs. Tilson will pass the summer at their country estate in New Hampshire.

Selecting a less cool retreat for their summer holiday the Democratic floor leader, Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, and Mrs. Garner, will spend the entire summer at their Southwestern home, which is Uvalde, Tex. They left last night, expecting to make a speedy journey direct to the city with the alluring name.

Three representatives who will return to don the toga of the Senate next year will linger awhile, and none of them announces any particular summer plans. They are Representative Lester J. Dickinson, of Iowa, who will succeed Senator Steck; Representative Wallace W. White, of Maine, who with Mrs. White will remain in town for a few weeks, will succeed Senator Gould, and Representative Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, succeeding Senator Brock, will with Mrs. Hull be in Washington about three weeks before leaving for home. Senator and Mrs. Dickinson will go to their home in Algona, Iowa, where they will pass most of the summer. Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, who will succeed Coleman F. Blease, has announced no summer plans.

As for a few others, most of them will shake the dust of Washington from their feet either today or within the week. Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow will leave this afternoon for their home in Englewood, N. J. They plan to sail shortly for Europe, although the date is not yet set. Senator and Mrs. Lawrence C. Phipps will leave today for Pittsburgh, where they will visit for a short time. They will return to Washington before going West early in April.

Also leaving today are Representative and Mrs. William E. Hess, bound for their home in Cincinnati, where they will pass the spring. During the summer Representative and Mrs. Hess will journey to the West Coast, whence they will sail for Honolulu, planning to be away about two months.

Representative and Mrs. William E. Evans will start Friday on the long motor trip to their home in Glendale, Calif. They will stop for several days in New Orleans before proceeding westward. Their daughter, Miss Catherine Eaton, will remain in town at Hedon Arms, where she will be graduated in June. Miss Eaton will then leave for the West Coast, accompanied by a schoolmate, Miss Lucie Sharp, of Washington, who will spend the summer with her.

Representative and Mrs. James M. Beck expect to remain in town for some time, and although their plans are not definitely completed, probably will include a journey abroad, as has been their custom.

Florida is the mecca of Representative and Mrs. Clarence E. Hancock, who will leave this week for the South. They will spend about two weeks in Florida before returning to their home in Syracuse for the summer. Their two sons will join them there at the close of school.

Another New York House member, Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., and Mrs. Fish will stay on in their Washington residence at least until the late spring. Representative Fish probably will go to their home in Garrison, N. Y., in May, and Mrs. Fish will follow at the close of school. The family from the Empire State will, as usual, spend the season at their summer home on Murray Bay. The estate joins that of the late Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Mr. William Howard Taft, and Mrs. Taft.

Lieut. Col. K. Teramoto, Assistant Military Attache of the Japanese Embassy, will entertain a company of 20 at dinner at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow evening.

Clinedinst.

MRS. WILLIAM E. BROCK will be joined by Senator Brock at their home in Chattanooga, Tenn., where Mrs. Brock went recently. Senator Brock will leave Washington on Friday, completing his term as senator from his State.

Mrs. Ross Hostess for Committee Women at Woman's Club.

The banner of the Democratic party will fly strong and high today when local proponents of the Women's National Democratic Club will greet scores of visitors arriving on every train for the meeting of the National Democratic committee, convening tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Mayflower. Mrs. Nellie Taylor oss, former Governor of Wyoming, and national committeewoman for the District of Columbia, will give a tea this afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock in honor of the national committeewomen here from distant States, and for the wives of national committeemen. It will take place at the Women's National Democratic Club.

Mrs. Ross will have receiving with her the Democratic committeewomen, including Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey; Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, and Mrs. Pearl Oldfield, of Arkansas. As Mrs. Wingo, of Arkansas, is in mourning, she will not be among those presiding at the tea. Also assisting will be Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. Florence G. Farley, of Kansas, and the board of governors of the Women's Democratic Club.

Mr. Southgate May Succeed Belin as Chief

Will Be Temporary Head of Protocol Division After March 15.

Rumors current in official circles concerning the appointment of a permanent successor to Mr. F. Lammot Belin, chief of the division of protocol and international conference, Department of State, name Mr. Richard Southgate, youthful and attractive, who seems to have all the qualifications for the job. In any event Mr. Southgate, will, upon Mr. Belin's retirement, to private life, March 15, become acting chief of the division. He is next in line for the position.

The question of the appointment of a chief is given impetus with the proposed visit of the King and Queen of Siam set for next month. All entertainment of the royal visitors will be planned through the protocol division of the State Department. This was to have been Mr. Belin's first extraordinary task and while he is managing the program of entertainment until the middle of the month, the arrangements at the time of the arrival of the king and queen will pass into the hands of Mr. Southgate. He will continue to officiate in the role of chief and possibly be appointed to the position permanently unless some other fortunate individual slips into the place all unheralded.

Mr. Belin had resigned from his post as First Secretary of the United States Embassy in London when he forthwith was appointed to the position in the State Department. When he retires from office with Mrs. Belin, he will leave for the South for a vacation. They will continue to live in Washington where friends are legion and where they preside over charming Evermay in Georgetown, one of the show places of the District of Columbia.

License Links Pair But New Rites Planned

Second Ceremony Today to Unite Miss Booth, Mr. Vogel.

The way of a foreign government with a maid and a man was amusingly set forth in Copenhagen yesterday where Miss Virginia Booth, daughter of the United States Minister to Denmark and Mrs. Ralph H. Booth, and Mr. William D. Vogel, of New York and Milwaukee, were married. They will be married all over again today at St. Alban's Church, the English church in the Danish capital.

It happened this way: According to the law the couple went to the Town Hall, merely, they thought, to sign the register. Two minutes later they made the startling discovery that they thereby had become duly married. When Burgomaster Christian Hjorth asked the bride if she would "take this man for husband" she showed some surprise but answered

WORK ON BRIDGE

THE TRAP.

THE above very interesting hand was held in a recent Contract Bridge game in Richmond. South valued his hand at six and a half tricks without counting the Queen of Diamonds; four tricks in Spades, one and a half tricks for his Ace-Queen of Hearts, and one trick for his Ace of Clubs. He bid two Spades. West risked three No Trumps on his double stopper in Spades and count of 21, and South sought to punish his temerity by doubling. East did not yield to the temptation to take out West's No Trump with four Diamonds; he reasoned that if West believed he could make three No Trumps in spite of the strength South had shown, East's King of Hearts and seven-card Diamond suit must furnish all the assistance West needed. East's reasoning was sound, but a bid of five Diamonds (especially after the double) might have been more conservative. With a hand of that type it might be that five Diamonds could be made more readily than three No Trumps.

North led the Nine of Spades which West won with the Ace and then led the Ace of Diamonds, breathing more freely when North and South both followed and it was assured that dummy's Diamonds would run and produce in the two suits enough tricks for game—two Spades and seven Diamonds. By leading a Club he could add one Club trick—and that, beyond doubt, was his play; but he was looking for a big extra score and saw that if he could find the Queen of Hearts in the North hand he would add three Heart tricks to his total.

West led the Jack of Hearts, North played small, East ducked; and South appreciating that the Declarer had the game in hand and doubtless would take it in if the Queen of Hearts won, risked a desperate expedient. He won the trick with the ace instead of the Queen, feeling confident that the Declarer (who was not a very discerning player) would mark the Queen in the North hand and try to finesse against it. South then established his Spades by leading the Queen; West won immediately and could have run all his Diamonds, but instead he walked into South's trap. West led the Heart ten and, unsuspicious of the obvious danger when North played small, took the finesse. South won with the Queen of Hearts, ran his four established Spades and the Declarer was soundly and deservedly defeated.

TURNCOAT

THE DOMINIONS OF AN EARLY DUKE OF SAXONY BORDERED FRANCE, SO HE DESIGNED FOR HIMSELF A REVERSIBLE COAT, BLUE ON ONE SIDE AND WHITE ON THE OTHER. YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRYA DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Bartlett" occurs with great frequency in the earliest English documents. It is a diminutive form of "Bartle," which was once a common personal name. "Bartle" has come down to us from two main sources. In most cases it is a diminutive form of "Bartholomew." Bartholomew is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "the son of Talmai." The old personal name "Talmai" means "furrowed." There is evidence that in some cases "Bartle" is a French diminutive form of the old high German "Berahт" which means "bright" and "glorious." The commonest variations of "Bartlett" are "Bartlot," "Bartlott," "Bartolet" and "Bartoleft." Most of these forms are found as often in France as they are in England and on this continent. The German equivalents of "Bartlett" are Barthold," "Bartelt," "Barthlott," "Barthol" and "Bartel." In Italy the corresponding forms are "Bartoli," "Bartoletti," "Bartolotti" and Bertoletti." In the Hundred Rolls (1273) are found the names of Thomas Bartholot, William Bartolot and Alan Bartelet.

The family name "Thompson" occurs with an extremely large number of variations in English records. Its obvious meaning is "the son of Thomas." The personal name origin, and means "the twin." The spelling "Thompson" does not appear to be recorded in English documents until the year 1630. A London church register of that year records the marriage of Robert Thompson and Eline Lettice. Some of the commonest French forms of this name are "Thomasset," "Thomassin" and "Thomasson." Modern German forms are "Thommes," "Thomes" and "Thoman."

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sermabeg

TURNCOAT

THE DOMINIONS OF AN EARLY DUKE OF SAXONY BORDERED FRANCE, SO HE DESIGNED FOR HIMSELF A REVERSIBLE COAT, BLUE ON ONE SIDE AND WHITE ON THE OTHER. WHEN HE WISHED TO BE THOUGHT A FRENCH SUPPORTER, HE WORE THE WHITE SIDE OUT; WHEN SEEKING SAXON FAVORS, THE BLUE. HIS ACTION GAVE US THE WORD FOR DESERTERS OF A FAITH OR A POLITICAL PARTY.

CORPORATIONS HAVE NO SOULS

SIR EDWARD COKE, IN WRITING HIS FAMOUS SEVENTEENTH CENTURY LAW BOOKS EXPRESSED THE IDEA THAT CORPORATIONS HAD NO BODIES TO BE PUNISHED, NOR SOULS TO BE CONDEMNED. HE GAVE US THIS FAMILIAR PHRASE.

ITCHING PALM MEANS MONEY

THE ANCIENTS BELIEVED THAT THEIR GOOD ANGEL WOULD TICKLE THEIR PALM TO TELL THEM WHEN THEY WERE TO RECEIVE UNEXPECTED MONEY. NOWADAYS, "AN ITCHING PALM" IS USED TO INDICATE A LOVE OF MONEY.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

A graceful white evening dress in flat crepe, with a heavy necklace which serves as trimming, of strass and ruby paillettes. (Courtesy of Dupouy-Magnin, Paris.)

Paris, March 3.

SHE sort of rattled as she swished through the salon, and every one pricked up his or her ears. But I wasn't any luckier than anybody else in figuring it out, because all I could see was a very lovely white silk organdie evening dress covered in a more or less symmetrical way with dull white paillettes.

But being true to my deah public, I risked not being a perfect lady and asked the manageress what the rattle was. You'll never guess. The paillettes were cut out of heavy paper, and all sewn on by hand without being perforated—just two threads crossed to hold the little round plaque in place.

Which just goes to prove that the simplest things can be the most charming, let alone the most expensive—and you can figure out for yourself that dressmaker wouldn't care whether paillettes were made out of paper or crystal, when a quarter of a million of them had to be sewn onto a dress by hand.

• • • •

That was at Poiret's collection, and here, too, did I see a really wearable dinner pyjama. Because it wasn't too pajama-like, yet it was a dinner pajama, after all. It was a beautifully draped skirt which let its drape fall open from about the knee down to about the ankle to show what seemed at first to be a bit of a lace underskirt—a popular gesture of the moment, you know, but on closer inspection proved to be white lace pajamas over white chiffon. Or if you want to call them pantalettes, you may and see if I care!

• • • •

Dupouy-Magnin trims an extremely graceful white evening gown of flat crepe with an odd necklace of imitation rubies and strass, in paillettes, of course, and the effect is striking and charming. So I sketched it for you today, not only to show you but because I thought the gown extremely sketchable—which is more than many otherwise very lovely gowns are!

You see them everywhere in Paris these lovely summer muffs made of flowers or feathers or of large petals cut out of taffeta and lined in a contrasting color. The one I sketched for you today was a black taffeta, and worn with a black taffeta evening dress, and, oh, carried on one arm with Milady's dainty little hand showing right through, as it is in the sketch. And with the same outfit is worn a flat little hat of black paillettes, quite, quite on one side of the head, as Juliette might have worn hers in one of her er—wilder moments.

• • • •

If you will be belted a la Patou this summer, wear a pleated or gathered patent leather in either black or dark green or midnight blue on all of your chiffon or lace or tulle frocks. Yes, not only evening dresses as well, but especially evening dresses! And see that your belt is buckled with an odd, one-sided and heavy looking mat crystal buckle.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Making the Hero Save.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am 26 years old, and 2½ years ago I met a handsome young man three years younger and of different religion. At first I despised him, his friends, gambling, swearing, and the girl friends were nothing but gold diggers. I am considered a sensible girl, not much on looks, and yet I've had several young men friends. Now, we are practically engaged, as the young man aims to please and is the most accommodating and generous fellow you would want to know. He has given up all his bad habits and thanks me for everything. You see, he was not so bad, but it was the company he went out with. He has really proved to be a friend indeed. I wouldn't change him for anybody else in the world. I love him as much as I despised him before.

My childhood days were none too easy, and now I have everything to be thankful for. I help others and can save. I live out and don't have any place to entertain friends. He talks of marriage all the time. We both want a home, and yet he never saves a cent. I try to do my share of the saving, but he always has some excuse for not saving his. It takes the joy out of planning. Please tell me how can I get him to save. He lives at home, doesn't have any dependents. I'm tired of going out to meet him, with no special place to go. I try to suggest going out for walks, but in the end he takes me to a show. At times I think I'll try being extravagant and make him spend; perhaps he would wake up. I've tried talking to him about it, and I think all I can do is give him one more chance. He won't get married without the things he plans for, and how can he ever do it if he don't start in now.

I've met his folks and have been invited to his home, but he never takes me over. Can it be the difference in religion? TRUE BLUE.

Thousands of lads like the one you describe are selling apples on the street corners of our larger cities this very minute. The spend-as-you-go, eat-drink-and-be-merry-for-tomorrow-we-die boys. Lads who bought $100 overcoats and $7 hats two years ago and had not $10 in bank when the boss broke the happy news of the long lay-off. Hence the apples on the corner.

The man who can not save is a psychopathis type. He lives by the hour and simply can not visualize a tomorrow. To him the future is in no way related to him. It is like some one else's story. He sees himself only today.

The girl who marries such a man is as deficient as he is. Which makes it pretty awful for their offspring. Two people in a day dream starting in to raise day dreamers for future generations to worry about.

If you want to do the sane thing, give this care-free lad his freedom. Tell him that you have decided that his mentality is inferior to yours since he seems unable to make his plans and carry them to fruition. It may end his day dream. If so, fine. If not, you have saved yourself a lot of future wrath. Day dreamers make poor husbands.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF March 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:45 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

A rather unsettled atmosphere overshadows the morning hours of March 4. The afternoon is good for seasonable action and activities. Some unexpected changes in your life may be anticipated. Such favorable conditions as exist chiefly benefit those engaged in official or artistic work.

A child born on this March 4 will have a winning disposition, which, as time advances, will develop into a sympathetic personality. It will not achieve much along material lines, but will always be unselfish and considerate of others, and will radiate happiness and sunshine.

If you were born on March 4 you are deservedly popular wherever you may go. You realize that nothing is saved by being economical in kindness. You give freely of yourself and your efforts to others, and rarely spend a thought on building up your personal interests. In every little action of life you demonstrate clearly that your first thought is always for others. If misfortune overtakes you, your first reflection is how it will affect those who depend upon you. If success awaits you, your first reaction is to help others.

You are studious without being a book worm. You are a hard worker without being a drudge. You are good tempered without being an extreme pacifist. You are intelligent without being intellectual. You are good without being a prig. You are conscientious without being a martyr to convention. You do not participate actively in outdoor sports, although taking a keen interest in them. You are probably not an executant in music, although gifted with a keen musical sense.

Your horoscope does not presage any spectacular material achievement. It does, however, denote a life well and fruitfully spent, and full of sunshine and encouragement. As a husband or wife, and as a parent, you are destined to enjoy to the full the pleasures of a happy married life, undimmed by recrimination and undisturbed by jealousies and envy.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

WHEN CHOOSING NEW PLANTS.

ON MONDAY we discussed the desirability of the modern delphiniums. Today I want to tell you something of the newer and better hollyhocks which will add much to the beauty of any garden provided they are well placed and well cared for. Hollyhocks must be well looked after if they are to develop self-supporting, well-filled stalks of bloom.

Hollyhocks are always well placed when they are planted in single file or in masses against walls or buildings, in groups at the back or rear of the perennial border or interspersed with low-growing shrubbery, or when planted in groups as accent notes along drives or walks.

Many varieties will give their fullest effects the first year. For this reason they frequently can be used to good advantage in a new garden where the trees and shrubs are low and where you are anxious to get an effect of both foliage and color.

When purchasing them remember that there are both single and double varieties. The double varieties are popular, but for the amateur I think the single varieties are best. I mean if you have never grown hollyhocks before you had better learn their moods and ways by growing single kinds.

It is the color effect we want, for the foliage if these plants is, as a rule, coarse and grows near the ground. The long spikes of bloom reach a height of from 5 to 8 feet and when healthy should bear about seven flowers to a stalk. The colors of the flowers range from white almost to black, and include all sorts of lovely tints and tones of pink, yellow and crimson. They bloom from late June through September.

Fringed-petaled sorts are usually listed as Allegheny hollyhocks and are exquisite. There are also annual varieties which can be depended upon to bloom the same year the seed is sown.

Hollyhocks do best in a deeply dug soil, which must be well drained and composed of equal portions of leaf mold and good loam. They should be planted in a warm place and must be kept well watered during dry weather. As a rule, they self-sow very rapidly. So from a few plants you soon develop quite a stock.

If you have seedlings in your cold frame at this time, set them out just as soon as the ground can be worked. Do not plant them where hollyhocks have been growing, as you may be troubled by rust. This causes little trouble, however, among young, healthy plants.

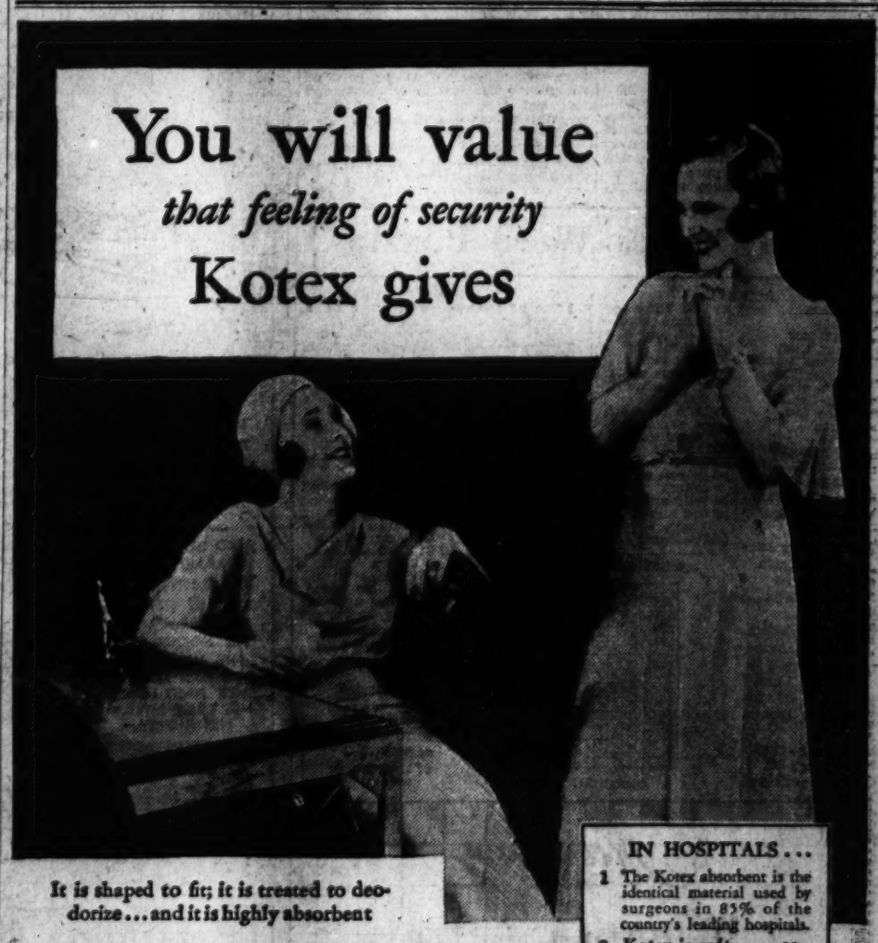
that feeling of security
Kotex gives



It is shaped to fit; it is treated to deodorize... and it is highly absorbent

WHAT you really want in sanitary protection—more than any other one thing—is a feeling of perfect safety and security. To know you are well protected, despite long hours at work, at a party, out-of-doors. To feel safe. To keep thoroughly at ease. This is one of the most important assurances Kotex gives you.

So highly absorbent

Kotex is tremendously absorbent . . . by test, five times more so than the finest of surgical cotton. And, because of its layer construction, it absorbs away from the surface, laterally — making the pad effective not in just one area but over the entire surface.

This distinguishes Kotex from the ordinary pad. Gives it far greater efficiency—and you far greater comfort.

Kotex, as you probably know, is made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding, fold upon fold of a delicate substance . . . each layer acting as a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Wear it on either side

Kotex may be worn on either side with equal protection, equal comfort. No danger of embarrassment; no fear of inadequate protection.

Its softness lasts. It is treated to deodorize. It is adjustable. Hospitals use it because of its amazing absorbency.

Kotex Company, Chicago.

IN HOSPITALS . . .

1 The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
2 Kotex is soft . . . Not merely an apparent softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
3 Can be worn on either side with equal comfort. No embarrassment.
4 Disposable, instantly, completely.

BRAND WHITLOCK, FORMER NEWSPAPER REPORTER AND POPULAR YOUNG MAYOR OF TOLEDO, OHIO, IS THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS OLD TODAY.

MARCH 4, 1906.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson sailed today on the steamship Amerika for Hamburg, where they will spend the spring and early summer.

Meridian, Miss., was almost completely wiped out by a furious cyclonic blast. Over 100 persons are believed dead, with 2,500 injured. Damage is estimated at $1,500,000.

Joseph Medill Patterson resigned today as Chicago's commissioner of public works, saying he had become a Socialist and that "the poor have no chance."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CREEPING ERUPTION.

THOSE who are lucky enough to get away to Florida and south Georgia to spend the cold, dark days of the early spring in the open air should know about a skin disease which prevails especially on their playground. It has been found elsewhere, but it is in the sandy soil of this far southeastern section that it is at home. It is a species of worm, the larva form of which burrows its tracks under the skin. That track has every resemblance to the path of a mole in the ground. I don't know whether a mole track makes the soil itch, but this much is certain, the itch caused by the burrowing of the larva which causes creeping eruption is about the boss of all the itches which the human being endures. This eruption kills nobody, never causes serious illness and, finally, cures spontaneously, but the itching it causes is more than a man of average patience can stand.

The soil is infested with this worm through dogs and cats. The enemy lives in warm, wet sand and on the beds of branches and streams and on bathing beaches.

Dr. Hume tells us that the measures of protection employed at Fort Benning are as follows: Nobody is allowed to go barefooted. This applies especially to children and after rains. Wading is not allowed. Dogs and cats are not allowed on beaches or where children play. Swimmers are advised to wear slippers and sandals, particularly when they adorn the beach. All persons were advised not to lie on the damp earth, and particularly not to let the bare skin touch damp earth.

Miss Le Sueur and Dr. Hutchinson suggest that the skin of the feet be greased with a mixture of 5 to 10 per cent oil of chenopodium in castor oil before going on an infested beach. This advice is based on an experience with two cases of creeping eruption which resisted cure until they painted the itching skin with pure oil of chenopodium. The parasite was quickly killed, the itching stopped and the eruption healed.

If this method of prevention works with creeping eruption it should also work in the prevention of ground itch and of hookworm.

The method of cure which Dr. Hume recommends is as follows: The physician asks the patient to point out just where the itching is worst. The doctor then freezes a small patch of skin right there and keeps it frozen two or three minutes. He then applies an ice pack. This procedure kills the molelike burrower. After that he applies a mixture of salicylic acid, 20; boric acid, 100; yellow wax, 50, and petrolated jelly, 850, for several days. But far easier and far more important than cure is prevention.

APPEAL TO STATE.

Mrs. J. L. K. writes: A teacher who has taught the same primary room for almost twenty years has had a cough for the last five years. She expectorates freely into the waste paper basket and washes her handkerchiefs at the sink where the children wash their hands and milk bottles. Her father, brother and two sisters-in-law died of tuberculosis. This teacher has frequent attacks of grip, and at times loses her voice and can not speak aloud.

Is there any way in which the parents of the children in her room would be able to find out whether or not this teacher has tuberculosis? The death rate from tuberculosis is very high in this small town, and there are a number of persons known to have active cases of tuberculosis who are not receiving any medical attention and who do not use any sanitary precautions. What can be done about it? The health officer knows this but does nothing. Isn't there something that can be done?

REPLY.

If you can not get action from the local health department, write to your State health department.

affirmatively. Vogel did the same. In Denmark this ceremony is equivalent to an actual marriage.

Nonplussed but not defeated the bride declared all original plans for her wedding would proceed just the same. And so, today, the Bishop of Fulham, an old friend of the family, will perform the ceremony and a reception will be held immediately afterward at the home of the bride's parents, 28 Osterbrogade.

Morris Gest, coproducer of "The Wonder Bar" greets Al Jolson, left, Washington's favorite son and star of the production, on his arrival in Washington yesterday afternoon.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

MORRIS GEST in town, everything is now in readiness for the opening of "Der Wunder Bar" tomorrow night in the Belasco. First-nighters will hardly recognize the old playhouse. A crew of carpenters transformed the interior so that it now resembles a night club, the covert charge to be paid at the door.

• • • •

In honor of Mr. Al Jolson's return from far off places, the Belasco has a sell-out on its hands. All New York, too, is awaiting the return of the wanderer. "The Wonder Bar," Mr. Jolson, et al, hits the sawdust trail next Monday, after a four-day session here.

On Sunday night, the National Theater goes movie again. This time the cinematic attraction is "Trader Horn," that highly touted film made from material in a book that startled the countryside several seasons ago. They do say the boys and girls are in for many a thrill when they clamor for their seats in the National next Sunday night at 8:30.

• • • •

If "Making Mary," at the National this week is strictly a dance show, the reason is obvious. On the program is this line: "Dances and ensemble by John Boyle." A glance into Who's Who in the Theater tells the class in choreography that Mr. Boyle was the partner of the late Jack Donoghue—Mrs. Donoghue's boy—who knew no peer in the procession.

• • • •

"The Green Pastures," Mr. Marc Connelly's miracle play, taken from Roark Bradford's "Ol Man Adam and His Chillun," and the Bible, has now entered its second year on Broadway—which proves something or other; possibly that the good do not die young, for some of us are, along with "The Green Pastures," rapidly attaining a ripe old age.

• • • •

George W. Lederer, the inventor of American vaudeville, is about to become a play producer, leaving the musical comedy and revue field flat on its back. On Easter Monday, if all goes well, Mr. Lederer, in association with J. Fred Womrath, who has something to do with a floating library, will present "Milk White Skin." Though it sounds like a tegumentary advertisement, "Milk White Skin" is a play that Louise Carter has adapted from a German piece called "Mexican Gold." This, in turn, is the original script by Rudolph Lothar and Hans Bachwitz. The scenes are in Berlin.

Berlin is gaining a foothold in the American Theater. Vicki Baum's "Grand Hotel" remains Broadway's favorite pastime. Now, word comes from Germany that the novelist-playwright has fashioned another piece that will soon be carted overseas. This is "Pariser Platz 13," now being presented at the Kammerspiele, Berlin. The story centers around a beauty shop and its habitues—and the daughters of its habitues.

• • • •

Now comes the story that the Warner Brothers produced "Heat Wave," Roland Pertwee's play which premiered here, not because they had any faith in it as a stage show, but because their contract with Mr. Pertwee demanded a stage production. Well, Warner Brothers kept faith with Mr. Pertwee, but just what happened to the public and to Mr. Basil Rathbone, who is now out of a job because the play failed, is something else again. It will, probably, be a huge success in the movies. They usually are, these stage flops.

• • • •

"Dr. Harmer," the Pinero play, is scheduled to open in the Belasco Theater here in another fortnight, with Philip Merivale in the title role and several other members of the immediate Merrivale family scattered throughout the cast. These are, Viva Berkett, who in real life is Mrs. Merrivale, and Rosamund, their daughter—the pride of the Merivales.

Parent Group Plans School Visit Tonight

Association Members to Inspect Park View Institution.

Members of the District Public School Association will be the guests of the Park View Platoon School Parent-Teacher Association at the school building, Otis place and Warder street northwest, tonight at 8 o'clock, when the evening will be devoted to an inspection of the school building and the special features of the platoon plan of school organization.

The principal of the school, Miss Schriviner, will explain its plan of operation, and a number of the teachers, with the aid of their pupils, will explain and demonstrate the use of special rooms devoted to activities that were neglected in the traditional school program of a generation ago, but which are highly developed in platoon schools. Such rooms include the auditorium, the gymnasium, the library, the nature-study room, the art room, the music room and the dramatics room.

The Park View Platoon School is being carried on as an experiment, with a view to the wider extension of the platoon plan in Washington if it should seem desirable to the people of the city, the school administration and Congress.

Income Tax Facts

No. 31

While it is important that the taxpayer render on or before the due date—March 16, 1931, if filed on the calendar-year basis—as full and complete a return as possible, a request for a reasonable extension of time may be granted. Application for an extension should be addressed to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer files his return, together with a full recital for the causes of the delay. The request must be made before the return is due. Except in the case of taxpayers who are abroad no extension may be made for a period of more than six months.

An extension of time for filing return does not extend the time for paying the tax, or any installment thereof, unless so specified in the extension. However, an extension of time in which to pay the tax or installment may be granted by the commissioner of Internal Revenue for a period not to exceed six months from the prescribed date. Application for such extension should be made through the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the return is filed. The taxpayer should state under oath the specific reasons for desiring an extension, and clearly indicate what hardship, if any, would result if the extension were not granted. The Commissioner will not consider an application for an extension unless received on or before the due date of the tax, or installment thereof, and as a condition may require the taxpayer to furnish a bond not exceeding twice the amount of the tax or installment.

If the extension is granted, interest on the amount is collectible at the rate of 6 per cent a year from the date when payment should have been made if there had been no extension to expiration of the period of the extension.

HOLDUP MAN TAKES $540 IN JEWELRY

Thief Then Beats Proprietor Over Head With His Pistol and Flees.

A holdup man yesterday robbed Harry Slavin, 35 years old, of $540 in jewelry and $40 in cash at his jewelry store, 843 Seventeenth street northwest, and escaped after beating the proprietor over the head with a pistol.

The robber entered the store early in the day and asked to see some merchandise. He left and returned about 10:30 o'clock and after examining a ring he pulled a gun.

Slavin sought to attract the attention of passers-by but the bandit forced him to kneel behind the counter as he beat Slavin over the head with a pistol. The bandit snatched several rings from a tray and fled.

Slavin was dazed by the blows. When he recovered he called police. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where several lacerations on his head were treated. Police could find no one who saw the man flee from the store.

Slavin described the robber as 25 years old and clean shaven. He wore a gray hat and overcoat, Slavin said. The proprietor lives at 1025 Fifteenth street northwest.

FORMER MARINES HELD IN ROBBERY

Pair Are Accused of Twice Holding Up Same Man in Eight Months.

Alleged to have robbed the same man—Benjamin F. Burch, a collector for the Lord Baltimore Filling Station—twice within eight months, Clarence Paul Hulse and Samuel A. Johnson, two former Marines, were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on two charges of robbery.

Another indictment charges the two men with stealing a taxicab, while in one of the robbery counts James A. Peters is named.

One indictment charges Hulse and Johnson with stealing $2,116.82 from Burch January 13, 1930, at the company's station at 123 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. That robbery was made in the taxicab, according to police records, and accounts for the taxi-theft charge.

The third indictment charges Hulse, Johnson and Peters with robbing Burch last February 1 at Sixth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest of $1,043.37.

While Burch did not know the identity of the men who robbed him the first time, a bystander, who witnessed the second robbery, reported the tag number of the automobile. This resulted in the capture of the three men.

MEETING TO SCORE CONVICT LABOR USE

Arlington Protest Session Is Planned, Despite Work on Camp.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Despite the fact that the State Highway Department is proceeding with the construction of a camp at Barcroft, which will house 100 convicts, who are to work on the Lee boulevard, the mass meeting scheduled to protest against bringing convict labor into Arlington County will be held tomorrow night in the Ashton Heights Women's Clubhouse, according to an announcement made last night by Thomas R. Mechem, chairman in charge of arrangements.

Howard T. Colvin, of Alexandria, president of the Washington Central Labor Union, is to be the principal speaker, while a representative of the American Federation of Labor will also be heard, Mr. Mechem stated.

Aside from protesting the use of convict labor, plans will be formulated at the meeting to organize a Union Labor Club in Arlington County, Mr. Mechem stated.

While there seems little chance of having the State Highway Department change its program in connection with the Lee Boulevard, Mr. Mechem said sponsors of the meeting hope it will prove a stepping stone toward the entire elimination of convict labor use in road building in the State.

Mr. Mechem is being supported in plans for the mass meeting by the Association of General Contractors of America, which forwarded a protest to Chairman H. G. Shirley, of the State Highway Commission, against use of such labor.

Following failure of Congress to provide for the construction of the first two miles of the Lee Boulevard, connecting the new Arlington memorial bridge with the western boundaries of Fort Myer, the Arlington County Civic Federation unanimously adopted a resolution approving Washington street, from the intersection of Wilson Boulevard at Court street, as an adequate approach to the new bridge, in a meeting at Lyon Park.

The resolution, which was offered by Monroe H. Stockett, chairman of the roads, streets and bridge committee, points out that this road will provide access to the new bridge for most of the residents of Arlington County and Falls Church.

The resolution also holds that the bridge traffic from that portion of the Lee boulevard which the State is now preparing to construct, can reach the Washington street approach by way of Pershing drive and then through Fort Myer.

By provisions of the resolution the county board of supervisors are requested to take immediate steps to take over Washington street.

In view of the action of the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia in refusing to allow the Mount Vernon, Alexandria and Washington Railway to establish its terminal in the business section and cross Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, the federation adopted a resolution asking the commission to reconsider its action.

The resolution sets forth that this action also effects the Arlington-Fairfax Railway, which serves the residents of the two counties, and to refuse an adequate terminal will work a great hardship on the traveling public of the two counties.

Provision was made to send copies to Senators Claude S. Swanson and Carter Glass and Representative-elect Judge Howard W. Smith, the boards of supervisors of the two counties and to Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, of Arlington County, and Wilson Farr, of Fairfax County.

Raymond C. Hosbrouck, driver of a taxicab, was fined $14.25, including costs, in police court on a charge of operating a machine with improper tags.

The arrest was made by State Traffic Officer Wayne Carr. The warrant was issued by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth. According to Gloth the operator was going into the office at the Washington Airport seeking business. Gloth stated that he had warned the drivers not to leave the Government road.

The Ballston Council, No. 36, O. R. A., will give a benefit supper tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon from 5 to 7:30 o'clock.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow at Windsor Arms, on the Glebe road, at 12 o'clock.

Centenarian Gets Chill While Pressing Trousers

Seattle, Wash., March 2.—Peter Pickton began preparations to celebrate his one hundredth birthday here by arising early to press his best pants. He stood barelegged in a draft and his century-old frame chilled, the aged nose sneezed and the wheezy lungs quivered with a severe cold.

Being the State's oldest Mason, Pickton spent the rest of the day in bed reading hundreds of congratulatory messages—on his age—not the birthday cold.

MOSLEM MYSTICS HARASS REPUBLIC

100,000 ARE IN FLIGHT

Menemen, Turkey, March 3 (A.P.).—A hundred thousand Moslem mystics keep their veiled Eastern eyes on this town near Smyrna where a military court of the Turkish Republic has been dealing out death to mysticism, obscurantism, and fanaticism.

Many of the 100,000 mystic dervishes fled to Syria and Egypt when the Kemalist government outlawed their confraternities in 1926 and closed the 500 tekkes which served as their monasteries.

But thousands remained in Turkey, and doffed the stupendous turbans, symbols of their faith, and put on Western hats to conform to Kemalist law.

Hope for Regime's Downfall.

But within their stubborn hearts they still nursed the hope of the new secularizing regime's ultimate downfall, as was proved when armed dervishes broke into revolt on December 24 in this Anatolian town.

Police investigations revealed that during the five years since the tekkes were closed, the unfrocked, unturbanned dervishes have been practicing forbidden traditional rites secretly in all corners of Turkey.

Sheik Esad, 96-year-old chief of the Nakshibend sect, who was tried as one of the principal instigators of the Menemen riot, was accused of having continued communications throughout the five years from his retreat in a suburb of Istanbul, with 1,000 disciples.

Slowly but fatally, the Turkish government is rounding up these disciples, more than 200 of whom were brought before the military court here. Hanging, life imprisonment or exile, confronted them.

Not Persecuting the Faithful.

The Turkish government claims it has no intention of persecuting the mass of faithful Moslems in Turkey or of destroying their religious freedom. But those who use religion for political ends will meet the fate of traitors.

Much publicity is given in the Turkish press to arguments that the dervish rites have no Koranic justification and that their sheiks were self-made dictators.

Falil Rifki Bey, a prominent Kemalist deputy, has said that the government's failure to execute the Americanization plan advocated by him last year, caused the sanguinary religious reaction in Smyrna province.

In the official "Millieti" the deputy asserts that even though the government abolished the medresses, graduates of these Moslem divinity schools still control the minds of the masses throughout Anatolia. On the other hand, graduates of the republic's laic schools have not been adopted or understood by the masses.

"And why?" writes Rifki Bey. "Because the graduates of medresses always returned after their schooling to their own villages to become guides and counselors of their own people. But graduates of our upper schools are afraid of vegetating and cling to life in the metropolis."

Bicyclists Run Wild.

Los Angeles, March 2 (A.P.).—Bicyclists caused 500 accident cases treated at the Los Angeles Emergency Hospital in 1930.

Building permits issued in Memphis, Tenn., during 1930 totaled $9,921,138, or $1,504,841 more than the 1929 total.

Exclusive Party Yearns for Heat

Select Audience at Society Theatrical Holds On Though Freezing.

Special to The Washington Post.

Salem, Mass., March 3.—Local folks are still chuckling over the fact that the audience which attended the performance of "The Torch Bearer" at a local theater by an amateur society nearly froze to death.

It was a select audience and every one was in evening dress. Everything was exclusive, including the heat.

The theater had not been open for several months and it was impossible to heat the auditorium on the coldest night of winter in the time alloted for the job. The cold had permeated the edifice to such an extent that, though heat was sizzling in the radiators, the atmosphere was like that at a post-season football game.

Men and women alike kept their coats and wraps on, and when the curtain rose on the first act, the audience was greeted by an icy blast across the footlights that made them hug their wraps closer.

But it was a good show and all enjoyed it in spite of the cold. When the performance was over the members of the audience were spared the bother of putting on their coats. They just turned up their collars and walked out.

Courts of Paris Dodge Old Sauls

Father Sues Professor for Disillusioning Son of Yule Legend.

Paris, March 3 (A.P.).—The Paris courts have neatly dodged an official investigation into the existence of Santa Claus.

An angry father, Jean Dauprey, sued a professor for $400 because, he charged, the professor had disillusioned Dauprey's son about the existence of Santa Claus.

Just as the courts were face to face with the problem of setting a value on a child's faith in "Father Christmas," the holiday spirit and the court's suggestions overcame M. Dauprey, and he reached an agreement with the professor.

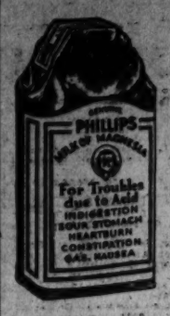
Under this agreement, supervised by the court, the professor contributed $20 and the father $60 toward a fund which was given to the family of a poor man injured on Christmas day. The professor, in addition, formally admitted to the court that he had erred in disillusioning the boy.

Slumbering Man Dies After Fall Into Blaze

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., March 3.—A fire he built to warm himself on a mountain slope proved Ewell Breedon's death trap. The Blue Ridge Mountain man died in the hospital here late last night from burns he suffered when he fell into the blaze while asleep.

Breedon lived in Thoroughfare Hollow and was about 35 years old. He was found by his brother-in-law, Emmett Dean, when flames were burning clothing from his body. He was brought to the hospital here.



When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness in babies and children, generally show food is sour-ing in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child, make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"I've ridden the Western Plains —says Chesterfield

© 1931, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Yet you'll meet me in the thick of a Broadway crowd"

It's a far cry from the cow country to Broadway. But what it takes to make the broncho buster "open up" about his cigarette is exactly what you want in your smoke. Good taste—and lots of it! And that is first a matter of tobacco quality, never forget it! What you taste in Chesterfield is riper, better tobaccos—not another thing—blended and "cross-blended" to a fragrant, satisfying mildness that is Chesterfield's own!

Greater mildness . . . better taste!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

14 WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1931.

MARYLAND FIVE BEATS KENTUCKY FOR TITLE, 29-27

Feature Contests Loom As Clubs Are Paired for Post's A. A. U. Tourney

Central High to Play Bliss Five in First Round at Tech.

Drawings Made in All Classes; Teams Weigh in Tonight.

ACTION from the start is assured in The Washington Post's fifth annual A. A. U. basket ball championship tournament, which gets under way Monday night at the Tech High Gymnasium. Drawings for the record entry, made last night by officials of the District association, reveal a long list of prospective battles in the preliminary and first rounds—matches assuring another parade of point-for-point struggles that have marked each of the tournaments.

Lady Luck was kind and unkind to various teams, but the draw left no club with a waltz toward the finals. The paths are guarded by strong teams in both brackets and the survivors will be worthy District A. A. U. champions, deserving of the team trophy and individual gold medals emblematic of the title.

County Champions Play Virginia.

Some of the outstanding early unlimited battles will find the Griffith-Consumers, Prince Georges County champions, meeting the Virginia A. C. of Alexandria; Central High battling Bliss Electrical School; Potomac Boat Club Scholastics, composed of Eastern High players, facing the Fort Humphreys Five; United Typos playing the Government Printing Office; Richard's Colonials, runners-up in the Prince Georges League, opposing the crack Boys' Club; Fort Washington, tackling the Quantico Marines, and the Emanons, composed of Southeastern University players, meeting the Clovers, champions of the Community Center League.

One of the most promising battles is in the preliminary round. The two Southwest clubs, Mercury A. C. and Palace-D. G. S., are due to clash in this contest.

Saks, the pretourney favorite in the 145-pound class, drew a bye in the first round, but will have to have full steam thereafter. The winner of the Petworth Mets-Night Hawks game will provide the first opponent for the Clothiers.

Early games in the 100, 115 and 130 pound classes promise close contests.

Weighing of Players Starts Tonight.

The serious business of weighing the players in the lighter boys classes will start tonight at the Boys Club, Third and C streets northwest. Players in the 100 and 115 pound classes will be weighed by A. A. U. officials tonight between 7 and 9:30 o'clock. Players in the 130 and 145 pound classes will be weighed tomorrow night.

The eligibility lists and the program for Monday and Tuesday nights will be announced in The Post later this week.

Nats to Take Bat in Hand Today

Johnson, Himself, in Form; Club to Play "Expositions."

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BILOXI, Miss., March 3.—If there is one thing a player likes to do—and this includes even pitchers, most of whom can not hit a lick—it is to get up at the plate and swing at the ball. Manager Walter Johnson had in mind staging 1931's first batting drilling this morning, but the infield was too soft as a result of the heavy rains of yesterday.

If conditions are right tomorrow, a stick drill will feature the session. The fact that batting will be added to the program means but one thing, and that is that the pitchers have progressed far enough to begin taking their work seriously.

None of the moundsmen here is ready to hurl any games, but all have been gradually advancing and, from now on, the hops will be seen on the fast balls, with the flingers occasionally sneaking in a curve.

Young Hurlers Aching To Loose Speed.

Fred Marberry, Sam Jones and possibly Alvin Crowder are the only ones still in the primary class, all of the youngsters seeming to be "rarin" to go. Jones and Crowder have been intentionally alowed up. Marberry did not get in much throwing in his Hot Springs sessions and needs three or four more days of light work.

The good book says that "a little child shall lead them," but it is different at the camp here, for Manager Walter Johnson, who is through as a pitcher, showed this morning that he is about five jumps ahead of any of his candidates. Assistant Trainer F. Riley Baxter got himself a big glove and the "old master" almost tore off his hands with speedy shots which reminded of Walter's halycon days.

So good did Johnson look that Sam Rice, standing by, remarked:

"I believe that bird could still win in our league if he decided to try to make a come-back." But that will never be, Johnson declared.

Crowder, Spencer In Collision.

Two of the National regulars collided in the volley-ball game, which is part of the daily drill, this morning, and for a moment it was thought that both were injured. While going after a ball, Pitcher Crowder's left knee hit Catcher Spencer just below the heart and both went down in a heap.

Trainer Mike Martin rushed out, thinking he had two patients, but, after "Sir Mique" had done a little rubbing, both got to their feet and finished the game. "The General" limped quite badly this afternoon, but, no doubt, will be o. k. by tomorrow.

Posters, advertising the National's activities here, made their appearance this morning and all were quite amused to note that several "exposition" games have been scheduled. It is not known whether the printer or "Col." William Smith is to blame. We're backing the printer.

Pitcher Carl Fischer was slowed up to a walk in this morning's drill due to an upset "tummy." That dinner "league" is one in which none of the athletes ever can be accused of "pulling away from the plate."

W. Va. Wesleyan Star To Enter West Point

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 3.—"Gyp" Battles, premier half back at West Virginia Wesleyan, will play football at the Military Academy next season, it was announced here today by Edgar Miller, new head coach at Annapolis, who is in the city on his way to Purdue, where he will assist with spring practice.

"Battles is the best and most popular football player to oppose a Navy Team in recent years," Miller said. Miller aided Battles in getting a West Point appointment.

Alexandria Sports

ALEXANDRIA, March 3.—Fredericksburg High School basketeers annexed the District 2 and 3 basket ball title of the Virginia Athletic and Literary League yesterday, defeating Hopewell in the semifinal contest and Alexandria High in the final game, 32 to 16. The games were played in the William and Mary College Gym at Williamsburg, Va.

The Alexandria boys had previously entered the finals by winning from Highland Springs, 24 to 15. Fredericksburg will represent the two districts in the titular competition at Charlottesville, Va., on Friday.

The R. F. & P. Basket Ball Team is listed to play Skinker Bros.' Eagles next Sunday in the Silver Spring Armory.

Saks Clothiers will entertain St. Mary's Lyceum tossers in a contest here tomorrow night. Saks previously had won from the Del Ray and Alpha Delta Amega Clubs.

On Friday night Alpha Delta Omega will play the Del Ray A. C. in a city league contest in Armory Hall. A record-breaking crowd is expected.

Baseball for junior clubs opened in Alexandria today when the St. Aspha Street Bulldogs defeated the Columbia Midgets, 14 to 6. Woodrow Cook starred for the winners.

LAWRENCE'S JUNIORS MEET.

Lawrence's Juniors will reorganize for the baseball season tomorrow night at a meeting to be held at Manager Lawrence's home, 156 Tennessee avenue northeast. Besides last year's regulars, new candidates who will not have reached their nineteenth birthday before June 18 are asked to attend.

MARYLAND TEAM WHICH UPSET DOPE TO WIN TITLE

BUSH NAMES LINE-UP FOR CHISOX

First Game Due Sunday With Houston; Other Notes.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 3 (A. P.).—An indication of how the the Chicago White Sox will line up against Houston, Sunday, was given by manager Bush today. The infield had Ray Radcliff at first, Bill Cissell at second, Luke Appling and Willie Kamm at third.

The outfield will be Smead Jolley in right, Mel Simons in center and Red Eickrodt in left.

Carl Reynolds, the leading bataman of the club last season, has not signed and is definitely classed as holdout.

Sacramento, Calif., March 3 (U.P.).—Manager Stanley "Buckey" Harris today denied the request of George Burns, new manager of the Mission Club of the Pacific Coast League, for some midweek contests between the Tigers and the Missions at Stockton.

Harris said his present exhibition program called for 36 games, which he figures is as far as training contests should go.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—More often than not, the Philadelphia Athletics have an Indian ball player somewhere in their ensemble. The latest is Robert Lee Johnson, part Cherokee, young outfielder, who hails from the Portland, Oreg., club. His brother, Roy, is the fleet right fielder of the Detroit Tigers.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Despite a high wind the St. Louis Browns today put in their best practice since arriving here. Perhaps their good showing was partly the result of a "social visit" today by President E. S. Barnard, of the American League.

The kid infield continued to attract attention and drew some favorable comment from President Barnard.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees held their first full practice today, with every member of the squad except George Pipgras in uniform. Pipgras is recovering fro man appendicitis operation. Babe Ruth featured the drill by knocking two balls out of the park and into Crescent Lake—one at the expense of Henry Johnson and the other pitched by Herb Pennock.

Lions 'Fond' of Golfers Hunted in California

San Rafael, Calif., March 3 (A.P.).—A hunt was on in the Marin hills today for three lions with a fondness for golf. The lion trio routed three golfers yesterday from the Country Club of Marin. The golfers retired to the clubhouse when they encountered the lions on the links.

Godfrey Driven To Wrestling by Exile as Boxer

NEW YORK, March 3 (U.P.).—George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight who was exiled from boxing because of the suspicion that his performances were not strictly on the "up-and-up," has found a sport where "artistic" talents are appreciated and will make his debut as a wrestler at Newark March 9.

Godfrey will meet one John Grandovich, self-styled "champion of Jugoslavia." Promoters are undecided as to Godfrey's billing, but the unwritten rules of wrestling require that all performers be title holders and the "Black Panther" probably will become "colored heavyweight champion."

The 260-pound Negro decided to try wrestling last fall when he was barred from boxing because of his suspicious defeat by Primo Carnera. He made his start in Mexico, where he claims to have won fourteen bouts, and now is ready to campaign in the United States.

"Couldn't Make No Money Boxing."

"Ah couldn't make no money boxing," Godfrey explained. "The good men wouldn't meet me and when I knocked out second-raters I couldn't get more matches because I was 'too good.'"

"If I didn't knock a man out, I'd be suspended for 'holding up' my opponent. When I lost to Carnera they suspended me. What's a fella goin' do? If he wins he can't get fights. If he loses he is suspended and can't get fights anyway. Now, in wrestling it don't seem to make no difference. No one worries whether the bouts are honest or not and a fella can work three or four times a week."

WASHINGTON A. C. CONFAB.

The Washington A. C. Nine, prominent in unlimited baseball circles last season, will gather Saturday night at the home of Manager Click, in Congress Heights.

CUB ROOKIES BEAT VETS, 10 TO 6

Wilson's Homer Futile; Robin Regulars Win, 7-3.

AVALON, Calif., March 3 (A.P.).—Hack Wilson hit his first home run of the year today, but it did not keep the Chicago Cub irregulars, or "goofs," from defeating the regulars, 10 to 6, in a nine-inning practice contest.

Wilson got next to Bud Teachout for the homer in the ninth inning. Teachout divided the pitching with Lon Warneke, with the latter receiving credit for the victory, while Ed Baecht, who split the regulars' hurling with Lester Sweetland, was charged with the defeat.

Clearwater, Fla., March 3 (U.P.).—The team with which Brooklyn will start the championship season performed intact today for the first time and defeated the rookies, 7 to 3, i na practice game. Lefty O'Doul was the hitting star of today's drill, knocking more than a dozen balls over the fence in the morning workout and hitting three singles during the afternoon practice game.

Bradentown, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—John Pepper Martin, one of the missing Cardinal outfielders, reported to Manager Gabby Street today, leaving only four men on the list of missing: Taylor Douthit, Chick Hafey, Ernie Orsatti and Frankie Frisch.

James "Ripper" Collins, who came from Rochester to go through his first workout today, showed a flashing grace in fielding around first base.

San Antonio, Tex., March 3 (A.P.).—The New York Giants' hold-out list was reduced by one today when word was received that Fred Fitzsimmons, the larger hurler, was on his way to camp. Manager John McGraw refused to say whether or not Fitz had signed a contract. The Giants enjoyed their first hot day of the training season and went through a long drill.

Tampa, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—All the main cogs in the Cincinnati Reds' baseball machine, with the exception of Joe Stripp, third baseman, a holdout, had their first complete fast workout today after a week of inclement weather. Wally Roettger, slated for the regular center field berth, arrived and participated in spirited practice. He formerly played with the Giants and Cardinals.

Jobless Seek Caddy Jobs Through School

White Plains, N. Y., March 3 (A.P.).—The "Golf University," latest of educational ventures, will open here at the end of this week.

"Prof." George Clark, superintendent of Maplemoor, one of the four Westchester public courses, will mount the lecture platform to instruct several hundred mature but jobless males in the difference between a "driver" and a "mashie." A "putter," he will tell them, is not used on the fairway.

The embryo grown-up caddies will get some field work to get the "feel" of the thing before the golf season opens, in April.

The school is part of the plan to supplant boys with unemployed heads of families on Westchester's 70 courses.

SCHOOLBOYS BEAT MARINES

Indian Head, Md., March 3.—The Charlotte Hall School tossers defeated the Indian Head Marines here today, 20 to 17. The Marines held an advantage throughout the first half, but the scholastic team was not to be denied toward the end.

SEABROOKS TO GATHER.

Members of the Seabrook A. C. will meet Friday at 8 p. m. at the home of Manager Charles P. Brown to discuss plans for the coming baseball season.

Thorpe, $4-a-Day Laborer, Grins at Memory of Fame

By JEAN BOSQUET.

LOS ANGELES, March 3 (A.P.).—Jim Thorpe, acclaimed the greatest football player of all time and once holder of the title of world's best all-around athlete, is working here as a laborer with pick and shovel for $4 per day, but he can still grin.

The once mighty Indian of Carlisle, who in 1912 almost single handed cornered Olympic honors for his native country, only to relinquish his trophies later under charges of professionalism, is not ashamed of his job.

Big Jim is determined to beat back. "I'm not through," he said today.

Jim is a nonentity in a motley crew of diggers excavating for the new Los Angeles County Hospital. He answers to "J. Thorpe" at the paymaster's wicket. No one pays any attention to the clods he's digging up now.

Home to Cottage After Work.

After work Jim goes home to a very small cottage where Mrs. Thorpe, who also can smile still, and Philip, 4, and Billy, 2, wait for him. Sometimes at night Jim opens a big book and the little Thorpes look properly awed, as though understanding it all. The book contains many clippings and some photographs.

The photographs include snapshots of Jim being handed something by the King of Sweden, and there are pictures of what the king gave him.

It's hard to find a reason for the present state of affairs of the smiling former athletic kingpin.

"Guess it's an old story," he grins "I liked to be a good fellow with the boys. But I'll come out of this, and I'll do some saving when I do."

Starred at Carlisle From 1907-1912.

Thorpe attended Carlisle Indian School from 1907 to 1912. He starred in football, baseball and track. Baseball he played in 1909 and 1910 for $25 a week in a little Southern league.

Old Liners Capture Dixie Crown, Staving Off Rally, As Berger, Ronkin Star

3 Shake-Ups Seen Need of Nats

A SHAKE-UP in the Washington team at three positions is needed to fortify the Nats for the 1931 pennant race, is the opinion of Joseph C. Anderson, of Clarendon, Va.

Mr. Anderson, one of yesterday's contributors to The Post's baseball contest, is of the decided belief that right field and third base are the weak spots of the Washington club which otherwise might win the 1931 pennant.

Favoring the remainder of the lineup as it was regularly composed last season, Mr. Anderson would supplement Sam Rice in right field with Harry Rice, turn the second base berth over to Jack Hayes, and permit Buddy Myer to compete with Ossie Bluege for the third base job.

Sam Rice Would Be Benched

The Post is offering six box seats to the opening game here April 14 between Washington and Philadelphia to the fan who best sets forth in an article of not more than 250 words his views as to the probable line-up of the Nats' and their chances in the pennant race. The rules of the contest are simple: Merely submit your article, written on one side of the paper, to the "Baseball Editor" of The Post before the closing date of the contest on April 1.

According to Mr. Anderson, Harry Rice is a more consistent hitter than Same Rice who has a failing of hitting to the second baseman when men are on bases, thus resulting in double plays. Sam Rice is also fence-shy, he declares. Jack Hayes, to Anderson's mind, is a harder hitter than Buddy Myer.

Prefers Hayes to Myer

Myer is less ball shy than Bluege, according to Anderson, who believes the latter is the poorest defensive third baseman in the league. Bluege is afraid of hurting his hands and consequently many runners slide into the base safely, he states.

That is one fan's opinion. What is yours? Address your letters to the "Baseball Editor" of The Post.

Maryland Gains 11-2 Lead at Start But Is Hard Pressed.

Special to The Washington Post.

AUDITORIUM, Atlanta, March 3.—Maryland University's five, for the first time in the history of the event, won the Southern Conference basket ball championship by defeating the powerful Kentucky quintet, 29 to 27, in the tournament here tonight.

The winners thus made good on the predictions of a few experts who picked the Old Line as the best "dark horse" before the tourney started. Kentucky's vaunted offense failed to pierce the Old Line defense, as many fans had anticipated, but Maryland was forced to tighten its defense toward the last when the Blue Grass boys rallied gamely.

Ronkin Scores At Start.

Ed Ronkin, acclaimed one of the stellar individuals of the tournament, flashed the red flag in Kentucky's face before the game was barely under way, slipping under the basket and leaping to toss the initial field goal through the hoop easily and send the Liners off to the lead. Darting down the floor a moment later, Ronkin was fouled by Yates and converted the toss to make it 3-0, Maryland. That other guard of guards, Berger, sank one from miscourt—and hinted at a rout.

Kentucky broke the scoring ice as McGinnis counted a free throw, but Ronkin more than made up for it with a goal from field.

Both teams, all too-apparently playing for a title, were nervous, slow and almost overcautious. Kentucky's nervousness showed most in its tries for goal, the Wild Cats missing frequently. Maryland, however, was steadier, with Ronkin and Berger setting the pace and keeping their mates down to earth.

Norris and Berger Add to Lead.

Bronston counted another free throw for Kentucky. Norris tossed a field goalfrom a difficult angle near the corner to hold and better the pace. Berger added yet another field goal, and it was 11 to 2 for the Old Liners and the half at little better than its midpoint.

Chalmers counted another from the field for Maryland as Darby was substituted for McGinnis, who had missed frequently, in the Kentucky line-up. Worthington made Kentucky's third point with another foul shot. Berger slipped into the hole and made another Maryland score look easy.

Yates brought a cheer from the gallery as he looped a long field goal, Kentucky's first. Norris kept Maryland's lead intact and better with a foul goal, followed by one from the field, and Bronston cracked again for Kentucky as the half ended. Maryland led, 18 to 7.

Fans in Furore Between Halves.

The fans, between halves, were in a furore, the experts in a jumble. Maryland held the edge in shooting and guarding and floor play. The Liners had forced Kentucky to the long shot, ever a dangerous weapon, as their scoring threat, meanwhile sending Berger and Ronkin into the hole often for easy shots and feeding them the ball with fast, accurate passes.

Kentucky injected a new note into the fray as the second half got under way, however, the tall Bronston skidded the ball into the hole with but 30 seconds gone and clipped two points from the Tarrapin lead. Little "Dead Eye" McGinis looped with two more with a beautiful goal from midcourt. That made it 18-11.

Bronston added a free shot, then tossed a goal, which merely swished the loop at the end of its journey from past midcourt to trim Maryland's lead to 4 points, at 18-14. Kentucky was piercing the Maryland defense, but still were making most of their efforts from midcourt.

May Interrupts Scoring Spree.

Yates added a free throw to continue the Kentucky spurt, but May broke the long string with a pretty goal to open the Maryland scoring and make the count 20-15 in favor of the lads from the East. And here came Berger to keep the Old Liners well in the game with a 2-pointer from close in.

Yates leaped and twisted to drop in a short shot, and scored another, from midfloor, leaving Maryland with a 22-19 lead. Then Ronkin slipped into a scramble under the Maryland basket and tipped the loose ball through to get his first for the half and boost that lead back up to 8 points. And 5 ponts looked mighty good right there.

Seven hundred and fifty saw the game.

Gonzaga Five Routs Landon School, 41-7

Gonzaga dropped Landon School for the long count of 41 to 7 yesterday at Epiphany Gym in a game which was a walkaway from start to finish for the Eye street boys.

Landon gave all it had in the first half, when six of its seven points were scored and Gonzaga was held to fourteen tallies.

Tom Nolan, Jack Hester and Dicky Fitzgerald, three of the best basket marksmen in prep circles, turned in the lion's share of Gonzaga's scoring.

Alexandria, Va., March 3.—The R. F. & P. Professional Basket Ball Team turned in its best exhibition of the year here tonight at the Armory when the Cleveland Knits were beaten, 40 to 37, after a great exhibition of "finish" on the part of the local boys.

With but a minute left of the game, and the score 35-34 in favor of the Knits, Colliflower, Zimmerman and McMenamin came through at this critical point with sterling baskets to clinch the game.

CENTRAL BEATS EASTERN FOR "UNOFFICIAL" TITLE

Rough Battle Is Won by Central

Crowd Pays to See Coholders of Title Decide Honors.

4 Eastern Courtmen Suffer Injuries in 30-25 Defeat.

WHAT started out to be a nicely regulated practice game—in order that Eastern High's Basket Ball Team might leave for the Washington and Lee Court Tourney in the proverbial pink of condition—developed into something resembling a brawl yesterday when Central High's tossers visited the Lincoln Parkers and put an informal end to the "Principals' Tie" of several weeks back by defeating their hosts, 30 to 25.

The event was arranged over the phone by the friendly coaches and looked upon benignly by the school heads, but news of the impending clash spread like wildfire yesterday throughout the student bodies of both schools and the place was not only jammed when game time arrived, but Eastern High had given the fray an official background by enterprisingly levying an admission tax.

Hot Pace Marks "Practice" Game.

Evidently the coaches had failed to inform the players that it was only a practice game and that matters should be taken lightly, for once the opening ball was tossed in the air the teams battled hard down to the very finish, with Bernie Lieb, Eastern forward, being forced to leave the game by reason of a twisted ankle, which, however, will not affect his play in the Lexington tourney. Other minor casualties were suffered by Courtney, Noonan and Kane, all of Eastern.

Central led all the way. Beginning the fourth quarter Eastern spurted until it was but a basket removed from Central, but here Cross, substituting for Burke, sank a pretty basket to put Central fairly comfortably ahead again.

Two rather obscure Central lights, Morgan and Rice, who alternately played poorly at center in the high school series, were the big guns for Central yesterday, each scoring nine points and conducting themselves in creditable fashion.

Both teams lacked a star, Ben Zola, regular Eastern guard, was out with a twisted leg—which was X-rayed yesterday afternoon, while Central played without Frank Cumberland, forward.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

FOLLOWING the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, a political battle was waged in France to decide whether it was to be a republic or monarchy. The National Assembly, which was empowered to decide France's political destiny, held a meeting on June 30, 1875, to take a decisive vote on the issue. Although there appeared to be a slight preponderance of Royalist partisans, the balloting was so close that there were doubts as to the outcome. Suddenly, amidst the excitement of the balloting, one of the deputies, M. Leurant, was seized with severe pains in his stomach. Leurant, a Royalist whose vote was a certainty for the monarchy, was forced to leave the room just before his name was called, and through his absence the assembly was deadlocked (352 to 352). The president of the assembly then gave a casting vote—for a republic. Thus, a stomach-ache changed France's political future, for if Deputy Leurant had voted the Royalists would have won out.

Strange as it seems, what is probably the only orchestra with a one-armed drummer in the United States, is probably the only male orchestra that is directed by a girl. The leader is Helene Osborne, of Saratoga, and her band is called Osborne's Kollegians.

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

THE Kingston Handicap, a dash of 6 furlongs, brings out eight evenly balanced sprinters for the best contest on the Hialeah Park program today. GUN ROYAL is selected to win. His last race was on February 12, when he beat Cross Bones in 1:11 1-5. This should match any race among the horses starting in this one and should return the M. Stern gelding a winner.

The filly ELLICE is regarded a shade better than the others. Her last race showed improvement when she was second to General A. PROTRACTOR would be more dangerous were he not attempting to concede 10 pounds to GUN ROYAL, as he is to carry 126 pounds. In his last race he ran 6 furlongs in 1:10 4-5, but the additional 18 pounds will slow him down and furthermore, he will not find a fast track in this race.

FIRST RACE—AIRLINER is selected. He has disappointed in his last two starts. Both defeats were upsets, being beaten Monday by Balthasar, a 12-to-1 shot. His price will be longer today and being sent back so soon looks like stable confidence. ZACHARY ran a good race recently, finishing second to Young John. LADY MESSENGER on some of her races also would be a contender.

SECOND RACE — VACARRIENDO appears best in the second race. He was second to Judge Primrose in the Nursery Stakes and some good ones were behind him at the wire. He made a strong finish, coming from far back in the stretch. HAGGERSON, which won his last out a few days ago, beating Frederick and others, may be the contender, but MY PURCHASE, third to Siberia last out, is almost sure to be a dangerous factor in the race.

THIRD RACE—VACILLATE'S last performance gives him the call for the third race. The J. W. McKenzie plater was second to Hazel Gumberta in his last start and was only beaten a neck. BIRDIE WRACK will be the contender. JAR should improve. He was fast last year and would be dangerous if in his old form.

FOURTH RACE—A good field of 3-year-olds will start in the fourth race at a mile. MYNHEER, winner of his last three races, is selected to make it four. SILVER BEAUTY will cut a figure in the event. BOYS HOWDY may get third money.

SIXTH RACE — BILL MORRIS should repeat. He surprised the talent at Miami in his first start by winning easily. DURVA is regarded as the contender, with GILDED ARCH having a chance to make it a close finish.

SEVENTH RACE—DEA should be given another chance after being beaten through crowding on Monday by Blackbelt and Snap. The track is better today and the finish should be reversed, but SNAP is best of the others. WATCH GIRL should get third money. MILLBAY also may figure in the race.

BAN CONCAVE GOLF CLUBS BY RULE

U. S. G. A. to Sanction Only Straight Faced Implements.

NEW YORK, March 3 (A.P.).—The United States Golf Association today made it plain that it will sanction no mechanical departure in the style of golf clubs.

Through its secretary, Prescott S. Bush, the association announced adoption of a rule barring all except the straight-faced clubs, the accepted implements of the game.

The rule said:

"Club faces shall not embody any degree of concavity or more than one angle of loft."

The rule is a clarification of the association's attitude as expressed at the annual meeting in December, which barred use of the so-called sand wedge.

"Adoption of the rule is merely to clarify any misapprehension as to our attitude on further inventions of the type of the sand wedge," Herbert H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. G. A., said. "It is aimed at no particular club now being used.

Rule Framed for Manufacturers.

"After we had barred the sand wedge we received several letters from manufacturers asking us what our attitude was on designs they had in mind. We framed the rule with the idea of answering any questions manufacturers or players might ask along those lines."

The policy of the association, as expressed by Mr. Ramsay at the annual meeting, is not to encourage mechanical invention as applied to the implements of the game.

"What we do seek to encourage," Mr. Ramsay said at that time, "is the development of skill in the use of the accepted implements."

The vote of the executive committee on the new rule was taken by mail.

CONFUSION REIGNS ON STOCK MARKET

Volume Sags to 2,900,000 Shares as Quotations Move Irregularly.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Experiments on either side of the stock market proved comparatively unsatisfactory today. Prices advanced and receded in a confusing manner, closing irregularly lower when a late rally based on short covering failed to hold. In all but a few cases, however, the net changes were small and the volume shrank to 2,900,000 shares.

The market was uncertain of its course. Professional bulls, sobered by the reactionary tendencies of the last few days, seemed to feel that it would be unreasonable to expect much of a following after so broad an advance. Shorts, who are perhaps getting the better breaks in the business news, found it difficult to achieve much of a reaction except in a few stocks affected by special situations, notably Remington Rand, Phillips Petroleum and United Carbon, which passed their dividends.

From the technical standpoint, the market appears to have been considerably weakened by heavy covering. With the short interest materially reduced, fuel for a further advance, it is pointed out, must come largely from public participation, and this, in view of the skepticism toward the January-February advance, may await concrete gains in business.

Amusements and Chemicals.

Group weakness today embraced chiefly the amusements and chemicals. Steels and motors were steady, utilities irregular and rails much firmer than in recent sessions. United Carbon's reaction to the dividend omission was a drop of more than 5 points, and others of the same classification sagged sympathetically for a time. Radio met pressure; so did Fox film and Warner Bros.

In general, prominent shares such as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, General Electric, General Motors and American Can moved inconspicuously. Prices hardened in the fast-moving rally that started early in the last hour, a move based on covering attributed to a belief in speculative circles that the adjournment of Congress might be celebrated with a bullish demonstration.

This improvement was brief, however. U. S. Steel, after rising to 146¾, where it was up 1½, sagged back to 145, off ¼. American Can lost nearly a point net. Bethlehem, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Union Carbide, General Motors, General Electric and Westinghouse closed firm. Montgomery Ward softened on the February sales figures and some of the other merchandising shares also sold off. St. Louis, San Francisco, whose directors meet for dividend action tomorrow, broke 4 points. Otherwise selling of the rails dried up.

Loadings For Week.

March 1 settlements in the interior, as well as the requirements of Government and corporate financing, stiffened the tone of the money market and no funds were available unofficially at less than the stock exchange rate, 1½ per cent.

Freight movements still reflect the low state of productive activity. Loadings for the week ended February 21 were 713,938 cars, against 720,869 in the preceding week, when a small gain had been against the seasonal trend.

Wheat and corn closed mostly higher. The former was affected by foreign buying and dry weather in the Northwest. Both grains finished unchanged to about a cent up. Cotton ended the day 1 point lower to 7 higher.

Plans for stabilizing the Spanish peseta firmed Madrid exchange, but other European rates were easy.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, March 3 (A.P.).—Tempted by 18 cents a bushel, price disparity between old and new crop wheat, numerous traders sought July today, and caused a late advance. Much of the buying, representing wheat yet to be harvested, was against simultaneous equal sales of May, which stands for wheat already available for use. Corn and oats advanced also, but not until both had outdone season bottom-price records.

Wheat closed irregular, ranging from ¼ cent decline to ⅞ gain, with corn ½ to 1 higher; oats ⅛ to ⅝ up, and provisions showing a rise of 5 to 17 cents.

Attractive profits for milling interests and others in a position to replace May delivery of wheat at the heavy discount prevailing for new crop months did much to stimulate spreading operations that lifted wheat prices after early downturns. The fact that the first cargo of corn for shipment from Chicago at the opening of lake navigation was purchased today tended also to brace values. At first, however, all grains were dominated by weakness of Liverpool quotations and favorable weather for domestic winter wheat, especially by rain in Texas and snow in Kansas and Nebraska.

United States Farm Board subsidiaries were reported as having sold wheat to Antwerp at the lowest prices so far, 12 to 12½ cents under Chicago May for Gulf of Mexico No. 1 hard. Liverpool advices said other exporting countries led by Australia were pressing wheat urgently upon European purchasers, but that British traders had been holding off for 5 cents cut. Offerings of United States wheat from the Pacific Coast were said to be checking demand for Canadian wheat from Vancouver.

Corn displayed independence of wheat after touching new low-record quotations. Offerings became scarce, and ensuing advances were associated with a falling-off in the volume of primary receipts to 892,000 bushels, compared with 1,407,000 a week ago. Oats were governed by fluctuations in other cereals.

Provisions advanced briskly on account of light receipts of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July, 63⅜@63¾; May, 65⅛@65¼; September, 63⅞@64; 65⅝@65½. Corn—May, 63@63¼; 64⅛@64½; July, 65½@65¾; 67; September, 66⅞@67.

Rain in Texas and snow in Kansas and Nebraska tended to encourage wheat selling and there were Liverpool advices that exporting countries led by Australia had begun pressing wheat upon European purchasers. Reports said United States Farm Board subsidiaries also had disposed of moderate quantities of wheat over night to Antwerp at the lowest prices so far, 12 to 12½ cents under Chicago May for Gulf of Mexico No. 1 hard.

Scarcity of corn offerings after price setbacks led to a show of independence by the corn market. Ensuing advances were associated with a falling off in the volume of primary receipts. Total arrivals were 892,000 bushels, compared with 1,407,000 a week ago. Chicago had 178 cars, against 286 last week. Oats followed wheat rather than corn.

Provisions responded to a rise in hog values.

HOME INVESTMENT BONDS NEGLECTED

Foreign List Irregular as Trend Moves Toward Higher Levels.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Home investment bonds with the exception of a handful of issues were neglected by buyers today and the best advances of the session were made by foreign issues.

United States Governments acquitted themselves well as bankers heard reports that the March financing probably would be heavily oversubscribed. Virtually all of the buying centered in three issues but the group as a whole was firmer. Some trading in the Treasury 3½s on a when-issued basis was reported in the over-the-counter market at a premium.

The domestic market appeared more governed by the lower trend of shares than in any other influence, and showed a slight tendency toward lower levels although some of the prime rails and utilities advanced fractionally. Amusement bonds were under pressure and some of the low priced industrials sold off also.

Warner Brothers 6s were heavily offered and reacted 3¾ points to a new year's low at 60¼. Shubert Theater 6s, General Theaters 6s and Loews 6s, declined a point or more each. Paramount Publix 5½s moved contrarywise, closing ¾ higher. Railroad convertibles held firm.

The inquiry for railroad obligations was of a highly selective character. Baltimore & Ohio 5s climbed a point to a new high. St. Paul 5s of 2000 were the most active issue in the whole list, and rose half a point. Chicago & Western Indiana 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s F 1977, New York Central 3½s, Pennsylvania 4½s, Union Pacific 4s, and Southern Pacific 4½s were accumulated at good fractions above the previous close.

There was considerable irregularity in the foreign list, but the trend was toward higher levels. The best demand was for about a dozen German bonds and South Americans. New highs were reached by Argentine 6s A and B, Berlin City 6s, Berlin City Electric 6½s, Berlin Electric Elevated 6s, Cologne City 6½s, Colombia Mortgage Bank 7s, Rhine Ruhr 6s, Santa Fe Argentine 7s, and Tolima 7s.

The municipal market was very quiet in anticipation of the sale tomorrow of $100,000,000 City of New York 4¼s for which only one banking syndicate is expected to bid. The Federal intermediate credit banks are offering $15,000,000 3 per cent debentures maturing in from 4 to 6 months. A $3,500,000 City of Fall River, Massachusetts, 4½ per cent bond issue also is being marketed.

SCHIAVONE ELECTED AGAIN AS PRESIDENT

Fernando Cuniberti Named as Chairman of Bank's Board of Directors.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Joseph Schiavone, founder and first president of International Exchange Bank, Inc., Fifth and H streets northwest, was reelected a director and president of that institution at a meeting of the board of directors yesterday, succeeding Fernando Cuniberti, who resigned and was elected chairman of the board, a newly created office. Mr. Cuniberti said last night he will continue to be actively associated with the bank and that its other officers and directors will remain the same.

Born in Italy, Mr. Cuniberti came to Washington in 1917 as a secretary attached to the bureau of information of the Italian Embassy. After leaving the diplomatic service he entered the financial field and was associated with several brokerage and financial houses in Washington and New York. He entered the banking business as a director and vice president of International Exchange Bank and in February, 1928, became its president.

Mr. Schiavone came to this country from Italy in 1907 and was at first the publisher of an Italian newspaper at Trenton, N. J. Coming to Washington in 1913 with Senator Martine, of New Jersey, he opened a foreign exchange during the World War which was subsequently incorporated as the International Exchange Bank in 1921. In February, 1928, he disposed of his interests in the bank and organized the Citizens Mortgage Corporation, of which he is president, with offices at 475 H street northwest.

Other officers and directors of the bank are Hugh W. Barr, vice president; F. J. Kaufmann, jr., vice president and cashier; W. E. Birch and L. H. Hoyle, assistant cashiers; Hugh W. Barr, Peter Borras, Henry M. Camp, D. Del Vecchio, A. de Girolamo, Joseph E. Heffron, George Heon, S. S. Jaffe, F. J. Kaufmann, jr., Jerry Malatico, Hugh H. Obear, Louis Rosenberg, George C. Vournas, Elias Weinstein, directors.

Stockholders of the Washington Title, District Title and Lawyers Title Insurance Companies held their annual meetings yesterday. Five new directors were added to the board of the first-named company, two to the second and three to the third.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

SCHOOLS IN COUNTY WILL COST $649,280

Prince Georges Commissioners Are Given Estimate by Superintendent.

Prince Georges County schools will cost $649,280 for the 1931-32 school year, according to the estimate submitted to the county commissioners by Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools.

Only $490,340 will be raised by the county levy, however, as the State and Federal contributions are expected to be $148,940. Mr. Orem's estimate was given to the board of commissioners so that they would know how much to allot to schools when making up the county budget for the next fiscal year. The program is tentative and open to change by the commissioners.

Total cost of instruction in the schools takes the greater part of the money, with a cost of $495,120, the State giving $138,880 of this. The county's share of this item will be $356,240. Operating expenses are estimated at $51,300, borne wholly by the county, which will also pay all the capital outlay of $9,000.

Total expenditures for allied work for the school will take up $27,700, including $24,000 for bus service, $2,300 for health work, $1,000 for school libraries and $400 for community activities. The State contributes $400 for this total. This is the same amount as was spent for these services during the current year.

Three thousand dollars is allowed for repairs on the Hyattsville High School, and $500 for improvements on the street leading to the Mount Rainier School. General repairs are estimated at $10,000. A $3,000 addition to the Beltsville School is planned, as well as the promised appropriation of $2,000 for the purpose of buying land for a playground at the District Line School.

The major sum expected, aside from the amount raised through the county tax, is $116,000 from the State, $38,000 of this being for the high schools. The text book fund will bring in $8,600; materials of instruction, $2,100, and tuition fees from other counties will amount to $4,000. Help for the vocational education fund will be $4,500, and the colored industrial fund will be $1,500.

While yesterday's meeting of the board of county commissioners was largely taken up with consideration of requests for road improvements, their most important act was the acceptance of the resignation of Henry St. James L. Briscoe, of Brandywine, as road clerk, and the appointment of his son, Henry St. James L. Briscoe, jr., in his place.

Mr. Briscoe's resignation takes effect immediately, and his son will finish his unexpired term. The term expires June 1. The retiring clerk has not been well and only recently returned to his office from an illness of several weeks. He became suddenly ill in the courthouse several weeks ago and could not be moved for some time. He has been road clerk for about fourteen years.

Bills were presented by J. Frank Parran and J. Wilson Ryon for $50 each for their services as prosecutors in the removal of the Brady case from Rockville to Annapolis. This brings the total cost for this trial, so far as bills have been presented, to about $2,100.

A petition was presented from residents of Piscataway district asking that Rudolph Adler, Clayton Townshend, William F. Taylor, Arthur Bryan and John H. Clagett be appointed road supervisors in that area. The request was taken under consideration.

A delegation composed of Arthur J. Lovell, R. D. Edelen and Rudolph Adler appeared to ask the improvement of the road from the Fort Washington road to Silesia and River View. The commissioners promised this delegation also to match dollar for dollar any funds raised in the section for the improvement of the old Fort Washington rad.

Anther delegation from Piscataway asked for a road from the town of Piscataway to Mattawoman, and the commissioners ordered that the route be surveyed. Indorsement of the Fort Washington road was asked by another delegation, who wanted the commissioners to send a letter to the State Roads Commission. This was taken under consideration.

The commissioners agreed to give $150 for right of way for the Latsford branch road, another $100 to come from the district road funds. The entrance to the road will be surveyed. A petition from Oxon Hill asked that a 1-mile road be built from Temple Mill to the old Alexandria-Marlboro road.

A complaint was received about dumping on River road, in Bladensburg, and another about the condition of the road between High Bridge and the Defense highway. The clerk of the board was instructed to write to the Pennsylvania Railroad about the condition of the crossing at Arundel Station, which was the subject of a third complaint.

The examining board appointed to consider closing the road through the Montpelier property near Laurel reported against such action unless an alternate road is built to serve the same territory. The board was composed of William Allen, L. C. Donaldson and Harry Jones.

Another Piscataway petition asked that George T. Underwood be appointed as a road supervisor in this district. The matter will be decided when the subject of a new board comes up.

An influest will be held tonight at 7 o'clock into the death of Hilary Jackson, colored roadhouse proprietor, and a hearing will be held at 8 o'clock for Edward H. Stewart, of New York avenue near Ninth street northwest, held in the case. Both procedures will be held in Marlboro before Judge Thomas D. Griffith.

Whether or not Stewart will be held for the grand jury in Jackson's death depends on the testimony brought out at the inquest. Jackson died Sunday of injuries inflicted the day before when he was struck over the head with a shotgun, police say.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock for Justin E. Richard, 85-year-old veteran of the Civil and Indian wars, who died Monday at his home in Riverdale.

The services will be held in Francis Gasch's Sons undertaking establishment in charge of Mount Hermon Lodge, A. F. of A. M., of which he was a member. The Scottish Rite Masons will be in charge of his burial at Arlington.

He had lived in Riverdale for 24 years, and was a former employe of the Treasury and Commerce Departments, having retired in 1920. He was born in Paris of French parentage.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Minnie E. Richards; two sons and three daughters. The sons are George E. Richards, of St. Augustine, Fla., and Frank M. Richard, of Riverdale. The daughters are Miss Bertha L. Richard, of Omaha, Nebr.; Mrs. Josamine Lowe, of Washington, and Mrs. Josephine A. Poppenga, of Elizabeth, N. J. He also leaves one daughter by a previous marriage, Mrs. Annie Holmes, of Spokane, Wash.

Funeral services were held yesterday for George W. Mead, who died Sunday at his home in Decatur Heights just one year after the death of his wife. Mr. Mead was buried in Arlington after services conducted at his home by the Rev. Berkeley Griffith, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Mount Rainier. Mr. Mead, who was 63, died of heart trouble.

ALEXANDRIA SCHOOL GIVEN SCHOLARSHIP

Sum of $300 Is Allotted by University of Virginia to City.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Henry T. Moncure, principal of the Alexandria High School, has received a letter from Dean J. M. Page, University of Virginia, stating that the sum of $300 has been allotted to this school for scholarships, from the duPont fund, the amount to be used in one scholarship, as two, $100 and $200, or three of $100 each, the selection to be in the local school.

Dean Page states that in recognition of the large number of young men graduated annually this fund is assigned to the Alexandria High School for the session 1931-1932. Nominees must rank the highest quarter of the graduating class and quality leadership should be given in their selection.

He states also that nomination by Principal Moncure will be tantamount to approval by the university. The awards made are to be announced at the commencement exercises, and the names of the nominees and their scholarship records furnished the university by July 1. He also says that others of the graduating class may be candidates for other duPont scholarships.

Chairmen of the various committees of the citizens' committee of schools held a meeting Monday night and reported progress in their lines of investigation of school conditions. Lawrence E. Rowland, general chairman, presided, and John W. Brookfield acted as secretary. Those present were Miss Helen Norris Cummings, Mrs. Charles E. Cabell, James M. Armstrong, the Rev. Emmette R. Spencer, Capt. L. M. Bricker, M. B. Apperson, John W. Brookfield, A. V. Brown and C. Ashby Bladen.

Miss Helen Norris Cummings introduced a resolution, which was adopted, that the committee take up with the school board the matter of having the pupils in all grades of the schools participate in a bicentennial program in 1932 in this city, where George Washington established the first public school.

Mr. Armstrong stated that the last school census showed 5,848 of school age; that is, between the ages of 7 and 20 years, and that 4,500 pupils were attending the Alexandria public schools in February. It was also stated that the pay of teachers in this city compares favorably with that of any city of its size in the State. The grade school teachers receive from $900 to $1,300 a year and high school teachers from $1,300 to 1,800, whilwe the superintendents receives a salary of 5,500 a year.

The next meeting of the committee chairmen will be held March 11, as a final report is expected to be presented March 15.

Mrs. Effie Virginia Wilson, aged 62 years, wife of C. R. Wilson, of 616 South Columbus street, died Monday night in the Alexandria Hospital. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Edith Wilson, and a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Gray. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Wheatley's Funeral Home, 809 King street, conducted by the Rev. Dr. D. L. Synder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Policeman George Roberts was fined $25 and costs in the police court yesterday on a charge of assaulting Ward Stuart, the assault taking place last Friday in the Belvoir Hotel dining room, as a resuti, Stuart stated, of his asking Roberts to stay out of the place. Police Capt. W. W. Campbell had had Roberts suspended while investigating the case.

A jury in the corporation court returned a verdict of $300 in favor of Dr. E. A. Gorman, in his suit for $1,200 against R. L. May, trading as the A. B. & W. Bus Co. The suit was for medical services rendered Miss Avis Corbin, of the 400 block North street, Asaph street, for injuries received while a passenger on a bus of the defendant.

City council held an informal meeting yesterday to discuss with the members of the zoning and planning commission the progress of their work, also to study a tentative ordinance to cover this phase of the city work, drawn up by the commission, and when in proper shape to be presented to council for action. The maps prepared showing the zoning of the city were under consideration. The commission has not completed its work for final action by council.

Baltimore Police Deal Out Laundry

Distribute Packages Left by Chinese Who Died Recently.

Baltimore, March 3 (A.P.).—Desperate policemen knitted brows today over cryptic Chinese literary symbols, with the property room of police headquarters turned into the delivery department of the laundry of the late Lee Chin.

When Lee Chin died on February 21 he left 300 bundles of laundry on the shelves of his shop, and today a dozen desperate patrons had managed to reclaim their shirts, after convincing police they were the owners.

The police canvassed the Chinese colony thoroughly after Lee Chin died, but it developed that the laundryman had neither relatives, friends nor even close acquaintances.

MONTGOMERY BODY OPPOSES CEMETERY

Hearing Held on 100-Acre Plan for Development Near Aspen.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Determined opposition to the granting of a permit to the New Mount Olivet Cemetery Co. to establish a cemetery on a tract of 100 acres at Aspen developed at a public hearing held yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners. The Rev. Edward L. Buckey, of Washington, is president of the cemetery company, which is understood to be a subsidiary of the Mount Olivet Cemetery in Washington.

Citizens of the neighborhood who appeared to oppose the granting of the permit alleged that the location of the cemetery would cause a depreciation of their property, would subject them and their children to the mournful view of funeral corteges at all hours of the day, and that water from the cemetery would drain into the wells and streams nearby which are used for human and animal consumption.

Among those who appeared against the cemetery were Donald Bowie, sr., Donald Bowie, jr., Judge James L. Pugh, Calvin Bready, Harry Martin, of Kensington, Matthew Trimble, jr., Mrs. Bessie McIntosh, Mrs. Woodward and Mrs. Rabbitt. Letters opposing the cemetery were read from Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county real estate dealer, and Dr. Merton A. English.

Realtor Surprises Group.

Harold E. Doyle, Washington real estate dealer, who is the owner of 800 acres in the vicinity of the proposed cemetery, who was called by the opposing side, proved a surprise when he announced that he was not so sure that the cemetery would be such a nuisance as it had been painted.

W. C. Sullivan, of Washington, and Robert B. Peter, jr., of Rockville, appeared as attorneys for the cemetery company. They argued that the company had complied with all of the requirements of the law and that the commissioners have no legal right to refuse the permit. A decision was promised within two weeks by the commissioners.

Frank I. Davis, organization Democratic leader of the Poolesville District, yesterday was appointed clerk of the Montgomery County Police Court by the Montgomery County commissioners. The resignation of Charles Y. Latimer, of Takoma Park, Md., who resigned to return to law school, was accepted.

Former Tax Assessor.

Mr. Davis has been prominent in Democratic organization circles for many years, and until four years ago was a tax assessor for the Poolesville District. He is a farmer and at one time was engaged in the life insurance business. He is a native Montgomery Countian and has resided near Poolesville all his life. He is 45 years old, married and the father of three children. Except for the tax assessment position, he has never held public office before.

The county commissioners approved a petition of 30 residents of the Colesville District who asked for permission to open a public road from the Colesville pike to the Lay Hill road. It was announced that the commissioners will be in session on consecutive March 10, 17 and 24 for the purpose of hearing and reviewing appeals from assessments. The hearings will be held at the office of the county commissioners in Rockville Courthouse.

Auditors from the State Roads Commission have been in session this week, with Berry E. Clark to the county commissioners, checking accounts relative to the 1931-1932 road-building program in the county. The road program will be agreed upon as soon as the State Legislature passes the necessary legislation.

Word was received in Silver Spring yesterday that the Treasury Department had reported to Congress the allocation of $70,000 for the purchase of a site and the erection of a new postoffice building at Silver Spring. The money is made available in the public buildings and grounds bill recently passed by Congress and signed by President Hoover.

The allocation of funds for the new Federal building in Silver Spring is the result of a bill introduced by Mr. Zihlman, who based the legislation on the rapid growth of the Silver Spring territory and the fact that the postal receipts at the Silver Spring office had more than trebled every year for the last three years. Representative Zihlman said today that he is not certain when the building will be constructed. This matter entirely reats with the Postoffice and Treasury Departments, he said, but he is confident that it will be carried out in the public building program promised for the next two years by President Hoover.

Word was received from Mr. Zihlman by Paul Coughlin, postmaster at Silver Spring.

Two Holdup Men Rifle Gas Station Register

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 3.—Two bandits rifled the cash register of a filling station in the northern suburbs early today, after convincing the proprietor, Robert F. Sands, with revolvers, that they were not playing a joke, as he suspected.

While one jabbed a pistol against Sands' ribs the other scooped up a large amount of money in bills and silver. When Sands tried to telephone police headquarters after the men left he found wires had been cut.

Miss Thomas urges every family to have an early and an all-year-round garden because of the need of vegetables for health protection. She states that if any person needs assistance in their gardening problems to communicate with her or the local home demonstration club leader.

The local better garden campaign leaders have been named as follows: Miss Sara Day and Mrs. Anna Foster, of Andrew Chapel; Mrs. Charles Embery and Mrs. William Baukman, of Navy; Mrs. Milton Johnson and Mrs. J. Bready, of Herndon, and J. Hunter Mack, of McLean.

According to the report of N. L. Lowry, tester for the Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1, for February, 520 cows were tested in the association; of this number 64 were dry, 84 produced more than 40 pounds of butter fat and 9 unprofitable cows were sold to the butcher.

The high-herd honors were won again by R. L. Harrison & Son, of Herndon, with an average production of 1,172.5 pounds of milk and 47.3 pounds of butter fat. The second high-herd honors were again won by the Ravenworth Farm herd with an average production of 1,051.7 pounds of milk and 35.8 pounds of butter fat. The next tthree ranking herds were owned by F. E. Peck, Benjamin Middleton & Son, and M. H. Middleton, respectively.

A grade Holstein, owned by R. L Harrison & Son, won the individual cow record for the month with an average production of 2,155 pounds of milk and 97 pounds of butter fat. The report also shows that of the ten highest cows eight of those were owned by R. L. Harrison & Son, the other two being owned by Ben Middleton & Son, and the Ravensworth Farms. Each of the ten highest cows produced more than 66.6 pounds of butter fat each.

Of the cows on the month's honor roll of the association, H. L. Harrison & Son, owned ten: Ravenworth Farms, five; F. E. Peck, two; Ben Middleton & Son, four; M. H. Middleton, one; W. H. Elimore, two; A. S. Harrison & Son, five; Marvin Perkins, three, and Crippen & Riley, G. M. James, J. B. Armfield and Andrew Cornelius, one each. These cows produced more than 50 pounds of butter fat each.

The fifth degree team from the Forestville Grange was in charge of the program of the Fairfax County Pomona Grange, which met at the Oakton school. The fifth degree was confered on sixteen candidates including Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hawxhurst, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Williams, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ankers, Herbert Williams, W. R. Crabill, George Spear, Mrs. Helen Ford, Miss Dorothy Anderson, Miss Elizabeth Shackleton, Miss Emma Besley and Miss Frances Nevitt.

Following a discussion concerning the market situation in Washington and the effect on the suburban farmers of the abolishing of Center Market and the disintegration of the market facilities, the Grange temporarily tabled the project of starting an independent market stall for grange members.

One member urged farmers of suburban Washington to form a marketing association similar to the Dairymen's Association stating that until such an organization is formed the retailer will be at the mercy of the distributor. L. B. Morris told the members that if such a market stall is opened that they would have to agree to sell their produce exclusively through this stall and to give up individual market routes, many of which are now very profitable. Another problem presented would be the absolute necessity of standardizing all of the grange products if the stall is opened and the necessity of assuring members of means of disposing of their surplus produce.

The secretary of the Pomona Grange was instructed to communicate with Representative-elect Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, and with the National Grange headquarters in Washington to see what plan can be evolved to have the District of Columbia Commissioners use the funds appropriated during the last session of Congress for purchasing a site in Southwest Washington for a farmer's wholesale market.

Ronald Blake, of Oakton, suggested that the State law for Virginia be introduced at the next session of the State Legislature imposong a tax on colored oleo and forbidding the use of oleo in State institutions similar to the laws now in effect in several of the adjoining States. He asked that the various subordinate granges in the county carefully consider the question and be ready to take organized action in the future on this subject.

The Pomona Grange was invited to hold its April meeting in the Woodlawn Community Hall as guests of the Mount Vernon Grange. B. N. Middleton, of the Floris Grange, invited all grange members to attend the meeting of the Floris Community League tomorrow evening in the Floris School, when A. M. Loomis, secretary of the National Dairy Union will be guest speaker.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Cutting Down the Bathtub Hazard.

HANDRAILS and flat bottoms for bathtubs were proposed by A. W. Berger, of Chicago, at the recent Pennsylvania Safety Conference. The proposals will have the indorsement of all people who would regard bathing as a habit rather than an adventure.

• • • •

Bathing in the conventional bathtub comes in the same category as taxicab riding, parachute jumping and experimental gliding.

• • • •

It is almost as dangerous as stunt flying.

• • • •

It is a combination of ski-jumping, roller coasting and acrobatic dancing, retaining the worst features of each.

• • • •

Many a man steps into the tub a conservative humdrum citizen and is dragged out a few minutes later like a dare-devil birdman whose plane has crumpled in midair. Bathing under present conditions is an exploit almost as hazardous as promiscuous drinking.

• • • •

Insurance statistics show more people are hurt in bathtubs than in airplane accidents, and accident policy agents now make a special point of inquiring, "Do you bathe, do you carry it to extremes, and what was the date of your last bathtub accident?"

• • • •

IT is high time America's bathtub designers gave some thought to making the tub safe for democracy. There is no good reason why a man with a towel and a piece of soap should be in a state of uncertainty as to whether he is on his way to a bath or to a hospital. A bath should not be an undertaking requiring eternal vigilance.

• • • •

Flat bottoms and handrails are a step in the right direction. This department also suggests straps, skid chains and upholstered sides.

• • • •

There is even a question whether it would not be a good idea to strap certain types of bathers to the tub and stamp upon the bathroom wall the warning, "Do not try to alight while the tub is in motion."

• • • •

Builders of present-day bathtubs seem to have been influenced by a malicious desire to make bathing a dangerous sport. It it impossible for a person who bruises easily to be a consistent bather.

• • • •

One little slip and what can you grab? Nothing except the hot-water faucet!

• • • •

And there are few embarrassments in life more acute than those felt by a man rendered null and void while scrubbing his back.

• • • •

More power to Mr. Berger and the Pennsylvania Safety Conference! Any steps toward removing bathing from the category of major risks will be welcomed by the so-called human race.

MR. JOHN B. PRIESTLY, British author, says that New York is a nightmare. Skyscrapers are not human, he contends. "They are intended for a race of men 9 feet high and a dark green color," he declares. The color is all right, but he is off on the height. If he had visited the average New York skyscraper apartment he would know the ideal height is about 2 feet 4.

A chain of drug stores has failed for a loss of $10,000,000. Evidently they didn't sell soups and sandwiches.

• • • •

Speaking of a drug store sandwich, it should really be called breaded lettuce.

• • • •

GOV. HUEY P. LONG, of Louisiana, it has been discovered, "dunks" his corn pone in his soup. This may be a social error, but it is a good move politically. The "dunking" vote in America is tremendous.

Possibly the New York police who took money from speakeasies will contend that they were just sampling it to see if it was any good.

Venice is to be connected with the mainland by a traffic bridge. It will be just grand to see the Grand Canal by taxicab.

100 Requests for Food Filled in Montgomery

More than 100 orders for provisions to be provided families destitute because of the drought in Montgomery County, Md., have been given out by the Red Cross in that county, according to Frank Severance, chairman of the relief committee. Studies are now being made of the stock feeding problem.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon in Rockville High School with more than 24 of the subchairmen present. It was reported that relief was being made possible by steady contributions of county residents, and so far more than $6,000 has been raised, an amount which greatly exceeds the county quota.

BILL TO LIBERALIZE BLUE LAWS FOUGHT

Maryland Legislators Head Attacks; Report Likely to Be Favorable.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 3.—Led by Dr. W. W. Davis, executive secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, advocates of strict enforcement of Sunday blue laws, swooped down on Annapolis today and had their say against the bill now pending in the House of Delegates, enactment of which would have the effect of permitting moving pictures and other amusements, and the retail sale of certain classes of merchandise throughout the State.

The hearing, which was before the judiciary committee, was held in the House chamber and attracted a large gallery. Many delegates, not members of the committee, were in the throng. The bill, which was made the target of bitter attacks, is sponsored by Francis A. Michel, of Baltimore City, speaker of the House. It would empower the mayor and city council of Baltimore to permit moving pictures and other amusements on Sunday and otherwise loosen the Sunday laws. Its scope is made State-wide by reason of a provision for home rule in municipalities and the various counties to decide the issue.

Another measure, introduced by Delegate Dalesandro, of Baltimore City, limited to the city only, was expected to be the subject of a fight on the floor of the House today, but the committee report was postponed for the second time to give way to the major measure.

"The Michel bill," declared Dr. Davis, in opening the fight against the measure, "is nothing more than a sweet morsel for the policians to wallow around their tongues."

Dr. Davis had long been recognized as the strongest exponent of Sunday law enforcement. He declared that he is not opposed to the bill from a religious standpoint but because he had always advocated enforcement of all State laws, Sunday movies he said are only a matter of politics, or favored by a class of people who want no legislation at all.

Delegate Dorsey Replies.

Dr. Davis drew the fire of Delegate Philip B. Dorsey, former State's attorney of St. Mary's County, when he declared that operation of Sunday movies in that county was "due to the fault of officials of the county." To this Delegate Dorsey retorted that it was not among his duties as State's attorney "to go about snooping independently, that no complaints had ever been made to him and if they had he would have taken proper measures of prosecution." Delegate Galbreath, Allegany County, joined Mr. Dorsey by saying that a similar situation existed in his county.

Several ministers and a number of other citizens spoke against the bill. In course of the hearing Speaker Michel presented a letter from the Baltimore Federation of Commerce, urging passage of the law.

Legislators are inclined to believe that the bill will from committee with a favorable report, notwithstanding the strong opposition from some of the county delegations.

Among several bills to receive favorable reports in the House was the measure by Delegate Nicodemus, of Baltimore City, increasing the per diem of members of the Legislature from $5 to $10, but the measure was amended by striking out the provision that would reduce the period of the session from 90 to 60 days. The bill went to the third reading file without debate.

The House also approved the bill to further protect the oyster industry in the waters of Somerset County by fixing the closed season from April 15 to September 15. Heretofore the closed season has been from April 1 to September 1. Another favorable action was on the measure deeding to the Federal Government a tract of land at the University of Maryland, College Park, for the establishment of a mine experiment station.

The Senate passed the bill introduced by Senator Beck, Kent County, which gives greater jurisdiction to justice of the peace throughout the State in handling larceny cases.

The Senate committee on elections, through its chairman, John F. Bouse, of Baltimore City, announced that March 12 has been fixed for a hearing of the election contest brought by Thomas B. R. Mudd, Charles County, against Walter J. Mitchell, who was subsequently elected president of the Senate. John F. Mudd, Charles County, and Wendell C. Allen, Baltimore City, are counsel for the contestant, who was beaten in the last November election by a majority of 34 votes. He claims certain irregularities in the election.

Democrats Swing Bill.

For the first time since the early days of the Legislature when organization of the House was in progress party lines were strictly drawn in that chamber today. The situation developed when a Montgomery County bill was brought on the floor with a favorable report by the Democratic majority of the county delegation, of which Dr. George L. Edmonds is chairman.

The measure would empower the county commissioners to borrow from the Federal Government $1,200,000 without interest for parking improvements in the areas at the approaches to Washington, the sum to be matched by the United States under provisions of the Crampton law.

Delegate Dawson, the only Republican member of the county delegation, opposed the bill, and Delegate Oliver Metzrerott, of Prince Georges, minority floor leader, took up the cudgels with him. Delegate Dawson said among other things that a good many persons of the county did not know what the plans were all about. Then it was seen that a party agreement was at hand, Speaker Francis A. Michel took a hand in the fight, and when a roll call finally was taken the overwhelming majority that favors the Democrats asserted itself and the bill alid along to the third reading by a vote of 83 to 29.

New Zone Bill Offered.

Dr. Edmonds dropped into the House hopper the proposed Statewide measure that would enable all cities, towns or communities to take advantage of city zoning and planning authority.

Under existing law this privilege is limited to cities of 10,000 or more population. Among the towns keenly interested in the law are Rockville and Gaithersburg, Montgomery County.

The Senate today passed and sent to the House the bill authorizing a bond issue of $50,000 for improvements to the water system of Rockville.

The House mustered the bare constitutional majority to put its stamp of approval on the bill to increase from $300 to $500 the sum that may be deducted from estates of deceased persons to defray funeral expenses.

U. S. RESERVE BANKS REPORTED STRONGER

Fifth District's Statement Indicates Improvement in Some Lines.

Richmond, Va., March 3 (A.P.).—Despite a considerable amount of frozen credit in the rural sections, the review of February credit, business and agricultural conditions in the Fifth Federal Reserve District today said that a large number of banks in the Fifth Federal District are in a stronger position than they occupied a year ago.

The report, prepared by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent at the Bank of Richmond, issued today, said that 1931 began with business on a distinctively lower level than in 1930, and January and early February showed no marked tendency in either direction.

Some factors improved, the report said, while others lost ground. "But on the whole," Mr. Hoxton's review said, "it is probable that average developments were about on seasonal levels in comparison with trade of recent months."

Time Deposits Higher.

In connection with the reported stronger position of the banks of the district, Mr. Hoxton continued, "demand deposits in member banks are lower than a year ago, but time deposits are higher, probably due to an accumulation of funds awaiting an opportunity for profitable investment. Debits to individual accounts figures in clearing house banks in 24 cities during the four weeks ended February 11, 1931, were 9.3 per cent less than debits during the corresponding four weeks in 1930, but price changes during the year accounted for a considerable part of the decline."

Employment was recorded as showing no improvement during the first six weeks of 1931, and construction work for which permits were issued or contracts were awarded was in small volume.

Coal production was said to have declined somewhat from the December rate of output, and was much below the rate of production in January, 1930.

'On the other hand, Mr. Hoxton said, "there were signs of improvement in the textile field, and cotton prices advanced moderately between the middle of January and the middle of February. Cotton consumption in the Fifth district in January, while much below that of January, 1930, showed a seasonal increase over December consumption."

Business Somewhat Off.

Tobacco marketing continued in large volume, but the quality of tobacco sold was said to be so poor that average prices realized by growers were much lower than last year.

The review said that department sales for January were comparatively good, averaging only 3.7 per cent less than sales in January, 1930, in contrast with a national decrease in department store trade averaging approximately 7 per cent. Lower commodity prices were given as the cause for at least part of the January decline in sales. Wholesale trade in January showed seasonal gains over December trade, but was below the volume of business done in January, 1930.

Mr. Hoxton said that in studying various business indices for the Fifth reserve district, the present position of the farmer should be duly taken into account. "As the result of last summer's drought and lower prices received in the fall for the leading crops, a large number of farmers are ont in the market for any commodities except bare necessities of life, and little improvement can be expected in agricultural conditions before the next harvest time; the impairment of the credit standing of many farmers will handicap them in planting and growing this year's crops, and inability to finance the usual acreage may trend to reduce production.
